RULES.

I.—NAME.

The Society shall be called the “DERBYSHIRE ARCHÆOLOGICAL AND NATURAL HISTORY SOCIETY.”

II.—OBJECT.

The Society is instituted to examine, preserve, and illustrate the Archæology and Natural History of the County of Derby.

III.—OPERATION.

The means which the Society shall employ for effecting its objects are:—

- 1.—Meetings for the purpose of Reading Papers, the Exhibition of Antiquities, etc., and the discussion of subjects connected therewith.
- 2.—General Meetings each year at given places rendered interesting by their antiquities or by their natural development.
- 3.—The publication of original papers and ancient documents, etc.

IV.—OFFICERS.

The Officers of the Society shall consist of a President and Vice-Presidents, whose elections shall be for life; and an Honorary Treasurer and Honorary Secretary, who shall be elected annually.

V.—COUNCIL.

The General Management of the affairs and property of the Society shall be vested in a Council, consisting of the President, Vice-Presidents, Honorary Treasurer, Honorary Secretary, and twenty-four Members, elected from the general body of the Subscribers; eight of such twenty-four Members to retire annually in rotation, but to be eligible for re-election. All vacancies occurring during the year to be provisionally filled up by the Council.

VI.—ADMISSION OF MEMBERS.

The election of Members, who must be proposed and seconded in writing by two Members of the Society, shall take place at any meeting of the Council, or at any General Meetings of the Society.

VII.—SUBSCRIPTION.

Each Member on election after March 31st, 1878, shall pay an Entrance Fee of Five Shillings, and an Annual Subscription of Ten Shillings and Sixpence. All subscriptions to become due, in advance, on the 1st January each year, and to be paid to the Treasurer. A composition of Five Guineas to constitute Life Membership. The composition of Life Members and the Admission Fee of Ordinary Members to be funded, and the interest arising from them to be applied to the general objects of the Society. Ladies to be eligible as Members on the same terms. No one shall be entitled to his privileges as a Member of the Society whose subscription is six months in arrear.

VIII.—HONORARY MEMBERS.

The Council shall have the power of electing distinguished Antiquaries as Honorary Members. Honorary Members shall not be resident in the County, and shall not exceed twelve in number. Their privileges shall be the same as those of Ordinary Members.

IX.—MEETINGS OF COUNCIL.

The Council shall meet not less than six times in each year, at such place or places as may be determined upon. Special meetings may also be held at the request of the President, or Five Members of the Society. Five members of Council to form a quorum.

X.—SUB-COMMITTEES.

The Council shall have the power of appointing from time to time such sectional or Sub-Committees as may seem desirable for the carrying out of special objects. Such Sectional or Sub-Committees to report their proceedings to the Council for confirmation.

XI.—GENERAL MEETINGS.

The Annual Meeting of the Society shall be held in January each year, when the Accounts, properly audited, and a Report shall be presented, the Officers elected, and vacancies in the Council filled for the ensuing year. The Council may at any time call a General Meeting, specifying the object for which that Meeting is to be held. A clear seven days' notice of all General Meetings to be sent to each Member.

XII.—ALTERATION OF RULES.

No alteration in the Rules of the Society shall be made except by a majority of two-thirds of the Members present at an Annual or other General Meeting of the Society. Full notice of any intended alteration to be sent to each Member at least seven days before the date of such Meeting.

REPORT OF HON. SECRETARY.

THE Nineteenth Anniversary of the Society was held, by kind permission of the Committee, in the School of Art, on Monday, 1st February, 1897, at 2.30 p.m.

The Hon. Frederick Strutt presided. The Report for the past year was read and adopted. The Rev. F. C. Hipkins was elected to the seat on the Council vacant by the resignation of the Rev. G. A. Shaw. All those members of Council retiring under Rule V., viz., Messrs. Carrington, Keene, Bottomley, J. Bailey, G. Bailey, W. Bemrose, Borough, and Dr. Cox, were re-elected, as were also the Hon. Sec., Hon. Sec. of Finance, Hon. Treasurer, and Auditors. The Rev. Sir Richard FitzHerbert, Bart., was elected a Life Member and a Vice-President of the Society. The Revs. R. Jowett Burton, R. L. Farmer, Miss Emily Arkwright, Miss Florence Arkwright, Dr. Benthall, Mrs. Benthall, Messrs. H. Gaunt, T. C. Simmonds, E. M. Glover, and E. Haslam were elected members of the Society. At the conclusion of the business part of the meeting, the Rev. Dr. Cox gave a most interesting address, entitled "A talk upon the Monasteries and Monastic Life in Derbyshire." The nineteenth volume of the Society's "Proceedings" was distributed.

Early in the past year your Council received a suggestion from the Burton-on-Trent Society that a joint expedition should be held during the Summer at some locality within easy access of the two Societies. The Burton Society was informed that the Derbyshire Archæological and Natural History Society would gladly comply with this suggestion, and the Church Broughton neighbourhood was named as a suitable centre. The Burton Society having already arranged its meeting for May, it was not possible to fix the combined meeting before the Autumn, and September 18th was the date decided upon. On that day the members of our Society left Derby viâ Great Northern Railway, at 1.22 p.m., for Tutbury, whence they were conveyed in brakes to the church of Church Broughton. Here they were received by the vicar, the Rev. Wm. Auden, who conducted them over the church and pointed out the objects of interest. Mr. Auden gave a very carefully prepared and most interesting address, tracing the history of "Kirk" Broughton from the earliest times, its connection with the Priory of Tutbury, the bestowal, after the Dissolution of the Monasteries, both of the manor and the impropriate rectory upon Sir William Cavendish. In 1845-6 this church suffered from a "repairing" and re-pewing which would seem to have necessitated raising the floor level about eighteen inches, with the consequent concealment and part destruction of the bases of the Norman pillars. Happily there has since been a careful and conservative "restoration," with the result that the church now stands a good example of the way in which a church's history may be read in its architecture when care is taken to preserve, and not, as is often the case, to remove all that is characteristic. The special features of the church—the circular Norman font, with its remarkable ornamentation of interlacing triangles and circles; the three sedilia, rising in gradation; and the as yet unexplained trefoil opening in the south wall of the chancel, as well as certain distinct features of the tower were all noted and thoroughly inspected by the visitors under Mr. Auden's guidance.

Leaving the church, a walk across the fields brought the party to Barton Blount, the old seat of the Bradshaw family, occupied at present by Mr. F. Cooper. Mr. Cooper has spent much time in the Rockies and in Africa, and by his kind permission our members were privileged to inspect what is probably a unique collection of hunting trophies. Each skin, each head with its horns appears to be a perfect specimen of its kind; the kinds vary to an almost endless extent, and include even a beautiful specimen of the all but extinct white goat of the Rockies.

Returning to Church Broughton, the visitors were entertained to tea at the Vicarage by the kind hospitality of the Vicar and Mrs. Auden, and drove back to Tuthury in time for the 5.51 train to Derby.

An earlier expedition was fixed for August, to be held at Newark. The Vicar of Newark had promised to receive the party, and the notices to members were duly sent out, with the usual request for names to be sent in by a certain date. By that date your Hon. Sec. had received three names; forty-eight hours' law was given, during which the numbers reached a possible, but dubious nine, and the expedition was perforce abandoned. During the next forty-eight hours more than sufficient names came in to have enabled the expedition to be carried out. Members will easily understand that special arrangements for railway travelling, for driving, and for meals must be made for definite numbers, nor can they be made at a very few hours' notice.

Your Council has had brought before it an interesting scheme of restoration for one of our old Derbyshire Crosses; a member of the Council is deeply interested in the restoration, and has taken every possible pains to assure himself as to what treatment will give the most satisfactory result. Your Council gave a unanimous opinion upon the matter as laid before it, and hopes soon to be able to announce the satisfactory outcome of work carefully carried through by loving hand, in the spirit of truthful preservation. Members will further be interested to know that the Cross at Longford has been carefully restored under the direction of a member of our Council, and also that a protection has been arranged for the old and well known Cross at Bakewell, in danger of suffering at the hands of vandal youth.

No special act of destruction has been reported, but it has been suggested that each Derbyshire Incumbent, or Churchwardens, should assist our Society in drawing up an inventory of all ancient objects of interest as now existing in the County. Your Council will be glad to receive any further suggestions from members of the Society.

Death this last year has deprived us of one Vice-President, Mr. Curzon, and one member of Council, Mr. John Bailey. Both were original members of our Society, and Mr. Bailey was an elected member of our first Council. As long as their health permitted Mr. Curzon and Mr. Bailey were constantly at our meetings, and very few anniversaries have seen either of them absent. We treasure the recollection of all the help and interest they have given us, and deeply mourn their loss. We have also to regret the removal by death of Mr. Gisborne, who always took keen interest in all the work of our Society, and of another old friend, Mr. John Keys, who was very constantly amongst us, and whose hard work and careful investigation of old Derby is known and appreciated by all. We can ill afford to lose such staunch supporters. May the future bring us many more of the same stamp.

There have been other deaths, a good many resignations, and several erasions for non-payment, but the total number is considerably exceeded by our new members elected during the past year. We have not been able, for several years, to make this announcement, and we believe it to prove a keen interest in our Society's work, an interest which your Council trusts will be kept up, and increased by every member still trying to get at least one new member every year, by which means our improving balance sheet may improve still further, our volume may revert to its former more comfortable proportions, and our general satisfaction be greater at the result of the twentieth year of our proceedings.

A few brief notes on some Rectors and Vicars of Heanor, co. Derby.

By REV. R. J. BURTON.

FOR such information in these articles as is gleaned from the parish registers of Heanor, I am greatly indebted to the kindness of the rector, the Rev. C. E. L. Corfield, who has allowed me free access to those documents from time to time, as occasion for searching them has arisen. The notes and extracts are unfortunately incomplete, as they have been made at different times when searching for other purposes.

In the time of King John the living of Heanor was in the gift of the Greys of Codnor. It was then a rectory, but the great tithes being appropriated to Dale Abbey in 1473, it became a vicarage, and remained such until 1868, when the then vicar, the Rev. Fredk. Corfield, assumed the title of rector.

The list of incumbents from 1298 onwards will be found in Dr. Cox's "Derbyshire Churches," vol. iv., p. 234-5.

From 1298 to 1475 there were 12 Rectors, and from 1475 to 1866 there were 17 Vicars.

During the time that Heanor was subject to Dale Abbey, from 1473 to the dissolution of the Abbey in 1539, there were five vicars presented to the living by the Abbot of Dale, three of whom resigned; the last one (Richard Nottingham) to become Abbot of Dale. During the transfer of the advowson of Heanor vicarage from Henry, Lord Grey, to the Abbot of

Dale, John Stanley was the Abbot; which office he held from 1469 to 1491. The later visitations found that the rules were not properly obeyed, and that the Abbot was "imbecile" and impatient.*

1348. NICHOLAS DE GREY. He was succeeded, on his death, by Roger Sauseman, in 1349.

From this, it appears possible that Heanor suffered, in common with the greater part of England, under the terrible scourge, the Black Death; which in 1349 swept away a great portion of the population, more than half the Yorkshire priests, and more than two-thirds of the beneficed clergy of Norfolk.

1320. JOHN DE SHIRINGHAM.

1370. RALPH DE BARTON.

1385. ROGER DE CHERLTON.

These were all presented to the living of Heanor by the Greys of Codnor. It may be noted that these Greys held land in—Sutton, co. Northampton.

Sheringham (spelt variously, Shiringham, Schiringham, Shyringham), co. Norfolk.

Barton, in the counties of York and Nottingham.

Cherlton (Cherleton-Grey), co. Somerset.

(Cal : Inquis : Post Mortem.)

1485. RICHARD NOTTINGHAM became Abbot of Dale in 1491.

— OLIVER PYGGEN. Though the date of his institution is unknown, he appears as vicar of "Henor" in the Valor Ecclesiasticus of 1535-6.

In the parish registers are the following entries:—

1577. Oliver Piggen of Codnor was buried the xiiiijth day of Marche.

* "Dale and its Abbey," by John Ward, small edition, p. 57, and Dr. Cox's "Derbyshire Churches," vol. iv., p. 234.

1578. Elizabeth Piggen, widow, of Codnor, was buried the xxijth of Septembe.

These are the first entries of the name Piggen I have found in the registers, but many follow.

1547. RICHARD ARNOLD. He was the first vicar presented to the living of Heanor after the dissolution of Dale Abbey, and successfully steered his way through the Marian reaction well into the reign of Queen Elizabeth.

The earliest entry in the register is dated Jany. 26th, 1559 (but see note under William Asheby).

1565. LAURENCE BROOKES. This vicar was careless and unsystematic in keeping the parish registers—vide "Nota" under William Asheby.

1591. "Laurence Brookes Viker of Heynor was buried the iijth day of februarie Ano Domini 1591." (P.R.)

1593. WILLIAM ASHEBY. "Willm Asheby succeeding ye said Laurence Brookes was inducted ye xijth day of Mai Installed ye xij of ye same moneth Año. Regni Elizabeth Regine tricessimo quito" (i.e. 12th May, 1593). This leaves a considerable space of time between the decease of Laurence Brookes in 1591, and the institution of his successor, May 12th, 1593.

Ellen Ashby was buried July 13, 1643.

1633. "Willm Ashbye Vicar Dyed the vi of January and was buried the xijth of the same monnth."

William Asheby appears, from his entries in the parish registers, to have been a neat, careful, methodical and business-like man. His writing is good. He was careful to keep his own registers exact (though they have been much spoilt by later erasure, etc.), and to correct, as far as possible, the neglect of his predecessors.

The first register begins in the handwriting of this vicar, thus :—

“The names of all thoes that wear buried according as they wear set down in ye olde Regest<sup>r</sup> booke as followeth :

At año Dni 1559. “Weddings at Año Dom 1560 ad añ doñ 1577 and forward wth as many as have ben found in ye old Register book.” This note is interesting as bearing on the mandate of 1597, in which it was ordained that parchment registers should be purchased at the expense of the parish, and therein should be transcribed the entries contained in the former paper books.

The following appears neatly printed in black ink over an erasure, and is without signature :—

“Nota. This Register is very defective as to the four previous years 1579, 1580, 1581, 1582, wherein the Burials and Christenings were [for the] greatest part omitted, and the subsequent years to 1591 (being nine years more) are totally omitted.”

The original ink is of a reddish colour, and the note may have been re-copied by James Rathborne, who appended to the entries of 1634 the following note :—

“Memorandū.—That what is above written in this page concerning the year 1634 (being in a different character frō the other) was transcribed there by reason that the Register it selfe (through the decay of the ink) was almost obliterated.

“James Rathborne.”

[William Asheby made several entries on business matters, and notes for the benefit and guidance of his successors.]

1633. JOSIAS HAWKSWORTH. During his incumbency the registers were abominably neglected, vide note by James Rathborne.

1633. "Josias Hawksworth Ministar and Elizabeth his wife : ther daughter was baptized Cathrin the vijth Daye of August." Jonathan & Eliz : were also baptized at Heanor.

In 1634, bell number 2 was placed in the church tower : It bears the following inscription—

"GOD SAVE HIS CHVRCH. 1634."

1650. SAMUEL WRIGHT. Appointed by the Parliamentary Commission. There are entries of three (?) of the children of Samuel Wright and Anne his wife. Elizabeth and Joseph only are mentioned by name. The last of these entries is—1662. "Samuell Wright y<sup>e</sup> quondam Mn<sup>r</sup> de Henor had two children buried December ye 10th.

In 1662 there was an entry which has been almost entirely obliterated, but which was evidently a "Thanksgiving to Almighty God"—referring to the Restoration and its consequences, one of which was the ejection of Samuel Wright.

"Heanor. Mr. Samuel Wright. A good man, and a very able preacher. He lived in much weakness many years after his being ejected. He could not preach so often as his more healthful brethren could, but when he did he preached to very good purpose, among his old parishioners, from house to house." (Nonconformists' Memorial, by Ed. Calamy ; corrected by Saml. Palmer, 1775. Vol. I., p. 322.) This vicar was living at Heanor in 1664, when his son Joseph was baptized on the 16th of April. From 1650 to 1654 there are no entries in the parish registers.

1664. JAMES RATHBORNE. He was a very careful and methodical man. He kept the registers in admirable order during his incumbency, and did much to rectify the neglect of his predecessors.

He thus dates his installation into the living—

"A true Account of all Christnings, Weddings and Burials since Mr. James Rathborne was authorized to officiate the cure in the Parish Church of Heynor March 9th 1664."

Among several notes on parochial matters is the following, which refers to the time of Josias Hawksworth's incumbency—

“That from the year 1634 to the year 1643 the account of Christnings, Burialls, and Marriages cannot be found: and that from the year 1643 till 1650 these ensuing notes (though imperfect) were found in loose papers in the hands of John Dale the present clark of this parish, and for the satisfaction of any whom they may concerne are here transcribed and inserted (the first day of Aprill Anno Dñi 1669) by me

“JAMES RATHBORNE.”

He has handed down the names of some of the churchwardens—perhaps the only wardens known by name prior to this century.

1664. James Rathborne—Minister.
 Richard Cleaton, }
 William Potter, } Churchwardens.
 John Scyvernes, }

1665. [James] Rathborne Cur: Richard Cleayton (?) John Moor (?)

1666. James Rathborne Cur: [the churchwardens' names are illegible].

1667. James Rathborne Cur: William Wild Richard (Coates) (his mark) churchwardens.

1677. George Westwood Minister of Heynor and Mary Baker of Allestrey widow were married at Horsley August ye 7th with a licence.

1693. Mary the wife of George Westwood of Heynor M<sup>rs</sup> was buried January 18th.

1698. M<sup>r</sup> George Westwood Minister of this parish was Buried May 21st.

* “George, the sonne of Edward and Ellen Westwood of Heynor was baptized August 11th 1647.”—Reg.

In the Horsley parish registers is the following—

George Westwood's name appears on a rather pretty inscription round the shoulder of bell number 5 in the church tower. The inscription reads—

“I TOLE THE TVNE THAT DVLFVLL IS TO SVCHE AS LIVD AMISSE
EVT SWEETE MY SOWND SEEMES
VNT0 THEM WHO HOPE FOR

Geo Westwood 1686.”

1698. SAMUEL LEES.—1737. During his incumbency are the two following entries—

“A true account of all Christenings Weddings and Burials since I Richard Goodwin did officiate the clerck in y<sup>e</sup> Parish of Heynor June y<sup>e</sup> 7th 1702.”

Aprill 4th 1711.”

The following entry possibly refers to the burial of a Quaker at Codnor, as at the Breach was a meeting-house of the “Friends.”

1707. Cassandra Mannors of Codner made affidavit that John Horsely the son of John Horsley was b[uried] according to law—Aprill 20 at Breach.”

After this follow a number of affidavits.

Some persons distinguished by the titles of Lord, Sir, Esqre., Gentn., Mr., &c., in the Parish Registers of Heanor, co. Derby.

This list of persons lays no claim to completeness; but is taken from a large number of extracts transcribed from the Registers from time to time.

Until about 1600 these distinguishing titles are very rare; from 1600 they gradually increase in number until about 1700, when they become much more frequent. The titles, however, are not invariably given with the names, e.g., "Jasper Dracot, gent<sup>n</sup>." is merely described as "Jasper Dracot of Losko" prior to 1595.

1592. Thomas Satchev'ell, gentl<sup>m</sup>. He died at Heanor Aug. 8th, 1592, and was buried at Morley.

1593. Jasper Dracot, gent<sup>n</sup>. His wife was named Ellenor. He is not described as "gent<sup>n</sup>" until 1595.

1626. George Drecott (also, Dreacott) gent. His wife, Elizabeth.

1684. M<sup>r</sup>. John Draycott of Codnor.

[Many members of this family have no special designation in the entries. They lived at Loscoe in the parish of Heanor. The name is spelt variously in the registers. The entries relating to this family are very numerous. (Vide Lyson's Magna Britannia, vol. v., pp. clix. and 182.)]

1602. Henry Hide (also spelt Hyd), gent. His wife was named Mary. Described as of Oldercar Park. He was buried Sept<sup>r</sup> 22nd 1610.

1621. John Hid — gentleman — of henor. The word "gentleman" is a later insertion in different ink, but in 1626 there is an entry of "John hid of henor gent. and Joyce his wife."

1602. Robert Throckmorton — gentilman. He lived at Codnor: died on the 8th, and was buried on the 9th of July, 1602.
1605. Felix Fox—gent. Wife named Briget. He lived at Codnor Pke. The entries of this family, which dwelt at Loscoe, are numerous.
- 1566 “Luce Zouche was buried the xxth day of Februarie.”
1579. Sir Jhon Zouch (of Codnor Castle). “S<sup>r</sup> John Zouche knight was buried y<sup>e</sup> 3th day of Aprill,” 1610.
1607. An Zouche—gent<sup>n</sup>—daughter of Sir John Zouche Knight, Buried Feby: 8th 1607.
1611. Righte Honorable Lord Edward Zouch, Barron. His wife Elianor was buried April 3rd 1611. Not of Codnor Castle.
1611. John Zouche Esquire — of Codnor Castell. His wife, Iszabell. Their son John was christened at Codnor Castle, Feb. 25th, 1612.
- This John joined his father in selling the Codnor estates in 1634 (Glover's “History of Derbyshire,” vol. ii., p. 312). He is called “M<sup>r</sup> John Zouch” in 1618.]
1632. Isabell Zouch, Ladye, wife to the Right Worshipfull S<sup>r</sup> John Zouch of Codnar Castell, was buried. She was the daughter of Patrick Lowe of Denby (Glover, vol. ii., p. 367).
- [Sir John Zouch of this entry is the John Zouch, Esq., of the previous one.]
1610. John Low—gent.—of Shipley his wife, An.

1699. M<sup>rs</sup>. Lucy Low of Oulgreaves buried.

[The family of Low or Lowe of Shipley or Oulgreaves is distinguished by the title 'gent.' or 'M<sup>r</sup>.'; but the families of the same name dwelling at Codnor, Loscoe, and Langley do not appear to be distinguished in that manner.]

1610. Jarvis (or Jarvas) Dodson—gent., his wife Frances. His son Jonathan was buried in 1614.

The following extract may possibly point to the reason why the Dodsons took up their abode at Langley—

1598. "Robert Dodson of Little Eaton and Isabell Lowe (?) of Langley wear married the xixth day of June."

1624. M<sup>rs</sup>. Dodson of Langley—widow, was buried.

1611. Sampson Coleclough—gent<sup>n</sup> his wife, Jane. In this year three of their children—Thomas, Antony and Clare were christened on the same day.

[The references to this family are very numerous, but the distinguishing title is found only with Sampson Coleclough, and not always with him. In 1602 he is described as "Sampson Colecloe of Codn<sup>n</sup> castell" and in 1611, as "gent<sup>e</sup> of Heynor hall." There are tablets to later members of the family on the walls at the west end of the south aisle of Heanor Church.]

1612. Henry Porter—gent.—wife named Cassander.

[Described as of Kerkby in the countie of Lincolne. An entry as to his daughter Briget's being christened.]

1616. William Kite—gent. Died 20th March at Newman Leas and was buried at Cossall in the countie of Nottingha<sup>m</sup>.

1618. Anthony Thwaites—gentilma<sup>n</sup>. Of Milnehay in the parish of Heanor, was buried Feby. 4th.

1620. A badly preserved note by William Asheby (vicar of Heanor from 1593 to 1633) seems to close with the following words—

1621. Richard Lewes—Gentilman. His wife named Jane. Described as “Dwelling in Oularcar parcke”

1622. M<sup>rs</sup>. Anne Rooper widow was buried July 18.

[This entry is neatly printed. The Ropers lived at Heanor Hall.]

1628. Alexander Allin—gentill—of Loscoe.

1622. “M<sup>r</sup>. Allexandar Alin and M<sup>(rs)</sup>. Jone Dracott was maryed the xvth day of september.”

[Mr. Richard Clayton, the younger, of Codnor Breach, was a retired attorney of Nottingham. His daughter Alice, above-mentioned, was married, about August, 1714, to Thomas Roby of Denby—(M<sup>r</sup>. Roby of Denby Old Hall"—P.R.), and was buried at Heanor, 1762. Sarah, the daughter of Thomas and Alice Roby, is probably referred to in the Registers.]

1680. M<sup>rs</sup>. Mary Green, "died at M<sup>r</sup>. Hieron's" and was buried Jan. 3rd.

[M<sup>r</sup>. Samuell Hieron is probably the Nonconformist minister ejected from the living of Shirley in 1662, and mentioned in the "Nonconformists' Memorial," vol. i., p. 334-5.]

M<sup>r</sup>. John Hieron, buried in 1682, was the Puritan Divine who was ejected from Breadsall at the Restoration. The late Rev. Frederick Corfield, rector of Heanor, used to say that his tablet or tombstone was discovered when the church was taken down in 1868—but since then it seems to have been broken up or lost. For the following brief sketch of his life I am greatly indebted to a friend who has spent much time and thought on the subject. It will be noted that though there are some items omitted which are given by Calamy, there are some interesting additions to his account.

"John Hieron, son of the Vicar of Stapenhill, near Burton-on-Trent, was born in 1608, and educated at Repton and Christ College, Cambridge. He was ordained both deacon and priest at the Trinity Ordination in 1630, by Bishop Morton of Lichfield and Coventry. A year and a half later, he became chaplain to Sir Henry Leigh at Egginton, and preached at Newton Solney, where he made the acquaintance of the Countess of Chesterfield, from whom he received many tokens of esteem.

“When the Rev. Joseph Taylor, Schoolmaster and Lecturer at Ashbourne, died in 1634, John Hieron became Lecturer, and not long afterwards married Taylor’s widow. He caused great uneasiness and controversy in Ashbourne by his vehement denunciation of the Book of Sports and Sabbath desecration. The Bishop of Lichfield was powerless to settle the controversy, and Hieron was summoned to Lambeth Palace, but was discharged without a trial. At the commencement of the Civil War he was apprehended for preaching against Episcopacy, but was liberated through the influence of his father-in-law; his house was searched, and fearing further molestation he left Ashbourne for Derby in 1643. He was appointed to the living of Breadsall by Sir John Gell. His wife died in 1657 at Hopton, the residence of Sir John Gell, and was buried at Breadsall. Before his ejection in 1662 he instituted a monthly lecture at Dale Abbey: he petitioned to preach there gratis afterwards, but Bishop Hacket would not allow this unless he conformed. From Breadsall he settled for a short time at Little Eaton, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, and Newthorp, settling finally at Loscoe in the parish of Heanor, where he continued the work of his ministry in his own house and at the houses of neighbours as long as he lived. He died at Loscoe on July 6th, 1682, aged 73.

“By Anne Taylor he had a son Joseph (mentioned above), who died in 1690, leaving five children, Ann, Mary, John, Rachel, and Joseph—all these are entered in the Heanor Registers, but Rachel’s name is obliterated.

“John Hieron collected a mass of valuable material for a topographical history of the county of Derby—the MSS. are now in the possession of F. Godfrey Franceys Meynell, Esq., of Meynell Langley. He was apparently an acceptable preacher, and at his death had preached in 66 Derbyshire churches.

“The house of Ann Taylor, daughter of the Rev. Joseph Taylor, and step-daughter of John Hieron, seems to have been made the common home at Loscoe.”

An account of the life and character of John Hieron was written by Mr. Robert Porter, who was ejected from Pentridge, and died at Mansfield Jan. 22nd, 1690.

1686. Gervas Disney, Esq.—of Oldercar His wife Rebekah was buried at Crich June 7th 1686.

1700. “ffrances ye daughter of M<sup>r</sup>. Edmund Winter of Langley and Mary his wife was Baptized Aug 12th.”

On the South wall of the tower (within) of Heanor Church is a brass plate (measuring 9½ in. by 12½ in.) bearing the following inscription:—“Here lyeth the body of Dorothy Winter daughter of Edmvd and Francis Winter of Langley who Departed this life the tenth day of November and was bvried the thirteenth day of the same Month Anno Dom. MDCLXXI.

“Occidi hev virgo nulli pietate secvnda
Terras destitvit gvippe svperna petit
Abstersit lacrymas merito qvas fvdimus omnes
Ac letho lvtvm lætitiam qve tvlit.”

Immediately above this is an inscription on a slate tablet (somewhat chipped) set in stone—

 And relict of Edmvdn Winter
 Rector of Carcolston, who Dyed April 21st

Addenda.

1560. "M<sup>rs</sup>. Hellen Trappers sometime M<sup>rs</sup>. (? Zouch) of Butterley was buried in ye chansell of hey [nor]

1576. "Brian Garnett Late Skoolemaster of Nottingha<sup>m</sup> was buried ye xxith day of December." *

In the Nottingham High School Magazine (The Forester, for July, 1888, p. 4), Mr. Corner, in his article on the history of the school, mentions Brian Garnet as the third headmaster in 1555, but adds a query.

On pp. 9 and 10 of the same magazine, referring to various historical works, he mentions that the celebrated Jesuit, Henry Garnet, is said to have been the son of Brian Garnet, Master of the Nottingham Free Grammar School. (The only mention there is of Brian Garnet having been master there is in Foley's "Records of the English Province of the Society of Jesus."*) One authority mentions Nottingham or as others write "Hennary [? Heanor] in the neighbouring county of Derby." It is stated that the Garnet family seat was in Derbyshire. Brian Garnet married a Protestant, Alice Jay, and the children were brought up in the reformed faith, but it would seem that they afterwards entered the Roman communion.

Other entries of this family appear in the Parish Register:—

1570. Ursula Garnet was buried the xiiijth day of December.

1576. John ye soone of Brian Garnet was buried the xixth day of June.

1579. Augustine Askew & Ales Garnet wear married ye xxijth of December.

 1697. M<sup>r</sup> Henry Shepard of Millhay—buried.
 at Denby.

There are other Shepards mentioned as of Milnehay, but without any distinguishing title. Lysons in the Magna Britannia, vol. v., p. clxv., gives the arms and a short notice of “Shepherd alias Thwaites of Miln-hay, in Heanor.”

1625. M<sup>r</sup> Kinesman of Knowtes [all]—his son Ambrose buried.
 1633. Godfree Garratt—gent.—buried
 1646. M<sup>r</sup> Worden—? of Shipley. His daughter Anne buried.
 In 1707 John Worden of Shipley is described as “yeoman.”
 1655. M<sup>r</sup> Deken—of Langley.

 1681. M<sup>r</sup> Henry Wild of Codner.
 1658. “Samuel Rooper of Heynor Esq. was buried September the 2<sup>d</sup>.”

These entries are very neatly printed in black ink, no doubt by James Rathborne. The arms and a notice of Roper of Turnditch and Heanor will be found in Lyson’s Magna Britannia, vol. v., pp. clxii. and clxiii.

1661. M<sup>rs</sup>. Johnson de Loscoe—buried.

1669. In a note by James Rathborne, John Dale is said to be the parish clerk then.
- In 1678 a John Dale of Heynor was buried.
1719. In the churchyard is a stone bearing the following inscription:—

"Here lyeth Thomas.
Gillot Who Was Cla rk aboute 50 years
Who died 1719."

1757. In the Register is the following entry:—

"Thomas gillott Clark of heanor Church Buryed December ye

THE document printed below (from the original Probate Copy in possession of B. T. Fitzherbert, Esq., of Swynnerton Park, Staffs.) is at once a Will and a Deed of Appointment; the Will ending with the word "above written," and the Deed of Appointment commencing with the word "Furthermore."

It is interesting on account of the many articles of domestic use and of dress mentioned by the testator; and it also supplies some information useful for genealogical purposes. The original Will appears to be lost. The testator was the only daughter and heir of John Marshall of Upton and Sibbesdon, co. Leicester, Esquire.

The question as to what the testator meant by "the Church of Saint Barloke" has been already discussed in this Journal, vol. xix., pp. 95-96. On the whole, it appears probable that "the Church of Saint Barloke" may have been the Chapel at the east end of the north aisle of Norbury Church, and not the south-east Chapel. It is true that the latter contains a figure of St. Barloke in the window; but most of the stained glass in Norbury Church has been moved from its original position; and as the windows of the north aisle and south-east Chapel are of the same size and shape, the glass may have been removed from the former to its present position in the latter. Who this Saint Barloke was has not yet been found out.

We learn from this Will that in the year 1490 the testator's youngest son Antony (afterwards Sir Antony Fitzherbert, Justice of the Common Pleas) as yet had "no part of his father's goods but his bare finding" only; and his eldest brother John is directed to pay him the sum of five marks per annum "towards his exhibition at Court" (i.e., his studies at Gray's Inn), "upon condition that he continue his learning at the same." This is strong evidence that Antony was not that "Master Fitzherbert" who in 1523 wrote the books of Husbandry and Surveying, and who had then been an householder and exercised husbandry for forty years. (See Journal D. A. & N. H. S., vol. xix., pp. 96, 97; also an article on this subject in the English Historical Review for April, 1897).

I subjoin a list of certain words in the Will the meaning of which may not be apparent to all readers, with their explanation as given in Halliwell's Dictionary, and Giles Jacob's Law Dictionary, etc. :—

To the forgeyng = ad fabricandum, ad fabricam reparandum; fabricare = to forge.

Raucester = Rocester, Staffs.

Crokesdon = Croxden, Staffs.

Derley = Darley Abbey, near Derby.

Bredpayne = probably a mistake for bedpayne, i.e., counterpane.

In bredde = in breadth.

My daughter Benct = Benedicta Bradburn, wife of testator's eldest son, John Fitzherbert.

Eln brodde = ell broad, the width of an ell.

Bordcloth = tablecloth

A maser = a bowl or goblet.

A nutte harnesssed = a silver-mounted coco-nut.

Tuke = "tewke, to make purses of, trelis" (Halliwell); apparently a kind of net or gauze.

Sey = a delicate serge or woollen cloth.

Pounced = ornamented with punch work, repoussé.

A garnesse = a garnish, i.e., a complete set or service of vessels.

Brandyron = same as andiron, i.e., hearthdogs (Halliwell); but query = brandreth, i.e., an iron tripod to support kettle or pot over fire.

Landeyron = "landern, a grate" (Halliwell).

Throwne leed = turned lead, a round leaden vessel.

Throwen stoles = turned stools.

Stepyng fate = steeping vat.

Yeleyng fast = ale vat, brewing tub.

Ale lomes = ale tubs.

Purfled = ornamented, trimmed.

Cowedron = Cauldron.

Skelett = a long-handled metal pot.

Puke = a colour between russet and black.

Shankes = fur from the legs of animals.

Iche, ichon = each, each one.

Co-maundre = Commandery of the Knights of St. John.

Wared in bredde = laid out in purchase of bread.

Suete = suit.

The Ancient Painted Window, Vault Hucknall Church.

By REV. C. KERRY.

IN comparison with other counties, Derbyshire possesses a very fair proportion of ancient painted glass in the windows of its churches. Much was undoubtedly battered down during the lawlessness of the Civil Wars, as at Ashover, but very much more has perished from the apathy and ignorance of the last, and beginning of the present century. A reparation of a window involving reglazing was (may I not say, is?) always certain to be fatal to any relics of old glass which might or may adorn it. A few years ago, there were six fragments (viz., four quarries, and two elegant leafy designs for tracery openings) in the windows of Horsley Church, Derbyshire. On my last visit a few months ago, I found that the whole of the aisle windows had been reglazed with staring white glass, and the ancient fragments had altogether disappeared. Happily, I made copies of the old designs on a former visit. Thus little by little are our old churches denuded of all indications of their former magnificence, and the relics of the past are swept away, regardless of their worth or interest.

Besides the churches of Norbury and Morley, and the chapel of Haddon, where we have whole windows glowing still in their pristine beauty, there is one in very fair preservation at Hault Hucknall, which is interesting if only as illustrating the art of glass painting in the last stage of Gothic decadence, when old forms were paling before new ideas, and the feeling of the Renaissance overshadowing the devotional school.

The Hucknall window is fairly preserved, but it would seem to have been at considerable risk: the subjects have been remounted in a plain quarried ground, evidently by a local glazier.

The inscription on this window in its original form is quoted by the Rev. Dr. Cox, in his "Churches of Derbyshire," from an old visitation of the County, as follows:—

"Orate pro bono statu Johis Sauvage Militis et Elizabethæ uxoris eius qui me fieri fecerunt A.D. Mil.CCCCC vicessimo septimo."

Of this inscription we have "Orate pro bono. . . . Johis" in the first light; the piece of glass containing the first two words has been reversed (turned inside outwards) by the glazier, so that they must be read backwards, and the word "statu" has disappeared. No more of the inscription remains until we come to the fourth light, where under the feet of S. Ursula we find the date 1527. On my last visit was discovered a fragment of glass bearing the name "Sauvage" at the back of the monument beneath the window, with one or two other pieces probably from the tracery of the west window of the nave. These are now carefully preserved by the vicar. It is to be hoped that funds may be forthcoming to re-instate this window, when the all important name will be replaced.

The Crucifixion of our Lord, with the accompanying figures of SS. Mary and John, occupies the first three lights of the window; the fourth—to the south—contains the figure of S. Ursula. The inscription band runs across the window at the foot of these figures dividing the principal subjects from the lower panels.

Careful photographs of the window have been kindly provided for this Journal by the Rev. F. Brodhurst, the vicar, to whom our best thanks are due, as well as for the extracts from the "Inq. post mortem" illustrative of the Sauvage family.

A drawing merely (however well it may be executed) can hardly convey the true expression of the original glass; and although we may lose the charm of colour by the more accurate process of photography, a specification of the tints may in some measure compensate the loss.

As in all windows of this period, there is but little colour, the prevailing hue being a warm dusky white. The general effect at a distance is pleasant and soothing, and whatever imperfections there may be owing to the decadence of treatment and style, these all vanish in the breadth and unity of colouring.

The figure of the Blessed Virgin Mary in the first light has lost the head, as well as the lower portion. The mantle is open in front, the left side of it being gracefully brought round and tucked under the right arm. This robe has a stained border with a kind of inscription by way of ornament pegged out of the heavy 'mat' which covers it

'Stain' is the technical term for the beautiful light yellow tint applied here and there for decoration on the larger pieces of white glass. It is the only tint (not an enamel) which can be applied by the artist for the decoration of his draperies, and other portions of his work. Stain applied to blue glass produces various shades of green, according to the relative density both of glass-tint, and stain. With ruby it produces orange, and so on according to the laws of colour. Grey takes stain with charming results, and the same may be said of many other tones of glass.

'Stain' is produced by an application of nitrate of silver compounded with a medium for application; and fixed (after the other work has been through the kiln) at a second firing. Its use was discovered about the year 1370, and its introduction gradually imparted a lightness and silvery beauty to windows quite unknown to the earlier schools of art. It is specially characteristic of the glass of the Perpendicular period until its decline.

'Colour' is a technical term for the reddish-looking paint used by the artist for lining or tracing, and for shadows. It is a compound of oxide of iron and other ingredients, which, by the action of fire, become incorporated with the glass. The line work must have solidity or opacity, and for finer work the colour is applied with a fine pencil of red sable, whilst the shadows are laid over or upon the mat, and stippled down to the required density by a stippler of hogs' hair.

'Mat' is the term used for a thin layer of colour spread evenly over a given surface. This, when dry, is often removed with a pointed instrument, so as to form diapers or brilliant patterns on a dark ground. By this method was formed the inscription on the band across this window, as well as the pattern on the mantle of the Blessed Virgin before mentioned. The process was as follows:—First came the application of the 'mat,' then the removal or 'pegging out' the pattern or letters desired, then the firing. After this, the stain was applied at the back of the glass, which was passed a second time through the kiln. In the case of features and drapery, the glass is first coated with a 'mat,' the high lights are then brushed out, then the tracing of lines and ornaments required, then the deepening of shadows, and rounding of figures, usually with a medium of oil of tar, followed by careful stippling or toning down. In the figure of the Blessed Virgin, the cuffs of the sleeves are stained, and all the mantle save the border is white. The floor is composed of diagonal brickwork, the 'mat' having been removed to shew the lighter alternate squares.

In the second light we have the Crucifixion. All the darker portions of the photograph represent the parts stained yellow—the cross, the sun, the upper part of the hair, including the nimbus, the crown of thorns, and the waist-cloth; all the rest is of white glass, duly shaded and stippled. The topmost arm of the cross was probably lost at the re-setting of the glass in the new quarries. There is an eye in the centre of the sun. The copious streams of blood flowing from the sacred wounds are remarkable for their volume, perhaps designed to set forth the truth, that "With Him is plenteous redemption."

In the third light stands the figure of S. John. The hair, the outer rim of the nimbus, and the figured border of the robe (visible on the right shoulder), are stained; all the rest is white with light brown shading. The spots visible on the face are caused by the corrosion or decay of the outer surface of the glass from exposure.

In the fourth light we find the figure of S. Ursula.

The legend of this saint is given at great length by Mrs. Jameson in her charming volume of "Sacred and Legendary Art," p. 299. She is said to have been a princess, the daughter of Theonotus, a king of Brittany. Her hand was sought in marriage by Conon, son of Agrippinus, king of Britain. Having made a vow of perpetual virginity, she departed with a large company of virgins on a pilgrimage to the holy places in Rome. They ventured to sea in a ship without sailors, and were driven into the mouth of the Rhine as far as the port of Cologne. Eventually they reached Rome, where they were received with much reverence and honour by S. Cyriacus, bishop of that city. Conon resolved to set out in search of her, and by a miracle arrived in Rome as Ursula and her company were on the point of departure. Being happily re-united with Ursula at the feet of Cyriacus, and having learnt her determination, Conon received baptism, changing his name from Conon to Etherius, to express the purity of his soul. He no longer sought possession of Ursula; but rather, with her, the crown of martyrdom. After a long and perilous journey they arrived in the port of Cologne at the time the city was besieged by barbarians, who at once attacked the holy company. Etherius fell, pierced by an arrow, at the feet of the beloved princess, and the maidens were all massacred: Ursula, distinguished for her beauty, was carried before their leader, who at once wished to make her his queen. With indignant words of defiance S. Ursula rejected his offer, upon which, the pagan, seized with fury, bent his bow which he held in his hand, and with three arrows transfixed her breast, so that she fell dead at his feet; "but her spirit ascended into heaven with all her glorious sisterhood of martyrs whom she had led, and there with palms in their hands they stand round the throne of Christ, and live in His light and His approving smile, blessing and praising Him for ever."

In the east window of the north aisle of Morley Church is a figure of S. Ursula, with eleven virgins in her lap, in the act of ascending into heaven.

S. Ursula is invariably represented with a crown on her head as a princess, an arrow in her hand as a martyr, and on each side several of her virgin companions, as in this most interesting fragment at Hucknall. In this figure, as before, the darker shades represent the stain; all the rest is white. The lower extremity of the arrow-shaft is yellow; the upper, white. The dresses of the virgins beneath the right hand are also yellow, as well as the remains of the kirtle of S. Ursula. As eleven virgins are usually depicted with this saint, and only six are visible on the right side, we may fairly presume that five others were placed under the diverging mantle on the left.

We now come to the four lower panels beneath the principal figures.

The Rev. Dr. Cox, in his "Churches of Derbyshire," i., 245, gives a quotation from an old heraldic visitation of Derbyshire made in 1611, from which it may be inferred that more old glass existed at Hucknall then, than at present; and it seems very probable that some of the glass in the present window, particularly two of these lower panels, formed part of these demolished windows.

There was certainly a window to the memory of Richard Pauson, containing the arms of some religious house of royal foundation.

Again, there was the figure of a man kneeling, wearing a tabard bearing the Sauvage arms, viz.: 1st and 4th, argent, a pale lozengy sable; 2nd, or, on a fesse azure, three garbs ppr.; and 3rd, a chevron between three martlets; whilst connected with this figure was the inscription remaining in this window. The figure wearing the arms of John Sauvage is lost; but the wife of John Sauvage, wearing the arms of her family on a tabard, remains in the present window. She is thus described: "Upon a woman kneeling—Quarterly 1st and 4th, France and England on a fesse within a bordure gobonnée (Somerset); 2nd, Herbert; 3rd, Woodville." Here, then, are mentioned two panels belonging to the Sauvage window, one of which is lost.

We come, now, to the next quotation: "Under the arms of Hardwick impaling a broken coat is this inscription, 'Orate pro bono statu Johannis Hardwick generosi et . . . uxoris ejus.'" This clearly relates to a separate Hardwick window. The second panel of our window exhibits these very arms impaling, as in 1611, the identical "broken coat." These arms, therefore, have been taken out of the Hardwick window, now destroyed, and placed in this. The third panel exhibits a single kneeling figure habited in a long blue cloak. It clearly represents an ecclesiastic because of a hood visible at the back, whilst the under vestment is white, as would be the case with a priest vested in a cope with an accompanying albe or surplice. Is this figure from the Pauson window? It seems very probable. In 1611 we are told that in Pauson's window was a shield of the arms of England bearing in chief a religious building with a woman holding a crozier. The Valor Ecclesiasticus of 27 Henry VIII. speaks of the Prior of Newstead as patron of Hault Hucknall and of Mr. Richard "Palson" (Pauson) as vicar. The arms of Newstead were: Azure, three lions passant guardant in pale or; on a chief gules, the Virgin and Child of the second.

The Virgin and Child must clearly have been taken by the old herald for a woman holding a crozier. Possibly the Blessed Virgin Mary was represented as holding a sceptre in one hand whilst supporting the Holy Child with the other, as on a brass at Morley.

These arms are destroyed, but the figure of Pauson which accompanied them has clearly been inserted here to make up the quartet of panels. Newstead Abbey was founded by King Henry II., hence the royal arms beneath the figure of the Virgin.

Of the fourth panel, containing two male figures habited in blue gowns furred or purfled at the collars and sleeves, nothing can be said, save that the diapred background and the side pillars correspond with those of the first panel, and so associate them with the Sauvage window. Hence we may conclude they represent the children of John and Elizabeth Sauvage.

Now let us examine the treatment.

There can be no doubt but that the whole of this window, including the two strange panels representing two other windows now destroyed, are the work of the same artist. In other words, there were once three painted windows in Hucknall Church, erected about the same time, and executed by the same workman. Apart from artistic evidence, what do we find?

1st, Pauson died about 1536; but he erected his window before his death, as we may certainly infer from the inscription on his glass, "Orate pro bono statu." He might have had it done when the Sauvages erected theirs nine years before.

2nd, The present window of the Sauvages is dated 1527.

3rd, John Hardwick died in 1528, which would be the date of the Hardwick glass.

There can, therefore, be no doubt but that the three memorials were erected under the care and supervision of the then vicar, John Pauson.

The foremost lady in the first panel wears a tabard of arms identified by Dr. Cox as Elizabeth, daughter of Charles Somerset, Earl of Worcester, a lady of royal descent and the wife of Sir John Sauvage.

The blazonry of arms in old painted glass is not always correct, because of the difficulty experienced in placing the bearings of certain colours upon a field of another colour. When the charges of the shield became more complicated, every means was resorted to in order to represent them in their proper colours, whether by "leading in" the various tints required, or destroying by abrasion the surface of the coated or 'flushed' glass. In the more ordinary specimens, stained yellow and white glass were often for convenience sake substituted for the proper heraldic colours. This should always be borne in mind, especially in the examination of shields of many quarterings.

In so small a figure as this, revealing four quarterings on a small tabard, the emblazonry cannot be absolutely relied upon.

The two ladies in this panel are habited in gowns of a purplish ruby tinge; the head dresses are stained. The fenestrella of the prayer-desks are stained, as well as the side columns of the canopy. The background is white, with a diaper drawn in the matting.

The Hardwick arms in the second panel are fixed in a wreath of leaves stained, and shaded with brown on a white ground.

The figure of the ecclesiastic in the third panel has been described. His girdle, as well as the side columns and background, is stained.

In the fourth panel the architectural features are all yellow. The background is a brownish white, with the diaper tricked out in the 'mat.' The darker tones in the prayer-desks indicate the stain. The heads and central portions of each figure are executed on one piece of white glass, as may be seen by the lead lines and stain applied to the hair, neckband, and trimmings.

The removal of the high lights out of the 'mat' on the gowns of these figures is very sharp and crude, no attempt having been made to soften down by stippling. A bit of an inscription from another window appears in the margin on the right.

The editor desires to record not only his gratitude to the Rev. F. Brodhurst for his courtesy, shewn to him on his visit to Hault Hucknall; but also to the artist, Mr. G. E. Snell, for his excellent service in the production of the fine photographs of the window accompanying this paper.

Manor of Steynesby.

At the Domesday Survey Steinulf appears to have held it under Roger of Poicton.

In the Pipe Ro. of 1 John we find that William, son of Walchel, paid sixty marks for having hounds for following the hare, the wolf, and the wild cat, and for having the confirmation of the king for the same, and that his woods should not be afforested; for King Richard I. disafforested them, but did not confirm the act; and for having the king's confirmation of his lands at Steynesby, which he had by charter of King Henry II.

About the year 1198, Robert le Sauvage was fined for marrying the daughter of Will. fitz Walchel, or Walkelin. Mr. Yeatman, in his "Fudal History of Derbyshire," states that the charter of King Henry, as well as King John's confirmation of it, are still at Hardwick Hall.

In the Inq. Post. Mort. (anno 27 Edward I., No. 45) it is stated that the "Treasury Rolls" of 7 Henry III. record that Robert le Sauvage surrendered at Swyncum (?), before the king, all his lands which he held in chief, to the use of John Sauvage, his son, who did homage for the same.

It seems probable from Inq. Pos. Mort., 4 Edward I., that Robert, the first of the Sauvages of Steynesby, acquired this manor by his marriage with Andeluya, the heiress of William fitz Walchel, for we find that on the death of her son, John Sauvage, she was entitled to one third of the manor for her dowry; and that Hawysia, the wife of John the son, was entitled to a third of the two remaining shares.

The succession of the Sauvages will be better seen from the accompanying pedigree than from a detailed account.

In the Inq. Post. Mort. of 4 Edward I., the manor was held in chief, and in socage, at the yearly rent of a soar sparrow hawk for all services. The manor was then worth £20 13s. 6d. yearly. The hawk might be compounded for by 2s. paid into the exchequer. Anno 27 Edward I., the manor house and garden were valued at 3s. per annum. There were fifty acres of plough-land, worth 4d. the acre, and a meadow 15s. yearly. There was a park producing 9s. yearly from agistments; also a separate pasture worth 4s. per annum. The watermill was valued at 30s. 8d.; the assize rents paid by the free tenants, "natives," and cottars amounted to 6s. 10d.; and the profits of courts were valued at 20s. yearly.

In the 5th of Edward II. we find that an additional rent of 4 lbs. of cummin ("cuminum") was paid to the king, as well as 2 lbs. of pepper—a very considerable addition. We can easily understand the use and value of pepper in the Middle Ages; but what was the cummin for? Mattheolus, in his commentary on Dioscorides, the old medical authorities of an early period, shall inform us:—"Cimum sativum—Excalfacit, adstringit, exiccat: ad tormina inflationesque convenit, coctum et cum oleo inditum, aut cum hordacea farina illitum: orthopnoicis datur in posca: demorsis a serpente in vino: testium collectionibus auxiliata impositum cum uva passa aut folii farina ceratove: mensium abundantium inhibet: contritum autem in aceto et naribus objectum sanguinis profluvia sistit: colorem bibentium mutat in pallorem." Even calculated to change the rubicund hue of the worshipper of Bacchus into the pallor of the total abstainer!

In the survey of 50 Edward III. this rent of spices is not mentioned. There were two carucates of plough-land, valued at 13s. 4d.; ten acres of meadow at 20s.; forty acres of pasture worth 17s.; ten marks (£6 13s. 4d.) of yearly rents. The court of the manor produced 5s. 8d.; and the watermill, beyond reprises or expenses, 6s. 8d. per annum. From a Muster Roll, given by Mr. Yeatman in his "Feudal History," part 2, 481, it appears that Isabella, widow of John de la Legh, had lands in Steynesby worth 10 marks; John de Herdwick 40s. in lands; Robert Savage, 40s. in goods; Richard Savage, 20s. in lands. One bowman John Wyndgate.

In an Inquest of Knights' Fees, 10 Henry VI., it was presented that John Savage, of Clyston, County Chester, Kt., had in demesne a free ten' in Steynesby which he held in socage, worth 40s. He also held 30s. in socage in Dore.

ners, Kic. Buckley, Tho. Stanley, were farmers of his manors. In
field.—(Court Rolls of Holmesfield.)

Socage was a tenure by which men held their lands to plough the lands of their respective lords with their own ploughs and at their own expense. This slavish tenure was afterwards by mutual agreement of Lord and tenant turned into money payment, and from this it was termed Free Socage, whereas the other was Villain Socage, which also included the Oath of Fealty. This was a tenure of so large an extent, that Littleton tells us all the lands in England which were not held by Knight's Service were held in Socage. The lands held by Knight's Service descended to the eldest son; but those held in Villain Socagio, equally among all the sons. Socage is a tenure of lands whereby a man is enfeoffed freely, without wardship and marriage, paying to his lord some small rent which is called "Free Socage."—Vide "Blount's Law Terms."

In 1580, or 1581, John Savage conveyed the Manor of Steynesby to Lord Chancellor Bromley, by whom it is probable it was again conveyed about the same time as Rowthorn to St William Cavendish. It is now the property of the Duke of Devonshire.—Lysons.

The Court Rolls of the Manor of Holmesfield, Co. Derby.

WITH NOTES BY THE EDITOR.

This is a matter for much congratulation that, through the courtesy of the Duke of Rutland and the kindness of Mr. Carrington, the custodian of His Grace's archives, we have been able to recover the parochial history of Holmesfield from the year 1480 down to 1651—a period of 171 years—from the Court Rolls of that manor. The church registers of Holmesfield only reach as far back as 1727; but the unrecorded years after 1538, when Parish Registers were first instituted, may perhaps in some way be covered by the registers of Dronfield, which once comprised the township and district of Holmesfield.

Some people are apt to complain of dry names, and to thirst for entertaining biographies; but every name involves a biography—if unwritten, perhaps as edifying to a thoughtful mind as the garnishing of character which often attaches to others. 'He lived, and he died,' is the summary of the lives of most men. The church registers tell us no more, and their record is prized exceedingly. The Court Rolls, however, frequently reveal the estate and status of most of the parishioners, especially of the copyholders; whilst in the records of the Courts Leet the poorer class appear and live again. We see them in their quarrels, their trespasses, and frailties; for these Leet Rolls are the records of parochial jurisdiction and administration, invaluable to every lover of local history.

The word manor is immediately derived from the old French manoir, habitation, or from the Latin manere, to stay or dwell, because the lord usually resided there in the curia, hall, or chief seat on the estate, where he held his courts, received his rents and services, and transacted all his manorial business. The records of these transactions are termed "Court Rolls." The Courts were of two kinds: one was termed Court Baron, and the other Court Leet.

The Court Baron was an inseparable incident to the manor, and was held by prescription. The homage jury were bound to enquire that their lords did not lose their services, duties, or custom, to see that the tenants made their suits of court, paid their rents and heriots, kept their lands and tenements in repair, and were bound to present all matters which might tend to prejudice the lord's interest in his manor.

The Court Leet was ordained for punishing offences against the Crown, and is said to be the most ancient court of the land. It was called The "View of Frank Pledge," because the King was to be certified by the steward how many people were within every Leet, and have an account of their good manners and government, and every person of the age of twelve to fourteen years who had remained there for a year and a day might be sworn to be faithful to the King, and every person from this age to sixty dwelling in the Leet district was obliged to do suit in the court. A Leet court was as incident to a Hundred, as a Court Baron to a Manor. This court was to be held twice a year, viz., within a month after the feasts of Michaelmas and Easter. The Steward was the judge of this court, as the Sheriff was of the 'Turn.' He had powers to elect his officers, as constables, tithingmen, as well as punish offenders. Twelve freeholders or residents were to form the jury. They were to inquire whether all that owed suit of court were present, of customs withdrawn, of purprestures, of lands, woods, of houses set up or beat down, of cottages erected contrary to law,—of bounds removed, ways or waters stopped, of thieves, of 'Hue and Cry' disregarded, of bloodshed, escapes, persons outlawed, money coiners, treasure trove, assize of bread and ale, persons keeping alehouses without license, false weights and measures, unlawful games, offences relating to game, idle persons, brawling women, etc. The lord of the leet was to provide a pillory and tumbrel to punish offenders, and for want thereof was either fined, or his liberty withdrawn, as may be seen in the "Placita de Quo Waranto" (vide Law Dictionaries of Jacob and Blount, Spelman's Gloss., etc.).

At the compilation of Domesday Survey the Manor of Holmesfield belonged to the Deincourts, and continued in that family unto the death of William Deincourt in the reign of Henry VI. One of his sisters and co-heirs married Sir Will. Lovell, and on the attainder of his son, Francis Lord Lovell, in the reign of Henry VII., this manor was granted to Sir John Savage, from whose descendant it was purchased in 1586. (Lysons.) As a Sir John Savage held the Manor in 1580 (Rolls), and Sir John Manners in 1606 (Rolls), probably we have here the names of the actual vendor and purchaser.

(Translation and Abstract.)

Court held at Holmesfield on Thursday in the week of Pentecost in the xx. year of King Edward iv. (A.D. 1480-1.)

Roger Elott sought to be admitted tenant of divers lands and tenements formerly William Webster's and Agnes his wife, as the next heir of the said Agnes.

Cecily, wife of Thomas Mylner, sought to be admitted to the above-mentioned lands, etc., by virtue of a surrender of the said lands made to John Wattes, Thomas Cooke, and other tenants, by the said William Webster and Agnes his wife, to the use of the aforesaid Cecily after the decease of the said

✠ William and Agnes: upon which came John Wattes, and testified to the same surrender before Robert Eyre, Esq., Seneschal of the Court,

Thomas Cooke and Richard Schawe also came and desired admission to the same lands, etc., by virtue of a surrender made to William Brokehouse, a tenant of the manor, in the presence of Thomas Beamond, Tho. Wattes, John Jepson, etc., by Agnes, formerly wife of Will. Webster, to the use of the said Thom. Cooke and Ric. Shaw after her decease. Will. Brokehouse then came and certified to the surrender before Rob. Eyre, Esq., Seneschal. A jury was appointed to decide the claims at the next Court.

The Court of Francis. Lord de Lovell. held at Holmesfield on Thursday next after the feast of S. Martin in winter (Nov. xi.) Anno xxi. Edward iv. (A.D. 1481-2.)

The jurymen appointed for the inquest relating to the claimants of the lands of Agnes Webster were—Will Fflyntt, John Ffaunchall, John Harry, sen. Will Harry, John Stevynson, Tho. Morewodd, Nich. White, John Harry, jun., Will. Wattes, Tho. Wattes, Ralph Hattersley, and John Wattes, who said upon their oath that Agnes Webster held the said lands at her death, upon which a cow fell to the lord for a heriot, and that Cecilia, wife of Thomas Mylner, is the next heir of the said Agnes, and that she ought to be admitted tenant all the lands in Holmesfield which were Will. Webster's, whereupon the said Cecilia was admitted, and paid 5s. for her "relief," and did fealty, and had seisin.

They said that the same Thomas B. had cut down two oaks on the bounds of the park. They said that they had heard that John and Robert Brokhouse were 'Natives' (nativi)* of the lady of thir manor, and dwelt in Barley & Brampton without the licence of the lady.

* A 'Native' is one who is born a slave or serf, and thus differs from him who has suffered himself to be sold. We call some serfs 'Bondmen,' some 'Natives,' and others 'Villains.' 'Bondmen' are those who by covenant have bound themselves in service; whence the term 'Bond,' that is, 'bound,' as with a chain. 'Villains' are those who are ascribed to the soil, and till the lord's demesne lands, and they are not allowed to leave without their lord's permission (vide Spelman). By a charter of Rich. II. all were released from bondage (? villainage) in the county of Herts. By a charter of Hen. III. it was provided 'That if any native dwell in any borough and hold land in it, and shall be a member of the corporation or guild of our burgesses there for a year & a day without blame, from thenceforth he shall not be recovered by his lord, but remain a free man in the same town.'

* 'Homage' (Fr.) is derived from 'Homo,' and this duty is called 'homage' because when the tenant does this service he says "I become your man." The form is given in Stat. 2 of 17 Ed. II. in these words: "When a freeman shall do homage to his lord of whom he holds in chief, he (kneeling) shall hold his hands together between the hands of his lord and shall say thus—'I become your man from this day forth for life, for member and for worldly honour, and shall owe you my faith for the land I hold of you, saving the faith that I owe unto our sovereign lord the King, and to mine other lords.'" A religious man (Bishop or other) may do homage but may not say to his lord "Ego devenio homo vester," because he has professed himself to be only God's man, but he may say, "I do unto you homage, and to you shall be faithful and loyal." (Tho. Blount.) (Montfaucon, in his Antiquities of France 1750, has a fine plate of Louis II. doing homage to Charles V. for the Earldom of Clermont. pl. cxxix. p. 65. See Fealty under A.D. 1538.

Holmesfeld. Great Court of John Savage, Kt., held the xxii. day of November, v. Hen. viii. (A.D. 1513.)

Homage Jury (inter alia). Will. Cley and Will. Shaw.

To this court came Oliver Fflynt cleric, and Rich. Fretwell attorney to Tho. Leeke of Hasland, by virtue of a letter of attorney exhibited in court and dated 12th April, 4 Hen. VIII., and surrendered into the hands of the lord all his lands and tenements in Holmesfeld, now in the tenure and occupation of Henry Beemond, to the use of Thomas Fitzherbert D.D., James Bersford clerk B.D., Roger Eyre Esq., and John Newton and their heirs, to fulfil the last will of the same Thomas Leeke, and the lord granted the said lands and tenements to the aforesaid Thomas Fitzherbert, James Bersford, Roger Eyre, and John Newton according to the custom of the manor etc.

Presented that Henry Barley 2<sup>d</sup>, Will. Kynge and Thom. Newbold are hunters within the warren of this lordship; wherefore they are in mercy.

William Croft and Will Kyngge attorneys to John Coke of Caldwell surrendered all the messuages and lands etc. which  formerly were in the tenure and occupation of John Coke to the use of Joan relict of the said John Coke—but only during her widowhood.

Holmesfeld. Little Court of Sir John Savage, Kt., held there xxiii. November. Anno vi. Hen. viii. (A.D. 1514.)

Among the jurors are Will. Cha and Tho. Bernesley.

John Hudson, and Margaret his wife, plaintiffs, and Joan Coke widow, defendant, in the plea of lands. The plaint related to a messuage called "Caldwall" and to certain lands lying in Caldwell.

To this court came Will. and Roger Crofte, attorneys for Henry Parken and Margaret, his wife. The said Margaret affirmed that she was not influenced by her husband in surrendering a messuage lying in the "High Towne" and certain lands lying between the land of Roger Foliambe on the north, and the "Cartlelege" on the south, and between the land of Robert Dolphin, son of Richard Dolphyn, on the west, and the highway on the east, to the behoof and use of Roger Eyre, Esq., to whom the lord of the manor had granted the aforesaid messuages and lands, for which he did fealty.

William Crofte and Will. Kyng, attorneys of Nich. Whyte, surrendered a mess. and all the lands, tenements with appurts, lying in "Cartleegge," lately in the occup. of the said Nich. Whyte to the use of Roger Eyre, of Holme, Esq., his heirs and assigns.

William Croft in his own person surrendered a messuage and two bays in the barn, and one bay in the 'Cote,' and six parcells of land, to the use of Roger Crofte for the term of eighteen years.

John Watts in his own person surrendered a bovate (eighteen acres) of land in Milnethorpe, to the use of Thomas Watts, his heirs and assigns.

Thomas Watts in his own person surrendered a certain yearly rent of 13<sup>s</sup> 4<sup>d</sup>. issuing from a mess. and bovate in Milnethorpe, to the use of Elizabeth Watts, wife of the said Thomas, in the name of dowry and jointure for life.

Thomas Watts and Elizabeth, his wife, surrendered a mess. and bovate in Milnethorpe to the use of John Watts for his life.

Roger Eyre in his own person surrendered a meadow plot lying in Cartlege, in the tenure of Nicholas Whyte, to the use of the said Nicholas, for life.

✠ John Coke who held a mess. and lands in Holmefeld, died since the last court, by which his best animal fell to the lord, for a heriot. Margaret, the wife of John Hudson is sister and next heir of John Coke, and is of full age.

Here follows a fragment of constable's returns relating to CHELMERTON, dated 6 Hen. VIII. It bears the following:—

Andrew Morewood, constable.

John Norton	} Assistants.
Edward Brixton

All reported in good order: discords, nil.

Heriot, A. Saxon 'Heregate,' from Here an army and 'gate' a beast. It signified originally a tribute given to the lord of the manor for his better preparation for war. By the laws of Canute, at the death of the great men of this realm, so many horses and arms were to be paid as they were in their respective life-times obliged to keep for the king's service. Spelman. Jacob.

In many, if not all, modern copyholds the best beast (whether it be horse, ox, or cow—or the best goods, furniture, or plate) of which the tenant dies possessed is due and payable to the lord of the manor.

The present payment of death duties imposed by the late Radical Government is far more severe on our aristocracy and the wealthier portion of our community than the severest of the old feudal obligations, for incidentally it constitutes a penalty or fine on every patron of the fine arts for their possession of choice articles of virtu, and a penalty and restriction on the production of these things by our most talented artisans. It is almost a death blow to the prosperity of English art, for few will care now to obtain or treasure those things the possession of which will entail such disastrous consequences to their families and estates.

* This John Bullock may have been the same person who purchased Darley Abbey, and whose monument may still be seen in S. Alkmund's Church, Derby. His name frequently occurs in the Court Rolls of Duffield, e.g., 20th October, A.D. 1600—when John Bullock, having lent £100 to Will. Bradshaw, sen., gent., and Anna, his wife, Anthony Bradshaw, son of the said William and Gertrude, his wife, and William Bradshaw, brother of the said Anthony, he received as security for repayment twenty acres of land at Chevyn Side, near Belper. The said sum to be repaid to John Bullock at his mansion called "Darley Hall" on the 20th of December next. But in default of payment, then John Bullock, sen., should pay to the Bradshaws £60 more, and retain the four closes at Chevyn Side. (The money was paid to Bullock on the day appointed). John Bullock, Esq., sen., occurs on the Duffield Rolls, on 5th April, 1604. "John Bullock, sen., and John Bullock, jun., of the Inner Temple, London, gent." by Henry Bullock, gent., their attorney, surrendered certain lands to the use of Will. Parker.—(See Lyson's "History of Derbyshire.")

Holmesfield Court, May xxvii. 1613.

✠ James Mower has died since last court.

✠ Sir Henry Ffanshawe is dead since last court. A heriot is due.

The jury present Adam Hawkesworth for not grinding his corne growing within the lordship at the lord's mill;—and Anthony Bright and Will. Woodhouse for the like.

There was usually a mill attached to every manor, as well for the convenience of the lord as of his dependents. The tenants were obliged to assist in its reparation, and to keep the water course and dam free from obstruction and mud. (The tenants of the Abbot of Ramsey cleansed the pond at Shillington Mill, Beds., on the Thursday in Whit-week every year.) They were bound to grind their corn at the lord's mill, paying a multure. Alexander de Whitworth held the manor of Woodham in capite of the Prior of Durham, and among other duties he was to grind his corn at the Mill of Ackley to the Twentieth dish, and all his tenants were to grind there to the thirteenth dish. This is obviously the amount of toll in the way of grist these tenants were expected to contribute; one dish for every sack—i.e., thirteen sacks. It was the custom for millers to take their toll for grinding by a vessel called a toll dish, so that one dish would be taken out of each sack brought to be ground. Of the size of the toll dish and its relation to the sack, there seems no reliable evidence; but the dishonesty of millers in the olden time was proverbial. Almost every ancient court roll records presentments of millers for taking "excessive" toll. Fuller relates a quaint anecdote of the miller of Matlock who happened to be in church while the Latin Gospel for Good Friday was being read, containing the words "tolle, tolle," which he interpreted as a warrant for him to take double "toll" from his customers' batches.

Chaucer writes of them in his day :—

"Wel coude they stelen corne, and tollen thries."

The following interesting regulations were in force at the manorial mill of Shillington, Beds., in 1255, for the tenants of the Abbot of Ramsey.

"Each one shall perform suit to the mill to which they shall send their corn.

"And if on the first day they cannot grind the entire corn, as much as would suffice that day for his family, he is then bound to grind the mill.

"And if on the same day he cannot grind there, it shall be lawful for him to take back his corn and take it elsewhere at his pleasure.

"It shall be lawful for each one if he buys his corn, to grind it without challenge at the nearest mill he shall come to.

"From the Gules of August (1st of August, or S. Peter ad Vincula) unto the feast of S. Michael, it shall be lawful for any one at his pleasure to grind his corn, if he cannot grind his corn at the lord's mill on the day he sends it.

"Also, if by chance at any time the lord's mill is broken, or the millpond so that he cannot grind, it shall be lawful for him as before, to take his corn elsewhere at his will.

"But if he shall be convicted, so that in due manner he cannot perform suit to the lord's mill before judgment, he shall give sixpence: and if he shall have suffered judgment, he shall give twelve pence. (Under the provision of "Fulsting Pound."—ED.)

"For the whole year he shall grind his corn in the space (time) in which he does not yield toll for wheat (except against Christmas and Easter) for multure.

"It was the duty of the Reeve to carry the lord's corn to the mill."—Ramsey Chartulary, vol. i., 458.

(A.D. 1615.)

Robert Hatterley, the younger, of the "Bank" in Holmesfield, and Robert Hatterley the elder of the same "Webster," appointed Robert Wolstenholme and Will. Owtrem, yeomen, their attorneys to surrender "Netherfield" and "Round Meadow" to the use of Rob. Owtrem, of Dronfield Woodhouse, yeoman, and Frances, his wife, for ever. Given 5 March, Anno 10 James.

Richard Alvey, customary tenant, surrendered a barn in the occupation of Xpof. Wood and John Bothome, and a fold and croft, by the footpath leading to "Huett Bolehill" and a field (inter alia) named "Healthyfield" to the use of the said Richard Alvey for life, and after his decease to Robert Alvey, son and heir of the said Richard, with remainder to Margaret Alvey, third daughter of the said Richard; but if she marry without her father's consent, this bequest to be void, and the estate to go to Robert, and after his death to Margaret and her heirs.

The same Richard surrendered many other holdings to his own use for life, and after his death to remain to Anne Alvey, his daughter.

Another surrender of lands in favour of Marie Alvey, his fourth daughter, after his death, but to the present use of brother Richard Alvey, and afterwards to Mary Alvey, her heirs and assigns.

Another fourth part of his estate was surrendered for the benefit of Will. Blyth, and Helen, his wife, and to the heirs of Helen.

Other property was surrendered by the same Richard Alvey to the use of Edward Drabble, his heirs and assigns for ever. Richard Harries surrendered (Oct. 24) 1 mess. and 5 fields, called the "Holmes," to the use and behoof of Thom. Burton and Edward Owtrem, for the remainder of his tenancy.

I.—NAME.

The Society shall be called the “DERBYSHIRE ARCHÆOLOGICAL AND NATURAL HISTORY SOCIETY.”

II.—OBJECT.

III.—OPERATION.

The means which the Society shall employ for effecting its objects are:—

- 1.—Meetings for the purpose of Reading Papers, the Exhibition of Antiquities, etc., and the discussion of subjects connected therewith.
- 2.—General Meetings each year at given places rendered interesting by their antiquities or by their natural development.
- 3.—The publication of original papers and ancient documents, etc.

IV.—OFFICERS.

The Officers of the Society shall consist of a President and Vice-Presidents, whose elections shall be for life; and an Honorary Treasurer and Honorary Secretary, who shall be elected annually.

V.—COUNCIL.

The General Management of the affairs and property of the Society shall be vested in a Council, consisting of the President, Vice-Presidents, Honorary Treasurer, Honorary Secretary, and twenty-four Members, elected from the general body of the Subscribers; eight of such twenty-four Members to retire annually in rotation, but to be eligible for re-election. All vacancies occurring during the year to be provisionally filled up by the Council.

VI.—ADMISSION OF MEMBERS.

The election of Members, who must be proposed and seconded in writing by two Members of the Society, shall take place at any meeting of the Council, or at any General Meetings of the Society.

VII.—SUBSCRIPTION.

Each Member on election after March 31st, 1878, shall pay an Entrance Fee of Five Shillings, and an Annual Subscription of Ten Shillings and Sixpence. All subscriptions to become due, in advance, on the 1st January each year, and to be paid to the Treasurer. A composition of Five Guineas to constitute Life Membership. The composition of Life Members and the Admission Fee of Ordinary Members to be funded, and the interest arising from them to be applied to the general objects of the Society. Ladies to be eligible as Members on the same terms. No one shall be entitled to his privileges as a Member of the Society whose subscription is six months in arrear.

VIII.—HONORARY MEMBERS.

The Council shall have the power of electing distinguished Antiquaries as Honorary Members. Honorary Members shall not be resident in the County, and shall not exceed twelve in number. Their privileges shall be the same as those of Ordinary Members.

IX.—MEETINGS OF COUNCIL.

The Council shall meet not less than six times in each year, at such place or places as may be determined upon. Special meetings may also be held at the request of the President, or Five Members of the Society. Five members of Council to form a quorum.

X.—SUB-COMMITTEES.

The Council shall have the power of appointing from time to time such sectional or Sub-Committees as may seem desirable for the carrying out of special objects. Such Sectional or Sub-Committees to report their proceedings to the Council for confirmation.

XI.—GENERAL MEETINGS.

The Annual Meeting of the Society shall be held in January each year, when the Accounts, properly audited, and a Report shall be presented, the Officers elected, and vacancies in the Council filled for the ensuing year. The Council may at any time call a General Meeting, specifying the object for which that Meeting is to be held. A clear seven days' notice of all General Meetings to be sent to each Member.

XII.—ALTERATION OF RULES.

No alteration in the Rules of the Society shall be made except by a majority of two-thirds of the Members present at an Annual or other General Meeting of the Society. Full notice of any intended alteration to be sent to each Member at least seven days before the date of such Meeting.

REPORT OF HON. SECRETARY.

THE Twentieth Anniversary of the Society was held, by kind permission of the Committee, in the Technical College, on Monday, March 21st, 1898. In the absence of Sir H. H. Bemrose, who had promised to preside, the chair was taken by the Hon. F. Strutt, V.P. The Report for the past year was read and adopted. The Rev. R. Jowett Burton was elected to the seat on the Council vacant by the death of Mr. John Bailey. All the members of Council retiring under Rule V., viz., Messrs. Jourdain, Cade, Gallop, Greenhough, Mallalieu, Holland, Kerry, and Ward, were re-elected, as were also the Hon. Treasurer, Hon. Sec., and Hon. Sec. of Finance. Mr. Keene was elected Auditor in the place of Mr. Coulson, resigned, to serve with Mr. W. Bemrose, who was re-elected. Messrs. Hamnett, Hamilton-Wilson, Wm. Curzon, N. B. Milnes, Leslie, A. V. Haslam, and R. B. Chambers, were elected members of the Society. Mr. Robert Hamnett read a very interesting paper upon "Melandra Castle," and exhibited various objects of interest found at, or connected with, the place. The twentieth volume of the Society's "Proceedings" was distributed.

The first expedition of the Society for the past year was held on Saturday, June 11th, to Wirksworth and Kirk Ireton. The party left Derby at 1.40, in saloon carriages attached to the train for Cromford, whence brakes conveyed the visitors to Wirksworth Church. Here they were received by the Vicar, the Rev. W. H. Arkwright. Dr. Milnes conducted the party over the building and gave an exhaustive address upon its history, architecture, and various interesting details, calling special attention to the brasses and sculptured monuments to members of the Blackwall and Gell families; and to the ancient font now again in use, and with the restoration of which this Society had somewhat to do a year or two since.

After a thorough inspection of the Church the visitors were most hospitably entertained at tea at the Nether House by the Vicar and Mrs. Arkwright; after which the drive was continued to the church of Kirk Ireton. The Vicar, the Rev. W. Hombersley, received the party and conducted them over his small but very interesting Norman Church, describing its history and details. From Kirk Ireton the party drove to Idridgehay station and returned to Derby by special train.

A second expedition was held on Wednesday, August 10th, to Bolsover and Hardwick. The party left Derby in special saloon carriages attached to the 11.10 a.m. train for Chesterfield, where luncheon was taken at the Angel Hotel. Brakes conveyed the visitors to Bolsover Castle, where the Rev. Chas. Kerry read an interesting paper, tracing the history of the ancient castle, and its changes of ownership from the Crown, through Cavendishes to its present owner, the Duke of Portland, by the kind permission of whom the visitors were permitted to inspect the modern part of the buildings.

From Bolsover the drive was continued to Hardwick, where the party was conducted over the Hall, and in the Great Gallery listened to a paper, by Mr. Kerry, dealing mainly with the structure of the house and the history of Arabella Stuart. The Rev. F. Brodhurst supplemented Mr. Kerry's paper by pointing out many of the pictures in the gallery, and the portraits of various personages connected with the history of the house.

Tea was taken at the Hardwick Inn, and the party drove back to Chesterfield in time for the 7.10 p.m. train to Derby.

Your Council has not, during the past year, had any instance of destruction or "restoration" brought before it, which needs special enquiry or comment. This is satisfactory in itself, but members are not on that account to suppose that the work of our Society is done, or is being left undone. Points are often raised where advice and counsel are given, some times gratefully received, though not invariably, and we believe that help and instruction are given quietly where results do not necessarily appear on the surface.

It cannot be too strongly impressed upon members that it is the duty of each individual to look out in his or her own neighbourhood, and to report to the Council any suggested restoration or demolition of what is ancient or interesting.

The end of the nineteenth century is far too eager to have things brand new for the commencement of 1900, and too regardless of the vast importance of preserving, not obliterating, the history of the past.

There has been a suggestion made as to possible excavations on the site of "Melandra" Castle in this County: this matter is under discussion, but so far it has not been possible to arrange for the work to begin.

The Archæological Survey of the County is proceeding under the skilled supervision of Mr. John Ward. Upon this subject Mr. Ward will shortly issue a circular asking the co-operation of members in their own neighbourhood.

Last Winter and this have been so mild that one did not expect to chronicle instances of visits from unusual birds: it will be interesting to our naturalists therefore, to know that last year we were favoured by visits from three varieties of birds for the first time, as far as I am aware.

In February, 1898, a specimen of the Rotche or Little Auk was shot on the Trent; in May, a Black Cormorant appeared, and paid the penalty in the same neighbourhood; and in September, just outside Derby, two Spotted Crakes made their appearance, these latter were young, so one might almost hope they had been bred in this County.

Another unusual visitor, a Stag Beetle, turned up also last year at Chaddesden.

It may be mentioned also that a few years back the Quail nested in Derbyshire, I believe for the first time on record.

Your Hon. Sec. will be very glad always to receive information of the appearance of any bird out of the common in the County.

Our obituary for the past year includes one Vice-President, Lord Vernon, an original member of this Society, and one who, as long as his health permitted, was always keenly alive to our work and interests. We have also sustained a great loss by the death of a member of Council, the Rev. F. Jourdain. No member of the Society was more thoroughly and practically interested in all that concerned us. Mr. Jourdain was always ready to work for the good of the Society, to advise, and, if required, to inspect and to superintend any work that was in progress. Your Council will miss his valued help, and deeply regret his loss.

The sum total of deaths is small, and added to resignations, just equals our number of new members; this is good, but we want it better, if the size of our Journal is to swell to its original proportions. We must again urge our members to do their individual duty by getting friends to join the Society. There are numbers of people in the County and in the Town who might and ought to join the Society, and to whom, probably, a personal appeal means very much more than any number of printed notices. Let this be each member's care for 1899, and we shall have no reason to be other than satisfied with the result of the twenty-first year of our proceedings.

By JOHN WARD, F.S.A.

IN January, 1896, the remains of a Roman oven were found in this Peak village, and through an oversight no notice of the discovery was sent to last year's Journal. The discovery was made while levelling a piece of ground on which a stable had stood. After pulling down this stable, it was observed that an elevation in the ground had been taken advantage of to support one of the walls. It was found to contain a strongly-built structure, but the labourers had removed most of it before it attracted the attention of Mr. Francis Harrison, a gentleman of Bradwell, who was struck with the Roman character of the masonry. He induced the owner to stay his hand until it had been properly examined.

A few days later, Mr. J. D. Leader, F.S.A., of Sheffield, and other gentlemen inspected the structure. Mr. Leader communicated notes on the discovery to the Society of Antiquaries, which are printed in vol. xvi., No. 1 (new series), of the Proceedings of that Society, pages 95-6. Another account of the "find" was contributed to the Sheffield Telegraph, of January 20th, 1896. From these two sources a full description of the structure may be drawn.

Mr. Leader describes it as a "circular building of finely wrought stone, well put together without mortar, and probably of Roman workmanship. The whole formed a circular chamber, 8 ft. 9 ins. in diameter, and not more than 20 ins. in height. There had been an entrance on the east side, and beneath this a shallow pit, 30 ins. square (the foundation stones of which are remaining), into which ashes from the chamber could be raked."

"All that now remains is a segment of the circle, 6 ft. 8 ins. in diameter (? length). The floor of the chamber was formed of close-fitting and smoothly dressed sandstone flags, 6 ins. in thickness, resting on a rubble foundation. The underside of one of these stones was seen to be roughly dressed, in diagonal lines, with a pick. The sides of the chamber were formed of a single row of dressed stones, each one curved to form the circle, and standing 12 ins. high. On these rested a projecting corbel table,  $5\frac{1}{2}$  ins. deep, and also wrought to form the circle. On this rested the first row of stones that went to form the roof. The roofing stones were not worked to the curve of the circle. The key-stone, with its lewis hole, had unfortunately been broken up and used in the building of a cottage."

The accompanying drawing is taken from photographs kindly lent by Mr. Leader, but the perspective is slightly altered so as to show the construction more clearly. The lower surface of the roof was obviously flat. Two of the voussoirs are in situ, and it will be noticed that they are of peculiar shape, and are "joggled." The Sheffield Telegraph description of this roof is as follows:—"On the top of the cornice were the roof stones, the bottom being flat, half the upper part convex, the other half with a plain surface running back obliquely from the top edge of the convexity. That was the first row; the second one, which was placed on the top of it, having a concavity formed to fit into the convexity of the one supporting it, the whole roof being dome-shaped, and pieced together by a method of dove-tailing without mortar, and finished off by a well-fitting key-stone." The statement that the roof was dome-shaped refers probably to its outward appearance.

"The stone," to again quote the Sheffield Telegraph, "is skilfully worked, and is altogether different from anything to be found in the more modern buildings in Bradwell. Further than this, the Red Sandstone of which it (the oven) is composed is nowhere found amongst the rocks of the district, and must have been transported some distance, probably from Lancashire, as the Romans had good roads from that county into Derbyshire."

The writer of that article describes the structure as a potter's kiln; but there can be no doubt that Mr. Leader's surmise is nearer the truth. "No traces of Roman tiles or pottery were seen among the débris. The stones bore marks of fire, and the whole may have formed a baker's oven heated by burning wood within it, and, after the ashes had been raked out, then receiving the bread or other food to be baked."

Since compiling the above, my young friend, Mr. W. H. Salt, of Buxton, has sent me some particulars he has gleaned of an ancient interment found in Bradwell, near the above oven, last Spring. The skeleton, he was informed, was much decayed, and appeared to have belonged to an adult. No particulars could be obtained as to its attitude, whether extended or contracted. It lay immediately below the turf, in a covered cist of sandstone and limestone flags, which had an east and west direction; its dimensions are given as 3 ft. long, 2 ft. wide, and 2 ft. deep. With the skeleton was an iron spear-head about 7 ins. long, much rusted, and with strong mid-rib and socket devoid of rivet holes. This spear-head lay at the west end of the cist, but its point was towards the east. In the cist were also a leaden spindle-whorl, button, and coin. The spindle-whorl was 1 in. diameter and about  $\frac{1}{4}$  in. thick. Its upper surface was decorated with five raised fillets so arranged as to suggest that a five-pointed star was intended. The button consisted of a disc of copper about  $\frac{1}{4}$  in. in diameter, with a small ring attached to the back. It was decorated with small hollows inlaid with gold. The coin, unfortunately, is lost. The spear-head, spindle-whorl, and button are now in the Buxton Free Library.

Notes on some old Derbyshire Cottages.

By PERCY CURREY, ESQ., ARCHITECT.

AMONG all the works that have been written on the architecture of the middle ages, very little attention has yet been given to the timber buildings which for so many centuries comprised the great majority of the smaller class of houses. Messrs. Turner and Parker's invaluable work on the domestic architecture of the middle ages illustrates many timber buildings, but gives no details of their construction and gradual development, and confines itself almost exclusively to the larger buildings, besides which it concludes with the fifteenth century, after which period the majority of the buildings of this class now in existence were erected. The fine timber houses of Cheshire and the West of England are often illustrated, but a well studied historical account of the development and characteristics of timber construction seems to me to be much wanted. For this reason I have thought that it might not be altogether uninteresting to the readers of the Derbyshire Archæological Society's Journal, if I were to give a few brief notes which I have made from time to time on some very primitive timber buildings of the humblest class in this county, and I am the more induced to do so by the fact that they are very rapidly disappearing to give place to the modern builder's six-roomed cottages, a great gain no doubt from a sanitarian's point of view, though one cannot help wishing that they might be spared to relieve the deadly monotony of pressed brick fronts and cast-iron palisades; if kept in repair they would probably long outlive their modern successors.

These old labourers' cottages might be said to have no features of architectural interest, but they display what was probably the earliest form of timber construction. In their erection, two massive pairs of rafters were first hewn out, usually selected with a slight curve near their lower end; these were either framed together at the top, or else framed into a short horizontal piece of timber, which formed a firm seat for the ridge beam; the rafters were then set up on the ground, or on a wooden or stone cill to form the two gable ends of the house to be built, and across them horizontal timbers of lighter scantling were notched and secured by oak pins, longitudinal timbers (ridge, purlins, and wall plates) being notched and pinned on to these, and stiffened by diagonal wind braces. The whole formed, with a minimum of labour, a very rigid and strong skeleton frame, whose durability and sound construction is attested by the number of centuries which some of them have stood. In the examples which I have been able to examine, the filling in of the gables and side-walls appears to have been made with light upright pieces of round timber let into the horizontal timbers, between which willow rods were interlaced in the manner of basket work, and the whole plastered with clay in which chopped grass was mixed to give it cohesion; but in almost all cases this filling in has been subsequently replaced by brick or stone. The roofs were formed of rough rafters and thatched, and the floors would probably be also formed of clay beaten down and trodden hard.

A very picturesque house of this class is still standing near the station at Little Eaton, but as it now forms one of a row of three houses, only one of the gable ends is visible. Another pair of these houses still stands on Morley Moor, close to the picturesque old Sacheverell Almshouses; they are now uninhabited, and rapidly falling to pieces. Each house appears to have originally consisted of a single room, about eighteen feet long by fourteen feet six inches wide, the walls being about seven feet high to the level of the wall plate. There is an upper floor at the level of the eaves, forming a chamber in the roof, but this is evidently a subsequent addition, as the joists rest on the brick filling in of the walls, and not on the wall plate, which indeed could scarcely have carried them before the brickwork was inserted, the round holes in the timbers showing that the spaces were originally filled in with wattles and clay as described above.

RAFTER BUILT COTTAGES

DIAGRAM OF GABLE END OF COTTAGES AT

P. H. Currey del.

There are one or two other examples which I have come across in Derbyshire which show the original construction, and the large number of houses which—though the rafters have been removed or covered up and the buildings enlarged—can still be seen, with a little observation, to have been first built in this form, show that this must at one time have been the usual type of labourers' cottage in the country.

A house at Little Eaton being pulled down in 1896, disclosed a very perfect pair of cottages of this kind, and gave me an opportunity of examining their construction. An additional room having been added at each end, the original gables had become inner walls, and thus their original construction of wattles and clay had been preserved intact. Each house consisted of a single room, about fifteen feet by thirteen feet, and seven feet high to the wall plate; a door had been cut through the centre wall to throw the two houses into one, and a chamber floor had been added, as in those at Morley. At one end was a large open fireplace, with a projecting hood to carry off the smoke, also formed of wood and clay like the walls. Another cottage at Little Eaton, pulled down in 1897, also had the original rafters remaining in the partition wall; whilst an uninteresting looking cottage at Matlock Town, when pulled down, disclosed a very massive pair of rafters, bedded in the wall, which had evidently been rotted away at the bottom when the stone walls were built, and appeared to be of a great age.

In the Rev. J. C. Atkinson's delightfully interesting book entitled Forty Years in a Moorland Parish, mention is made of examples of this kind of buildings, to which he gives the appropriate name of 'Rafter-built houses,' existing in the Cleveland district, and the exact similarity of construction between these and the Derbyshire examples is rather remarkable. In the course of time these "rafter-built" houses were superseded by framed buildings, which required greater skill on the carpenter's part, as the framing of the walls had to bear the weight of the floors and roof instead of having merely to carry the feet of the small rafters, the timbers had therefore to be carefully mortised and tenoned together, and stiffened by diagonal braces; but in spite of their more careful construction, the frame-built buildings have in many cases, through the decay of the pins and tenons, become crippled and given way long before the older rafter-built buildings, which were not dependent upon the fastenings for their stability.

The question will naturally be asked, What is the age of these cottages? but to this I find it most difficult to give an answer with any confidence. It is, I think, safe to assume that they are older than the seventeenth century frame-built houses, many of which are, or were until recently, standing in close proximity to them, for it would scarcely be likely that the rafter construction would be used for houses after the more roomy framed work was in common use, even for farm buildings; but how much older they may be, it seems hard to say. It seems to me probable, however, that this would be the ordinary form of construction for small buildings in the country during several centuries, though the great similarity of all the examples might be brought forward as an argument against this; the existence of a timber building at Matlock, where stone and lime are in such close proximity, seems to point to an early period.

In conclusion, I must ask to be excused for occupying the very valuable space of the Journal with these short and fragmentary notes, but the subject of them seems to me to deserve more consideration than they have yet received, as they serve to bring before our minds the actual conditions of the lives of our humbler forefathers, and they display a skill in construction, with very rough materials and tools, as great in its way as that which erected the splendid timber roofs of the Norfolk Churches, and similar triumphs of mediæval carpentry with which we are familiar.

Melandra Castle, Derbyshire.

By ROBT. HAMNETT.

ELANDRA CASTLE is situated at Lower Gamesley, Charlesworth, in the ancient Parish of Glossop, Derbyshire. Melandra is a Roman name derived from the Greek Melandryon, which means "a herb among corn, with a white flower."* We know that the ancient Britons cultivated corn, and it is quite probable when the Romans selected this site for the station, the herb might have been so prevalent there as to induce the Romans to give it this name; but, according to William Thompson Watkin's Roman Cheshire, the proper name is Lerdotalia or Ledrotalia. It is, however, better known by the name of Melandra Castle. Glossop is surrounded by hills belonging to the British Alpine Range, and, prior to 1792, there were no turnpike roads through it, only pack-horse roads and footpaths, consequently, it was difficult of access, and, apparently, escaped the notice of antiquaries.

I am not aware that anything was known of its antiquities before July, 1771, when the Rev. John Watson, Rector of Stockport, visited Melandra Castle, and identified it as a Roman station. He wrote a letter to the Rev. Mr. Norris, Secretary of the Society of Antiquaries, London, describing his discoveries, which that gentleman read to the Society on the 10th December, 1772, and which appears in full—with a sketch of the plan of the station, and translation of an inscribed stone—in Vol. III. of Archæologia, 1775.

* Μελανδρῶον = the heart in oak timber. Perhaps so named from the abundance of stout oaks in the vicinity.—ED.

Mr. Watson, it is well known, was a trustworthy authority, being careful not to make any statement unless he had convincing evidence of its truthfulness, therefore, his letter is most important to us, as it gives a better idea of the station than we can form from its present condition. "The plough had not then defaced it, and its form could not be mistaken."

The form of the station was a parallelogram, with the corners rounded off; its extent, 122 yards by 112 yards; and the walls were twelve feet thick, their height, of course, not now being ascertainable, but sufficient, we may depend, to resist any sudden onslaught.

There were four entrances, and, most probably, an inscribed stone over each, as one was found by the farmer who farmed the land, a few years previous to Mr. Watson's visit. The farmer had this stone built over the doorway of his house, where it remained until 1842, when the farmhouse was pulled down and re-erected, the stone being again built in the wall, over a doorway, exposed to the weather, and there it remains to this day. By the way, the site of the station seems to have been a veritable quarry to the farmers in the vicinity for dressed stone, for most of the farm-houses, barns, out-buildings, and fence-walls in the neighbourhood contain considerable quantities of stone obtained from this Roman station, the nature of the stone and the peculiar manner in which it was dressed—by a kind of pick—making them easily distinguishable.

I have brought with me a plaster cast of the inscribed stone, also a photo of same. If you compare them with Watson's engravings in Vol. III. of Archæologia, you will perceive a slight difference—for instance, there is no dot in the centre of the O; Watson has a dot between L·V: it should be on the other side of the V; and the conjunction of the  $\pi$  are separated. I am not in a position to say it alters the translation, but it may be a point worth noting; however, Watson's translation has never been questioned, and it is thus: "Cohortis, Primæ, Frisianorum, Centurio, Valerius Vitalis"—that is, "Valerius Vitalis, commanding a century, or company of the first Cohort of the Frisians, was stationed here.”\*

Of all the numerous officers of the twentieth Legion—in the long period the Romans were stationed here—who commanded detachments Valerius Vitalis is the only one whose name we have any record of—such is fame!

The Right Honourable Lord Howard of Glossop is presenting a Technical School to Glossop, and when it is completed, I hope this Society will make such representations to his Lordship as will persuade him to have the stone removed from its present position—being on his estate—and placed in a suitable case in the Technical School, where it could be better and more conveniently seen, until such times as we have a regular, properly cared-for museum.

In 1832 a portion of a larger inscribed stone was found, and so little was thought of it by the finder that Captain de Holyngworthe, of Holinworth Hall, purchased it for 2s. 6d. I have, fortunately, a sketch of it, made from the original fragment by Mr. Ralph Bernard Robinson, author of Longdendale.

The stone was evidently of far greater importance than the one existing, the letters “I M P” indicating a more exalted personage, probably the name of the reigning Emperor when the station was built; unfortunately, since Captain de Holyngworthe’s death, all trace of the fragment has been lost.

Previous to the reservoir belonging to the Manchester Corporation being made at the Hague on the Cheshire side, the river Etherow was undermining the bank, and it was found necessary to build a wall to prevent its encroachments. For this purpose the workmen took away all the stone then lying at Melandra, and amongst them was another inscribed stone. One of the men employed had no knowledge of its antiquarian value, and built it in the interior of the wall, though a bystander remonstrated with him for so doing, using these words in the local dialect: “Thart puttin’ summut in new ut ull be wanted sum day.” A few days afterwards, Mr. Bennett Woodcroft, a gentleman visiting in the neighbourhood, hearing of the matter, went to the place and offered £5 if the workmen would recover the stone, but the clerk of the works would not permit the wall to be taken down, as the exact spot where it was could not be accurately located. I mention this, so that if at any future time it is found necessary to take down the wall, the stone may be looked for and taken care of. The other, and the remaining portion of what is called the Holyngworthe stone, remain yet undiscovered.

The station is situated, as many Roman stations are, at the confluence of two streams, the Glossop brook and the river Etherow, and on elevated ground. According to W. T. Watkin, the famous Roman Consul and General, Agricola, wintered at Chester in the year of 78 and the early part of 79, and took the opportunity of tracing the tributaries of the Mersey to their source. If this is true, which I have no reason to doubt, then he would come up the Etherow, and it was to him that Melandra Castle owed its existence.

The Etherow, before the Manchester Corporation took most of the water, was a river of much larger volume and dimensions than now, and must at the period of the appearance of the Romans have abounded with salmon and other fish, which would, of course, be acceptable to the Roman soldiers, furnishing them with sport and also a welcome source of food supply. The brook, the river, and the declivities protected the station on two of its sides, the other two sides being protected by deep ditches, part of which yet remain. The proximity of the British fortress at Mouselow rendered it absolutely necessary for a station here, and no better site, from a Roman point of view, could have been selected. It was not so elevated as to expose the garrison to the cold winds, so prevalent on the adjacent hills, and sufficiently far enough away from them to prevent—by judicious posting of sentries and picquets—being taken by surprise. The Druidical remains found in the neighbourhood, and the revelations of the bone caves and barrows in the Peak, are sufficient evidence to convince us that there must have been a large force of Britons inhabiting this part of the country, and as the country was well wooded, hilly, and almost inaccessible, many severe conflicts must have ensued before the Romans became firmly established.

There is a tradition in the neighbourhood that Mouselow Castle, the British fortress mentioned, was attacked by an enemy, whose nationality is not known, and that a dreadful battle took place. Certain it is that on the side which is most accessible there is a field, named in old deeds, "Almen's Death," and many remains of weapons of war have been turned up there by the plough. I have here a spear-head found during excavating operations, in the clay near to the castle. I am unable to say whether it is Roman or British, but of its antiquity there can be no doubt.

Another place near to is called Redgate, and tradition asserts that it is so called because of the blood which flowed down the bank. Watson visited Mouselow shortly after visiting Melandra—they are within a mile of each other—before the hill was planted with trees, and he describes it as a place of great strength, defended by ditches, which are even now plainly discernible. Whether the battle, which tradition says took place, was between the Romans and Coritani, or during Anglo-Saxon times, will probably never be known, but it is scarcely credible that the British fortress would be abandoned without an attempt at defence. That an attempt was made by the natives to drive the Romans from their camp is inferred from the battle-axes and other British weapons that have been found there.

In 1865 the tenant of the land was digging for stone, and he discovered one of the entrances to the station. The stones then unearthed are lying in the area of the station, and are of large size. There is a key stone of an arch, several cap stones, and pilasters. The workmanship is rude, what one might expect from unskilled labour, working under the direction of a mason. In several cases, where an attempt at ornamentation has been made, the workman, in measuring off his distances, has sunk the tool used too deep in the stone. The large size of the stones used, the width, and the extent of the walls, shows plainly that the station was a most important one, and their solidity proves that the Romans had fully made up their minds for a lengthened occupation.

I have here a portion of cement, or concrete, from Melandra, used for filling up the interior of the walls. It is composed of gravel and sand from the river bed, and united by magnesium lime from Ardwick, Manchester, which is another link in the chain confirming that Melandra was contemporary with the Roman forts at Stockport and Manchester. Whittaker, in his History of Manchester, 1773, says on this point, "In making the Roman mortar, the sand was mingled with the lime, unrefined by the screen, and charged with all its gravel and pebbles. On breaking it, some of the mortar appears to have been tempered with powdered brick; small fragments of the latter very prettily chequering the surface, and being thoroughly incorporated with the said substance. The lime was not derived from the hills of Buxton or Clitheroe, which have long supplied the town with that necessary fossil. The Roman is strikingly different from that of both in its colour, being of a much shadier and browner hue." Whittaker, when writing this description of the cement, had no knowledge that such a place as Melandra Castle existed, yet his description corresponds with this portion I found there. About two years ago during sewage operations at Stockport, a Roman brick kiln was discovered, also a large number of tiles and bricks of all descriptions. These correspond in shape, colour, etc., with the bricks and tiles found at Melandra, the latter having evidently been made there. They are made of Permean Marl and sand in various proportions. This kind of marl does not exist in the neighbourhood of Melandra, and is not to be found nearer than Stockport, at the spot where the brick kiln is.

In 1841, Messrs. Shepley, of Brookfield, had occasion to make a "race," "goyt," or "cut," as it is variously locally called, in connection with their mill dam, and discovered a stone coffin within a hundred yards to the east of the station. Among the débris was also a coin of Domitian, who was Emperor of Rome 81 to 96. If we take, then, into consideration, the nature of the Roman cement, the tiles, the date of the coin, and the probable visit of Agricola, we can fix the date of the erection of the station not later than from A.D. 77 to 84. Many coins of Domitian have been found in the area of the station, but have got into the possession of private collectors.

In January of the present year, Mr. John Hurdman, of Glossop, and myself, were walking round the area, when we noticed that a portion of the old fence wall had recently fallen down. On examination, we found in the foundation of the wall a brick, and on removing this from the soil we perceived some lettering which at first sight we took to be the word DRAIN, but on closer observation we found it was a Roman inscription "DRAIV." That it is Roman can scarcely be doubted; it is longer, wider, thinner, pressed from the narrow side, and composed of the glacial clay found on the site; the material is better tempered and burnt than any local modern brick—in fact, there was scarcely any brick used in Glossop fifty years ago, before the advent of the railway, stone being so plentiful at hand—the conjunction of the last two letters V, the known antiquity of the site, and the age of the fence wall, all being evidence in its favour.

Watson mentions seeing a gravel road leading from Melandra, and pointing towards Stockport, another road passing through the Hague and Mottram-in-Longdendale to Doctor's Lane Head, where it joined the great military road from Manchester to York. Another road, called the Doctor's Gate, passed through Glossop to the Roman station at Brough. This road was of great value from several points of view. It enabled reinforcements to be sent quickly right into the heart of the mountain fastness of the Peak; was a means of keeping the turbulent tribes in check; and was available for conveying mineral and other resources of the country to the various headquarters of the Roman legions. The road was paved with large stones, proper drains being made where necessary. A considerable portion of this road was used up to 1821, when the opening of the Sheffield turnpike road led to its disuse. In some places it is in excellent preservation, and worthy of a visit by members of this Society. Another road went to Buxton, where the Romans had baths, and where they probably sent their sick, using the place as a sanatorium. Watson states that the foundations of a large building, in the area 25 yards square, with walls  $4\frac{1}{2}$  feet thick, was distinctly traceable, and he is of opinion that it was the praetorium, the residence of the commander of the detachment and governor of the districts, the place where markets were held and justice dispensed. Watson also mentions a subterraneous stream of water. This issues some distance down the hill side, and from its direction evidently passes immediately under the centre of the station. There is another and similar one about one hundred yards to the west. I am of opinion that if this was examined, it would prove to be one, if not the main sewer. At one point the archway must have given way, as at this particular place the earth continually sinks in, and, being near to a footpath, the farmer is periodically filling the hole up with fresh soil; you can see the sand washed out by the water at the exit.

When the natives became reconciled to their lot, wolves, boars, deer, and bears being plentiful, the garrison would not lack for want of sport—hunting, fishing, bear-baiting, and hawking finding them in amusements to fill up their time when not occupied with military duties.

After some years of occupation, time-expired soldiers and colonists settled under the protection of the station, midway on the slopes of the surrounding hills, inter-marrying with the natives, and forming British-Romano settlements. Roman coins have been found in nearly all of the surrounding hamlets and villages. In 1838, in a field near Hooley Wood Quarry, two men, John Hyde Roberts and George Rolley, whilst removing the soil, discovered a considerable quantity of Roman coins of Billon. The coins were mostly those of Alexander Severus—one of which I have had lent me for this occasion—and Julia Maesa, all of them being of a later date than some of those found at the station. Nearly a century ago, whilst digging the foundations for a mill at Woolley Bridge, a beautiful Roman sepulchral urn of red earthenware was found. It remained in the possession of Messrs. Lees, the owners of the mill, until some years ago, when a careless servant knocked it from the mantel, and it was broken beyond repairing. Another one found on the site is in Warrington Museum, along with other curios from this ancient military position.

It has been stated by several historians that the plain at the foot and to the north of Melandra was at the time of the Roman occupation a vast lake, and that these people cut the hill at Best Hill, Broadbottom, thus letting off the waters and effectually draining the land. This is an illusion. In 1841, at Pym's Parlour, a deep recess in the rocks—called by the country people the Fairies' Cave—a few yards from the river edge, were found some old coins, one of them of a date, I believe, anterior to the Roman invasion. Had such a lake as I have mentioned existed, it would have been impossible for the coins, and the stone coffin found in Shepley's goyt, to have been where they were discovered. That a lake has existed there cannot be denied, but it was thousands of years ago.

Many Roman remains were found on the plain when the reservoir, previously mentioned, was constructed. Between the reservoir and Melandra Castle the Glossop Corporation are going to construct settling tanks in connection with their sewage works, and we may therefore anticipate important finds, and it is to be hoped the local municipal authorities will arrange for anything of historical value to be collected and preserved.

No systematic effort has ever been made to excavate and thoroughly examine the site of Melandra Castle. In 1863 or 1864, during the Cotton Famine, some men were employed in laying drains, about eight yards apart, across the area, being ordinary drainage operations and not for any antiquarian object, when they came across several querns and other remains, which were taken to Glossop Hall; but the coins found were pocketed, as were other small articles.

I am sorry to say that the inhabitants of the district, with one or two exceptions, have taken very little interest in Melandra Castle. There was scarcely one inhabitant in a hundred, until a few weeks ago, knew that such a place existed; however, the Vicars of Glossop, Whitfield, and Dinting, and a few other local gentlemen, are bestirring themselves, and if we could prevail upon some gentleman from this Society to come to Glossop and address a public or select meeting, on the advantages and importance of such societies as the Derbyshire Archæological and Natural History Society, there is no doubt you would have more support from the Glossop end of the county, and be the means of a local branch being formed, the members of which would always be alert to any find, and on the look-out for any fresh information relating to the history of the district and county. Reparation would then be made for our past neglect, and eventually lead to a thorough and exhaustive search being made, not only of the site, but also of the suburban buildings which evidently existed round Melandra Castle. The present is a most opportune time for excavating, as the tenant of the land is giving up his tenancy this month, and I am sure that the lord of the manor, who is a member of this Society, would willingly give his consent, providing the work was done under the direction of a competent person. Why should not an effort be made for this to be done? If this Society and the Lancashire and Cheshire Antiquarian Society were to join hands, assisted by a local committee, I am sure funds could be raised for the carrying out of this project. Much remains to be known of this ancient place, which only a careful and systematic search of the site will reveal.

I am sorry that an abler person than myself is not addressing you; my only excuse for my presence is that I am interested in these matters, and contribute my mite in the hope that someone with more time, ability, and resources will be aroused to take that interest in the antiquities of Glossop that they deserve. Should such be the case I shall feel amply repaid for my slight and humble effort in trying to explain to you what Melandra Castle is and has been.

Tapestry at Renishaw Hall.

By REV. C. KERRY.

SOME of the finest and largest tapestry hangings in Derbyshire are to be found in the stately rooms at Renishaw, the seat of Sir George Reresby Sitwell, Bart.

The principal suite consists of five hangings, of which three are suspended in the great Drawing Room, and the other two in the Ball Room. These are traditionally said to represent the "Triumph of Solomon," and to have been purchased in France by Sir Sitwell Sitwell when he was making the "grand tour" about a hundred years ago. He left Christ Church, Oxford, in December, 1789, or January, 1790, and, according to tradition, travelled abroad before his marriage in the summer of 1791. The whole of these hangings, which were probably placed in their present position on the completion of the great Drawing Room in 1803, were executed in the seventeenth century, at the atelier of Judoc de Vos, of Brussels, as may be seen by his name and mark on the lower sinister margins of the several pieces. The texture is singularly fine, there being no less than nineteen threads of the warp, and forty-eight threads of woof in one square inch of surface; an unmistakable proof of the infinite labour bestowed on this example. The seven magnificent hangings in the Queen's Gallery at Hampton Court, representing the History of Alexander from the cartoons of Le Brun, Louis XIV.'s minister of art, were woven by the same tapisier. Sir George Sitwell believes that the Renishaw tapestry is also from the designs of Le Brun, for the backgrounds and figures are French, and both the composition and the colouring suggest the hand of a great master. The de Vos family had long been established as tapestry weavers at Brussels. In the beginning of the seventeenth century the firms at Brussels included upwards of one hundred masters. As time passed by, the manufacture tended to become concentrated in the hands of a few families, who formed positive dynasties, and amongst these may be cited the family of de Vos. In the eighteenth century (writes Müntz in his History of Tapisstry), Josse de Vos, of Brussels, executed a replica of "The Conquest of Tunis," which is now at the Imperial Palace of Schoenbrunn, near Vienna. The original, now at Madrid, was designed by Jan Vermeyen, and executed for Charles V.

In the Great Drawing Room we have:—

1. The Triumph of Peace, measuring 18 ft. 4 ins. in length by 11 ft. 9½ ins. in height. The central figure in the design represents Peace as a Queen enthroned beneath a canopy awning attached to the branches of a tree. The monarch's left hand is placed upon the model of a temple, beside which lie the emblems of Royalty and Episcopacy, and with her right she extends her sceptre to a figure trampling upon swords, shields, quivers, bows, and other accoutrements of war, near which lie the crowns and sceptres of vanquished foes. Towards this figure she looks, averting her gaze from a triumphal car laden with military trophies which passes by on the left side of the throne, the horses being guided by a genius who aims his dart at the Queen. Before the throne lie various scientific and musical instruments, including the celestial and terrestrial spheres, violins, flutes, mandolines, a palette, a bust, a clock, compasses, and books; and on the right stand three sceptred figures, of whom one imposes her authority on a lion by her side; intended perhaps to show the effects of peace on the savage and unbridled passions of mankind. On the dexter side, two figures, male and female, are reclining: the former, a river god, crowned with sedges, and resting upon a fountain; the latter, guarding various fruits of the earth in her lap, and holding a sceptre in her right hand. In the left background a beautiful palace is shown, from which there is a long descent by richly decorated stairs and fountains; and on the other side extensive gardens laid out in the style of Le Notre, with parterres, fountains, avenues, and triumphal arches. The colours are harmonious and subdued, and the high lights here, as throughout the series, are woven in white silk.

2. The Triumph of Justice. This sheet is suspended upon the same wall, and measures 16 ft. 3 ins. by 11 ft. 10 ins. The principal figure, impersonating Justice, stands upon a festooned pedestal, and bears in her right hand an erect sword, and in her left a pair of scales evenly balanced. The projecting and circular base of the pedestal affords a seat for four female figures, representing the cardinal virtues: Truth, with her mirror, trampling upon a number of masks; Fortitude, bearing a column in her hands; Temperance, holding out a bridle towards the figure above; the fourth figure is crowned with bay or laurel. On the left, Wisdom, a female figure, seated upon a throne, holds the lamp of knowledge in her left hand, whilst behind her an attendant bears a sceptre surmounted by an eye refulgent with light. In front of the throne lie clasped books and open manuscripts. The background again gives a vast lay-out of fountained and terraced gardens, and in the distance a lake or canal is faintly seen. On the base sinister margin of this hanging (as is also the case with those in the Ball Room) the maker's name and the mark of the Brussels manufactory are shown.

3. The Triumph of Commerce. This sheet hangs over the mantel-piece.* It is the brightest and lightest of the series, but has, unfortunately, been cut at the lower margin in order to adapt it to its position. In the centre a female figure, her robe floating lightly on the breeze, advances from a large vessel moored near the shore; an arrow is in her right hand, and by her side a crocodile. In the foreground are several reclining figures occupied in admiring the treasures from distant lands—gems, pearls, coral, tortoiseshell, brightly coloured parrots, tropical shells, and richly chased vessels of gold—profusely displayed before them. The scene is laid amongst pastures and fountains, and in the background is a palace by the sea, with distant views of a town and mountains beyond.

The two remaining sheets are suspended in the Ball Room; one measures 15 ft. 6 ins. by 10 ft. 10 ins., and the other 15 ft. 10½ ins. by 10 ft. 11 ins.

4. The hanging near the door is a graceful and beautiful composition, which may be intended to represent "The Conquest of Earth" and its fruits, or possibly the arrival of the Queen of Sheba on her visit to King Solomon. In the centre a female figure crowned with flowers dismounts from a kneeling camel. With her left hand she swings a smoking censer, whilst in her right a wreath of flowers is supported upon the camel's haunch. Before her are vases of admirably rendered flowers, with melons, pomegranates, and other fruits scattered upon the ground. Behind the camel is seen a female figure seated upon a couch, overshadowed by stately trees. On the right, a prince (perhaps intended for King Solomon) approaches the principal figure with extended sceptre. He is followed by three sceptred princes, who are descending a flight of steps, protected by an awning from the door of a palace beyond. On the left of the design, a lady, followed by a trainbearer, approaches and points to two crowned turbans, lying upon a table, covered with a crimson cloth. In the background, a palace surmounted by a dome is visible between the trees on the right, while fountains, obelisks, and a picturesque cliff overhanging a town occupy the centre and left of the design.

5. The fifth and last of this series is the least intelligible. It seems wholly given to waters and fountains, and may perhaps represent "The Conquest of Water." In the centre is a princess seated, adorned with a feathery crown, and resting her right hand upon a sceptre. An attendant behind her, wearing a similar head-dress, holds out a shell into the jet of water which spouts from the nostrils of two horses of stone into a cistern beneath. The stream may be seen again issuing below from the mouths of three vessels, guarded by the figure of a river god, who is represented as crowned with reeds, and holding a kind of paddle in his left hand. The final receptacle is a lake or large fountain in the lowest foreground, and from the verge of this rises the pedestal of the structure upon which the central figure reclines against an oblong cistern. Behind, and standing by a couchant lion, is a female figure capped with a head-dress imitating an elephant's head, with tusks and extended trunk. In her left hand she holds out a fish towards the fountain, and with her right sustains a sheaf of wheat beneath her arm. On the dexter side of the hanging stands a majestic turbaned figure, whom another figure, in a sitting posture and holding a narwhal's horn, is addressing. In the background a vast layout of gardens and pastures leads up to terraces and yew arcades: the centre is occupied by an elaborate palace of fountains, with niches and statues, in front of which a large square pool of water is refreshed by the jets which descend from spouting dolphins of stone. This hanging also has the name of Ludocus de Vos, and the Brussels trade mark, concealed behind the frame in the lower sinister corner. Both these fine hangings in the Ball Room were carefully cleaned with breadcrumbs in the South Kensington Museum, in 1888, by Mr. F. W. Andrew, who is employed in the tapestry department there. The other three pieces in the great Drawing Room have never been taken down since they were hung at the completion of the room in 1803.

There are two fine examples of greeneries in a bedroom at this end of the mansion, which were evidently executed in the seventeenth century, and which may be coeval with the older part of the house. No weaver's marks are visible. The texture is not so fine as that of the hangings already described, and they may be of English workmanship.

Two more pieces are now in a store room—one of which has an interesting landscape, and is about twelve feet in length by four feet in height, and is well and neatly woven. The other is much faded, and seems to have been retouched, many years ago, in a few places with a brown dye, as if to revive the brown tints in the hanging. It is needless to say that the attempt has been an injurious failure.

Sir Geo. R. Sitwell writes :—" I think the two reclining figures in No. 1 represent Earth and Water, and I connect them in my mind with the subject of sheets 4 and 5.

" You admired the fineness of my hangings, but I don't feel sure that you appreciated as much as I do (perhaps possession inclines me to an exaggerated estimate) the beauty of design and colouring. I showed No. 4 in London to Sir W. B. Richmond, R. A., and he was in raptures over it. I feel sure that none of the tapestries now left at the Gobelins are equal to this set ; nor do I remember having seen any in my travels which could be said to be superior.

" These emblematic female figures, placed in stately gardens, seem to me to offer the perfection of decoration in tapestry, and I wish our modern makers would take the same motive, instead of offering us life-size figures with no background worth looking at.

" I have written this because I suspect you may be more in sympathy with the earlier tapestries, which are more curious and interesting, but not to be compared for decorative value as for art. In theory, it may be true that tapestries should not resemble pictures, and should not show a distant background ; but is there any adverse rule which some great artist has not shown us how to treat with advantage ? "

The Autobiography of Leonard Wheatcroft.

WITH NOTES IN BRACKETS [ ] BY REV. CHAS. KERRY.

ANOTHER interesting Derbyshire relic—the autobiography of Leonard Wheatcroft—has been placed in our hands for publication in this journal by the Rev. Nich. Milnes, to whose kindness we were indebted for the poems and memoranda of this Derbyshire worthy published in vol. xviii. of this Journal.

The little MS. of twenty-four leaves, and measuring 5 inches by 3 inches, is stitched in a brown calf binding, formerly secured by small clasps, and bearing the word “GALLEN,” with “1660” impressed or stamped on the first cover. As there does not appear to have been any original connection between the cover and its contents, and since no copy of any of Galen’s works would appear to have been in Leonard’s library, the name may be simply intended for G. Allen. A slip, probably intended for a sort of title page, has been inserted at the commencement, evidently by Leonard himself, inscribed:—

“A History of my Birth, Parantage
And Pilgrimage who was Bornē May the first 1627 and was Buried”—

[The hiatus has probably been supplied by his son, Titus.]

“ January 3
1706: and was clerk 36 years
Aged 79 years and 8 moenths.”

At the head of his autobiography, on the first page, we have—

Leonard Wheatcrofte of Ashover.”

“I was through God’s Providence borne upon May day in the yeare of our Lord God 1627, in the Raigne of King Charles the First. My father’s name was also Leonard, son to John Wheatcroft and Mary his wife, who was daughter to William Daine. My mother’s name was Anne. She was daughter to John Harrison and Mary his wife, and I was the firstborne to them both, who had in all 6 sonns and 3 daughters.

“Then did it please God that at forty years of age my father dyed of a fever, and was buried in Ashover Chirch yard on Saint Tantru’s day [St. Andrew’s] in the year 1648,—witnes his Toumbe [vol. xix. 42]. I was then almost 20 years ould; part of which time I was a Tayler with my father, and after his death I tought 4 of my brothers that trade.” [He appears to have been impressed with a sense of duty to his widowed mother and her charge as long as he might safely remain at home.]

“Then was there wars in England betwixt King and Parliament: then was father against son, and son against father, and brother against brother. Then did I run vp and downe the cuntry to save myselfe from being a soulger, but at last I was forced to take vp armes, and was a soulger ffor the space of 8 or 9 years. I shall say little of soulgers now, but tell you what I did, and what hap’ned in the Intrim [interim] and so go on.

“In the yeare 1649 I set y<sup>e</sup> Horse medow hedge, and the whiging [quickset] before the doore, and the first Sabath in May 1650, I began to be Clarke of the Church, in which place I continued for the space of 13 years. I was also the Parrish Regetr [Registrar], on both which offices I waited, but when occasion of soulgery tooke me off; for about 1653 I began to be a soulger.

“And in 1655 I went a wooing to my wife, and was above two years before I was married to her. I shall not tell you heare what hap'n'd in our wooing, for you may find it at large in my book of "Mirth and Melody" [see vol. xviii. 35, 40, etc.].

"In 1657 I was married, being May 20, by the Justis of Peace—it was then Oliver's Law. We had a great wedding for many dayes together. I had above two hundred and twenty messes to it, and in my Booke of accounts you may find what meate and drinke I provided to your admiration. [Unfortunately this book seems to be lost.]

"In 1651 (I should have said before), I planted an Orchard for Master Bourne. The year after, did my grandfather Harison dye, 1652.

"In 1657, I builded the parler and chamber over it, and in 1658, the shop: but before these, I builded my mother's buttry and paved the house: then I went up to Lundon. And after my retourne, I spent sum of my estate. Then did I let my house, and went to live at Boulsover in 1654. There did I live for the space of four years, in which time I planted one orchard for Esquire Huchingson and another for . . . of Duckmanton. I took there one malthouse and malted a great deale of barley; and there I had two children by my wife—John and David; but before I went to Boulsover, I had three children, Leonardus, Anna, and Ester; but as for the years and time that they were borne, I shall speak of (that) hereafter and place them altogather for memory's sake.

"In the year 1666, that was while I lived at Boulsover, I planted both Orchards at Overton Hall, made them their gardens, and [planted the] close hedges, and set several Wall Trees, and a codling hedge.

"Sumtimes at my trade, and sumtimes in planting and replanting, I spent my foure years time at Boulsover, and withal sixscore pound to y<sup>e</sup> hundred.

"So being resolved to retourne to Ashoure againe, I came ouer Jan. 4 1667, intending to take a house there, but could get none according to my mind. Then at my retourne Justis Woolhous dyed, upon whom I writ an Epitaffe which you may find in my booke of verses amongst severall others [see Journal xviii. 76], and after that I was busy about sum sutes and troubles that I was in, that I was forced to run and ride up and downe to seeke moneys, but get little, tho I stood in great need, for my wife was just at "bating of child" [at the point of confinement]. Not long after she was delivered of a son (Mar. 30, 1668) whose name was [called] David. He was christened April 14, at Boulsover. After that I went to Ashover againe, and there was an ancient maid dead whose name was Eline Bower upon whom I writ an Epitaff.

"After that, I toke a jorney above 50 miles to see sum freinds, and withall parson Chadwicke's lady then at Bakwell. So running up and downe, and being careless in spending what I got, and more, my goods was taken for rent, and I could never redeeme sum of them. Then was I forced to take 3 of my children ouer to Ashover and Winster for my freinds to take care of till I was better provided. I did endure many troubles for two years in 1667 and 1668. I was 3 times taken prisoner for debt, so that I was forced to make bad bargins for money, and first paune [pawn] then sell my land and Inheritance, so that at last I was forst [forced] to move the Parrish of Ashover for a house vpon the Common, but they would not graunt it because I had not absolutely sould all I had.

"I was at that time in sum Trouble concerning one Columbell who was arrested at Boulsoure, which caused me 3 jorneyes to Derby, 2 to Lunden, and 2 to Chesterfeild, whereby I suffered much damage, but the Partyes more, for they spent above 300 pounds a peece, and dyed wors than beggers.

"About Jan. 6, 1668, I and my man tooke in hand to go a jorney to Over-Haddon to see a woman that by Relation had receued noe food for the space of 40 weeks. With this maid I had much discorse of God, & Jesus Christ, of herselfe, & of her distemper. But no food she tooke meate or drinke for the space of many years after, as may be I shall hint of hereafter concerning her condition." [This was Martha Taylor, who it is said began to abstain from food on 22nd December, 1667, being in her 18th year. Her abstinence is said to have been caused by a blow received some years before. She underwent two watches, having been attended by some forty to sixty women who watched strictly night and day. One of these watches was appointed by the neighbouring townships, the other by the Earl of Devonshire. Four different pamphlets were published, one by Joseph Reynolds, and addressed to the Royal Society: the last extant is dated March 30th, 1669. By an entry in the Parish Register it appears she was buried June 12th, 1684, having survived the publication of the last pamphlet fifteen years. There is no account as to whether she was detected as an impostor, or whether she was a real sufferer, and having recovered, returned to her usual habits. It is probable some of these pamphlets might have fallen into the hands of the notorious impostor, Ann Moore, the fasting woman of Tutbury, who also is said to have been a native of Derby. The latter pretended to have lived without eating or drinking from 1807 till 1813, when her case was discovered to be a fraud.]*

“Jan. 21, 1668, I came to Boulsoore againe but I was resolved not long to stay there because they were base crosse Neighbours, so to Ashover I went againe. There did I take a house of John Farnworth at which house I lived 4 years. There did my wife begin to sell Alle, and so did continew for many years after. I took this house April 5, 1669, but stayed at Boulsover until April 17, on which day I and my wife and 4 of my children came to Ashover, where many of our ould Neighbours bade us hartily welcome home againe, tho’ our substance was but small then, for both my wife and I could make (possessed) but two pence in brasse at that time; but it pleased God I did soone fall to worke amongst my ould customers and get moneys againe.

“June 7. I went to Boulsoore for sum of my goods I had left behind. After I came home I went to Winster to fetch home the rest of my children, and soone after (June 24) was Ashover Wakes, [when] Mother Hawley and many more came to Ashover for to wellcome us to house again. In the same week I went towards Lundon to be an evidance for Cullenbell as I said befor. After my retourne, then to Derby 'size [assize] about the same [matter].

"After these long jorneyes I and my man went to a great bull-beating at Wensley; then to my mother-in-law's at Winstre, where I had much discours with my Relations. Some of these did [ap]poynt to meete me at Matlock Wakes which was about Sep. 2, 1669, and according to promis they came. There did my mother-in-law give me five pounds, with which I came merrily home. Then did my wife and I (Sep. 6) go to Boul-souer for some more goods, * which came home by a drought. †

"Then having a little set my house in order, and provided work for my sarvants, I had occasion to go to London againe; and upon Tuesday Nov. 23, I arrived there where I stayed till Nov. 27. All that time I spent in walking up and downe about Law matters. I had then a very fowle jorney by reason of foule weather frost snowe and raine.

"Dec. 11. I fetched more goods from Boul-souer and placed them at home.

"Then Dec. 27, 1669, I went with brother Samuell to his wedding at Trinity Chapell."

[This wedding is recorded in the Morton Church Register, for this chapel was in the old parish of Morton before Brackenfield was formed into a separate Ecclesiastical district. The entry is as follows:—"Samuell Whetcroft of Ashover and Ann Chadwick of Wirksworth were married by Licence 27 December 1669."

This ancient but now disused chapel lies in Brackenfield on the lower slope of an off-shoot of High-Ordish, one of the highest summits in the district. The approach to the chapel is about a hundred yards beyond "Mather's Grave," on the way to Knot Cross and Ashover from Brackenfield. It is now so embowered in trees that no distant view of it can be obtained. This old sanctuary was dismantled at the erection of the present Church of Brackenfield, where its ancient rood-screen may be seen attached to the west wall of the nave.

The font, a modern fluted bason (c. 1800) with its shaft similarly adorned, now stands on the vicarage lawn. Trinity Chapel is rapidly falling into ruin. It consists of one rectangular block with a continuous roof from east to west, covered with slabs of stone. There are only three windows—one at the east end and two on the south side, all square-headed with chamfered stone mullions, but without tracery. A large stone, which has been thought to have been the mensa of the ancient altar, lies under the east window within. A porch with a flat-headed doorway is on the south side. The fabric possesses a most picturesque bell turret with two openings of very Norman-like character, but hardly so early—it has, however, a quaint beauty seldom met with, and it is a pity that it should be destined ere long to become a thing of the past. A few of the old oak benches (rude forms, I believe, without backs) still remain in the building. There is no chapel yard, and no interments have been permitted to take place there.

The site for the chapel has been cut out of the rocky hill side, and the bell turret at the west end rises but a few feet above the slope of the hill.

The chapel appears to have been erected but a short time before the Reformation, perhaps about 1520—1530.

In the Churchwardens' accounts of Morton we find, 1634, "Item, given to a poore woman of Duffield upon Trinitie Sunday (the Wakes) at the Chapell by the consent of the P'shners there, which had her house burnt away—2<sup>s</sup>."

In vol. xix. of this Journal, p. 108, will be found the monumental inscriptions of the Revs. William and Peter Wilson, successively ministers of this chapel, on a high tomb in Morton churchyard.] Leonard continues:—

"After that I went to Winster and wrought there 7 dayes before I returned.

“Upon Jeul [?] July] 28, I went to a faire at Chesterfeild where I staid all night, and as I came hom I help'd my vnckell Anthoney Ragge to flit to his new hous which he had built in the 'Hostige': this was in Aprill 1670.

“In May after, I tooke a cow to the hire of my ant [aunt] Frances Norman, which did please my wife and children well, for they had had none to give them milk for 2 years before.

“Vpon Saterdag June 18, I went to Chesterfeild to louse [redeem] some goods I had pauned 2 years before and brought them home: the week after was Ashover Wakes, upon which Even (the Church is dedicated to All Saints) my wife was brought to bed of a daughter June 25th, 1670, whom afterwards we called Elizabeth.”

[I cannot reconcile the Eve of the Wakes Sunday with June 25th—for as All Saints' Day always falls on the 1st of November, the Eve of that festival would be on the last day of October. Can the Church have had a later dedication to All Saints, while the villagers retained an earlier dedication festival for their wakes? If so, it is probable that the first dedication of Ashover Church may have been to S. John Baptist (June 24th). Dr. Cox, in his Churches of Derbyshire, writes: “In more than one Directory for the county, Ashover Church is said to be dedicated to S. John, but on what authority we know not:—the Liber Regis, etc., etc., are unanimous as to its being under the protection (? invocation) of All Saints.” The Church evidently then was re-dedicated to All Saints at the extensive re-construction about the commencement of the sixteenth century, whilst the original dedication festival connected with S. John Baptist was retained.]

“Shee was baptized July 23 and my wife churched y<sup>e</sup> same day. After that I traveled many wayes vp and downe the cuntry, and at last strained my anckell to my much sorrow for many dayes, and upon my jorney Sep. 25, I was lost in my way, and at last I found a marke upon the mores, vpon which marke I writ this verse heare following:—

“Great Monement for my content
 I’le rest me heare a while ;
 Had’st thou not beene, for me to’ve seene,
 I’d e wandred many a mile.”

“After I had rested awhile, the mists cleared up, and it ceased from snowing.” [The track over the moors was clearly obliterated by the snow storm, and hence our traveller missed his way. This will form the key to an otherwise unaccountable proceeding of Leonard’s further on.]

“Then I set forwards againe, and after I had travelled about 4 or 5 miles, I arrived at that famous house called Chatsworth, where for a certaine time I stayed to behould the Beauty and rare Work-man-ship of it. And from thence I went to Stoney Middleton where I stayed for a certaine time to refreshe myself and ease my weary limbes : and from thence to Padley where I met with some freinds y<sup>t</sup> I had long sought. My business with them was to borrow money, but none would they lend unless I would mortgage land to them for it. So finding noe good to be dun, I returned home againe. That jorney was about 30 miles. Then did my son Leo and I go to Winster, and accoynted my mother Hawley with it, and she paid y<sup>e</sup> debt : it was 5 poundes ; so we cum merrily hom, and for a memoriall we erected by the way 4 heapes of stones betwixt Matlock and Ashover which we judged would stand to many generations : this was done Oct. 5, 1670.”

[The first impression this apparently romantic act naturally causes is, its manifest absurdity. Leonard, however, had only just been lost in a snowstorm on a bleak and desolate moor, and was only reminded of his exact locality by some familiar stone ; and anyone who is acquainted with the way (then an almost unbeaten track) across Tansley Moor, between Matlock and Ashover, must be struck with the almost patriotic spirit shewn by Leonard in the erection of these Winter land marks, to guide the traveller along the snow-hidden tracks. It was done as an act of thanksgiving, and for the good of the general public. Whatever may have been his faults and his improvidence in the waste of his time, in wakes and fair-going, this most unselfish and thoughtful act raises him at once above the ordinary level, and places him among the honorable list of public benefactors.]

“Upon Oct. 31, I went to Bousouer againe, it being the 19th time that I had been there since I brought my wife and children from thence. The reason I went so often thither was because I had some goods left there, and moreover, I wrought for Justis Chadwick and some others.

“Vpon November 23, 1670, I, with severall more of the Parrish of Ashover, went to Derby to give our voats for a knight for ye shire, whose name was William Sacheverill, of Morley; but there was another stood against him, whose name was Esqr. Varnon. I stayed a whole weeke before ale was dun, in which time I writ this prophesie—

“Shout out, brave Blades, I am for Cheurill, Let Varnon’s friends do what ye can or will,
He is our voat, whose voat for us will be,
Pleasing to us and to his Maiestee,” &c. *

“These verses are in my booke of poetry, with another prophesie of verses which I writ in the year 1678, when he and my Lord Cavendis was chosen againe. I also writ a booke of divinity, called by the name of ‘The Bright Starre of Love.’ I was one-and-twenty years before I had finished it for the Pres.

[This work is not extant, nor is it probable that it was ever published.]

“Nayther was I negligent in other affairs, for, for many years I writ down in a book all my daly expenses: that was a great trouble to me to looke over againe and behould my vanity and folly.

[Well done, Leonard! He did not flinch the unpleasant task of beholding himself in the mirror of his recorded frailties. Retrospection is a duty too often neglected.]

* (See Journal xviii., p. 48).

"But as for my daly travills and idle jorneyes to and fro, they came to above 550 miles a yeare, which I believe I went for above 20 years together, as my accounts shewed me.

"Dec. 25, 1670. Being Christmas Day I went to pay for a stacke of hay I had bought at Tupton. After that, in the time of Chrismus I went with a freind and kinsman of mine vnto one Francis Steevinsons who had a mind to sell his land, for which we bad him 400 and 60 pounds, but it would not be taken vnles my freind would give 20 pound more, which he would not, and so we parted. But he sould it for les after, and now goes vp and down the cuntry like a begger.

"Jan. 1. I fell to worke and rought very hard till Feb. 19.

[Perhaps Leonard's retrospect of time wasted had inspired better resolves for the new year. A closer application to the needle seems to have been the result for a time; but a little respite from the board was now no doubt thought desirable.]

"That day I fetched Mr. Daykin (of Stubben Edge) a vine and a cherry tree from Bateman's [? of Youlgrave] so I continued gardening till Feb. 28. That day being Chesterfeild faire day, I, like a bad lad, went to it, and staid there all night.

"March 7, being Fassen-Tuesday [Shrove Tuesday] my wife and I according to our ould custom went over to Winster to se our relations and freinds.

"March 11. I had sum notions of being clarke of the Church of Workesworth, and the 16th day I went over to speak to sum freinds of whom I had good hopes of the place, but preveled not.

"June 4, 1671, my wife and I went over vnto Winster againe to the christening of my Brother Robard's child whose name was Eliz. After that I rought hard at my trade till July 25. That day I thought to have built me a house at Sir William's Well [probably a corruption of St. William's Well], but our goodly Parson Obediah—y<sup>e</sup> small profit—would not suffer it, because I had pulled down his father's 'Intacke' [enlclosure of waste land] in Asher Hill. Then did I fall on my owne ground and began to rid for a house stid, in a place which I call now by the name of Hockley. But how that will prove, you shall heare more here-after.

“So going on with my trade and with my gardening and ridding, I writ down these questions following :

1. What is the Reason that one man is not like another in Phisogmony? [Physiognomy.]

2. What mettall is the sight of the eye made of?

3. Why have men Beardes and women none?

6. What is the cause sum men and women stut? [Stammer.]

7. What is the cause sum men and women wharl? [An inability to pronounce the letter “R.”]

8. What is the cause we dreame of things wee never saw, or knew, or ever heard of?

10. What is the cause of our yoaning [yawning] when we see another yoane?

11. What is the cause a cat never puts her taile betwixt her leggs?

13. What creature hath the least pleasure in the world?

14. What is the cause some children are hare-shorne, and others mis-shapen?

17. What is y<sup>e</sup> cause a swine goes not like another creature that is yoak’t, but hits is yoake w<sup>t</sup> his fore-feet as he goes?

18. What is y<sup>e</sup> cause that a goose stoopes when she goes thorow [through] a high doore?

20. What is y<sup>e</sup> cause a man swings his arms when he goes by the way?

21. Why doth a dogge hold up one leg when he pisseth?

22. What is y<sup>e</sup> cause a swine will cry when his belly is full?

23. Why doth a dogge hould up a fore-foot when he listeneth?

24. What is y<sup>e</sup> cause that a “shirm-but” or “clock” lights most in a Cow tourt?

29. What is the cause a dogge shews his love most in his taile?

[There are thirty of these questions, but some are better omitted.]

“Aug. 26. I went on sum busines to Matlocke, and upon Aug. 31 I went againe to y<sup>e</sup> Wakes, where I met with one Antoney Souter with whom I bargined to plant an orchard, and vpon Sep. 25 I began. On that day I removed 45 trees, and Oct. 5, 14 trees at Mr. Coates garden. The 16 day, I tuned the Virginalls at Overton.

[A virginal—either so called from the Virgin Queen, or because it afforded musical recreation for the unmarried—was the precursor of the spinet, as the latter was of the harpsichord, the forerunner of the modern grand piano—but with this difference, the vibration of the wires of the earlier instruments was produced by pointed quills inserted in extremities of the key rods. The leathered hammers are a more modern invention. Col. Coke, of Brookhill, possesses the spinet (perhaps from the word “spinster”) used by Miss Chaworth, of Byron celebrity.]

“Upon the 25 of August, my wife and I went to Will. Hibard’s to a feast of Crispin where we was merry that night.

“So in gardening and Tayleryng I spent my time: till the 4 day of Feb. 1671, being Sunday, I with my wife and 2 children went over to Winster, to brother Ralph’s wive’s churching (of her daughter Betty). There we were forced to stay till Feb. 12 before I could get them home by reason of a great snow that then did fall.

“After our retourne, I went to Chesterfeild Faire, which was then Feb. 28, 1671. There I did buy of one Richard Cempe [Kemp] 52 quarters of malt, and a horse of John Buxton my brother; the malt was at 20<sup>s</sup> the quarter all y<sup>e</sup> yeare; t’horse price was 37<sup>s</sup>.

“Mar. 26, 1672, I bargined with John Farnsworth for his house another yeare till I had made mine ready, for which I was to pay three pound seven shillings the yeare. Wedensday after being Apr. 17, was a fast day for our preparation against y<sup>e</sup> Duch [Dutch].

“July 10, 1672, I and my wife besides 100 more went to Ashley Heay to welcome Brother Toby and Sister Sarah to house, who was then lately married.

[Compare this with the festivities at Leonard's own wedding celebrated for eleven days, during which two hundred persons were hospitably entertained (Journal xviii. 42).]

"At my retourne my son Leo and I went to Mr. Sleight, where we made a bed and 12 chears in 6 days.

[Besides the inventory of Books (printed in vol. xix.) there was another of joiner's tools—with lathes and various chisels, which must have belonged to Leonard, who seems to have been an all round man, and highly accomplished in almost every useful art—tailoring, gardening, tuning virginals, carpentering, turning, &c., &c.]

"Then I went to Mr. Coates to dresse him a Jacke, and cord some beds, and the like. ["Jacke"—either a soldier's leather jerkin, or perhaps a jacket. May it be a leathern jug which had become unstitched?—a black jack.]

"All this while my Bulding was going forwards, and I seeking out for timber and other materials as framing of windows and doores till Oct. 27, when I did finish Antoney Souter's orchard at Tansley.

"You may heare take notis that in all this discorse I have said nothing of soulgery, for I writ all my doings and actions in another booke. I was soulger in the dayes of King and Parliament, and all Oliver's dayes till the King came in againe, which was Charles 2, who of his clemancy and goodnes granted to us all (excepting those who were excessary to his father's death) an act of indemnity, &c.

"Till 1673, and all that yeare I did many things of noate; I writ a Catechisme titeled 'A Free Gift to Ashouer Free Schoole,' and other memorable things now in writing.

"Mar. 26, 1673, I set that Sick-a-more at the 'Rodd,' and upon May 2 after, I came to my ould house againe which I had mortgaged to one Antoney Tourner, but like a good lad, I sould it about 2 years after, for I was in sum debt and nothing would serve crrditors but Money, Money.

"And moreover, the same day, I came to my house againe, and my wife fell a labour and was brought abed of a son whose name we called Sollomon, May 2, 1673. So then being arived at my owne house againe, I ceased to buld me a new one, but repared my ould one which was left me foule, and out of order, so as five pounds did not make it good againe; for one beay of my barne was fallen, besides windowes swat [knocked] all in peeces.

HOUSE BUILT BY LEONARD WHEATCROFT, ASHOVER, 1676.

“In 1674 I began to write another booke called ‘The Memory’s Recreation,’ but if I live to make it out, you will all be better satisfied and I cumended ; however, the copy of it you may find among the rest of my writings in my Libry.

“Oct. 2 being Friday, 1675, was my wife brought abed of a daughter whose name we call Maddum Sarah.

“My wife continued all this while a brewing, and I wrought and did what I could, so that it pleased God we did a little recover againe, and got ourselves and children close [clothes], paid sum debt, and so by degrees gained our freinds again.

[Keen observer of the world! When money goes friends go too ; but with recovering prosperity they gradually return.]

“I put Leo and Ester to Darby to learne sum better worke and Breeding, after that to Nottingham. In the meane while I was taking care of some water workes which were then at Youlgreave, in which I had some share, and for three or four years I was imployed about that business, of which I shall say more hereafter.

“In the year 1678, Blessed be God, I was able to give, as before I was willing to receive, for in that yeare I gave money towards bulding of Paul’s Church, in Lunden, which y<sup>e</sup> Papist Plotters had destroyed and bournt by fire before, in y<sup>e</sup> year ’70.

“In the yeare 1679, the Engeneare, James Wass by name, came to Youlgreave, to dreane our waterworks, but his engine would not do it, so was I and many more much damnified by it, and he likewise to the vallew of 300 pounds. In that yeare, July 4, was my wife brought abed of a son, whom we called Titus, he the 5th son and the eleventh child. But to tell you all their names that are now alive, and when they were borne, and under what planet, is as followeth (Aug. 12, 1679) :—

1. Leonardus was Borne May 30, 1659, about 2 o’clocke in the afternoone.
2. Anna was Borne July 29, 1661, being Munday in the afternoone about 5 a’clocke. Then did Capricor rule.
3. Ester was Borne Novem. 16, 1663, being Wodensday in the afternounge about 3 a clocke. She died March 16, 1751, aged 88. [The obit. in another hand.]

4. John, my second son, was Borne June the 14, 1666, between the hours of 11-12 in the night. Then did Aris enter.

5. David, my 3 son, was borne Mar. 30, being Munday, about 6 a clocke at night. Then did Pissis enter.

6. Elizabeth, my 3 daughter, was borne June 25, 1670, being Saterdag betweene y<sup>e</sup> howers of 7-8. Then did Aquaris rule. She died Octo. 3, 1751, aged 81. [Another hand.]

7. Sollomon, my 4 son, was Borne May 3, being Friday morning about one a clocke. Then did Aris enter in y<sup>e</sup> yeare 1673.

8. Madum Sarah, my 4 daughter, was Borne Octo. 2, 1675, being Friday morn between the hours of 6-7. Then did Jupiter rule.

9. Titus, my 5 son, was borne July 4, 1679, being Friday morne about one a clocke. Then did Vanus rule.

“After Titus was borne, the same year, 1679, I planted an orchard for Mr. Robert More, of Winster, wherin I set (with wall trees and others), above 200.

“From thens I went to Newhaven Faire where I was never before, which faire is alwaies upon Saint Luke day. That faire standes most by sheepe. It is held Oct. 18.

“After that, I went to Lenton Faire, to see two (of my) children that lived at Nottingham where I had a long cummission with Mr. William Gladwin and severall other gentellmen for 2 dayes and 2 nights together. And at my retourne I and my wife went over to Winster unto a christning of a daughter of my wife's brother, John Buxton—called Mary.

“From thence, my son Leo and I went to Haddon where we stayed all night, and gave unto them sum verses of y<sup>e</sup> death of that Honourable Lord John Manners, Earle of Rutland, as you may find them (among severall others) in my Booke of Poetry. [See vol. xviii., 77-78.]

“After that, I went to Stanton to dress an orchard for Mr. Colton, where I was 4 dayes, and at my retourne hom, I and my wife went to Bonsali, to John Raggs, to the christening of his second child.

“Then did fortune so favour my daughter Ester at my retourne, that upon Apr. 9, 1679, I went with her to sarvis to a place called Routhorne, near Hardwick Hall, where she lived with one John Hardwicke for the space of 2 years.

“From thence I went along to a towne called Carlton, in Nottinghamshire, where my daughter Anna lived. From that place I brought her to one Mr. Horns, of Butterly, Apr. 13.

“So having settled her there, I returned hom againe, doing severall workes of necessity, till at last the Injenere as I tould you before, came to Youlgreave againe, being May 15, 1680. Then did he begin with wheeles and trickes that summer; but all did worke no effect that I saw. So leaving him, as I came hom July 20, I set up 3 heapes of stones for hey-way markes betwixt Matlock and Ashover, and about Aug. 2 I went to Youlgreave againe to pay my grove [draining] charges, where I stayed all night. The next day did Mr. Bourne and Mr. Daykine cum to Youlgrave, and did informe me that Adam Cowlshaw was dead, and tould me if I would make hast hom I might very well be Clarke of y<sup>e</sup> Parish again, to whose words I gave heed, and hom I went, and speaking to sum freinds, they did persuade the parson to entertain me, which he did, so as I entred vpon the office both of Clarke and Saxton August 6, 1680; and vpon the 9 day I began to teach Scoole, and had many schollers for the space of 2 years. In which time I went little abroad, only at Crismus I went to see my relations and friends, and what in seeing them and gathering of my clark-wages, I spent that Cristmus; and Feb. 4 my son Leo and I, each of us, went with ‘abourne’ [a burden] of trees to Winster and Brassington, to one Mr. Buxtons, who did very honestly pay me for them.

“Then upon Feb. 24 I drest Edward Hall’s orchard, of Houngate. Then did my son Leonard desire me to suffer him to take a journey to Lunden, which I granted; and vpon Munday, March 11, 1680, I went with him agatward for the space of 7 or 8 miles, and Ester with me. So when we parted, I went with Ester to her master's house, that was 8 miles more. The next day I came hom, and finding all well, the 15 day I went to Chatsworth upon sum businis for my master.

“After this, my daughter Anna came from Mr. Horn's, having served her whole yeare, and staying awhile at hom, I went with her to servis againe to Mr. Wollhouses, of Glapwell, being Apr. 20, 1681, where shee was liked very well, and so much of her.

“Since then, I stirred very little abroad, but only to feast and bankit [banquet] at nighbours houses, at weddings, and christnings. Indeed one day I went to see my sister Anne at Barlo, who lay sore, sicke, and weake, and another day to see my sister Mary, who lay in, and one day to see an aunt at Chesterfeild.

“After awhile I went to see my daughter Anna againe, but not before Aug. 11, and when I came home, I went to Derby with Mr. Couper, Aug. 18, the next day to Bakwell.

“Vpon Sept. 5 I had occasion to go to Chesterfeild, where I met with a bone-lace-weaver, with whom I bargined to take a daughter of mine apprentis, Elizabeth by name. So for 3 pounds 10 shillings we agreed, and bound she was, Sep. 14, being Chesterfeild faire day, for 4 years. But of her, more as occasion serves.

“Oct. 18, both I and my wife went to se our two doughters, Anna and Ester, at Glapwell and Routhorne, where we was very rarely entertained, and our children very much made of, to our joy and coumfort.

“And after our retourne we both went to Winster, it being Dec. 3, to se our parents and freinds, and after our retourne came both our doughters to se us, it being Crismus, and after 3 or 4 dayes sporting was ended amongst their breethren and freinds, so they all parted to their severall places of aboade.

“Jan. 6, I and Mr. Hodgkinson [probably Mr. Will, of Overton], went to Chatsworth, and on Jan. 30, we went to Barlborough, where we bought many trees. Then came we to Staly [Staveley] where we bought more, and to several other places we went for trees of all sortes for to furnish a plantation about a new hall, which was new bult, called 'Clatercoates.' In which orchard and garden I planted in 1681 and '82 above 200 trees.

[This house is still standing, and is a very picturesque structure, with stone mullioned windows, ball-crowned pinnacles on the gables, etc. It stands by the way leading from Mill Town to Brackenfield.]

"The next bout I had of sporting was to brother William's wedding, March 7, 1681, where we spent the day very joyfully in myrth and melody. He was married at Morton to Elizabeth Marriet.

[ "William Wheatcroft and Elizabeth Marriout were married by licence, 10 March, 1681."

Morton Register.]

"After that I heard from my son which lived in Lunden that he lived so well, and that he had a mind to have his brother John to cum vp to him, and that he would provide him a master, to which I and my wife gave consent to his jorney, and with all speed we got him ready, and towards Lunden he went Aprill 6, 1682. He had a very good jorney thither, and was well entertained both of his vnckell and brother and other freinds. So after a little tryall he bound himself for 4 years as appears by his letters to me. He was bound April 20, 1682. He was to have 2 pounds the first yeare, and 3 the second yeare, and 4 y<sup>e</sup> third, and 5 pounds the last yeare, meat, drink, washing, and lodging, and some of his M<sup>r</sup> ould close, all which I liked well: and so much of him at present.

"But againe, John had not lived w<sup>t</sup> his M<sup>r</sup> above halfe a yeare but he dyed. Then did his vnckell John tak to him, and as a 'club' * he served him for 3 years.

"All that time he was with him till he cum down w<sup>t</sup> his brother Leo to se his relations in the cuntry. In the interim all my doughters came to see me, but still, I went no ways from hom but about my Clarkes concearns.

“In 1682, Jan. 12 I planted Thomas Bower of Gorse-hall [a fine old stone house in the valley opposite Knot Cross] an orchard. In that yeare my daughter Elizabeth's Dame dyed. Then was I at an 'on plus' to seeke for another for her. And vpon Feb. 28, I went to Chasterfeild faire, where I lighted upon another dame one Mary Jenings to whom I bound her for 2 years, and sowne after she dyed, then my doughter came hom almost halfe a yeare. Then I went to see my doughter Anna at Glapwell, where I stayed grafting and planting for the space of 3 dayes.

“Then came I hom, and being perswaded by my neighbours that I would take upon me to teach a scoole, so I did, beginning May 1, '83, and vpon May 26 I went w<sup>t</sup> my son David to Chesterfeild to be a Tayler w<sup>t</sup> one Will. Webster, w<sup>t</sup> whom he stayed one yeare. This was on Sep. 8 in the yeare 1684.

“After that I followed my occasions at hom, till at last I, not finding myself well, I sent to my souns at Lunden desiring to see them before I dyed. So according to my desire and their mother's, they came down to vs August 15, 1685. Then all the rest of my children com from their servises to give them the meeting whom they had not seen in 4 years time.

“So after they had rested awhile with me and told me all their trautils and adventures and cheared up their parents Mournfull sperits, we all concluded to go to our brother Robert Hawley's to a Wakes which was there at that time, Sep. 4.

“After that, Anna went to live at John Thweates July 6, 1685, where she stayed for one yeare.

“Then did my doughter Betty goe to live with one Catrin Balme for 2 years. She was hired Oct. 26, 1685. And David was hired againe by my son Leonardus to one Samuell Higgins a London Taylor for 2 years Dec. 30, 1685. This year being Feb. 27, my son Leo and I went to Hather-seige where we beheld the grave where they say Little John was buried, which is 14 foot in length. After that we came to behould the famous hall of Chatsworth, where we was well received, and withal had the happynes to view the house within, and without, which was most amiable and famous to behould. At last, coming to behould those admirable gardens and platformes, and those new-invented water-workes, I called to mind that I wanted my Anchent and much admirable crag : but finding that to be all gone and destroyed, I could forbere no longer, but immediately writ its Farewell, as you may find in my book of vesses—towards the later end.

“March 7, 1685, My son Leonardus was minded to go towards Lunden againe, and then did all my children come together againe to take leave of him with severall more of our Relations to all our coumfort. The next day, taking his jorney forwards, we all departed to our severall places.

“After that, John (having recovered from his sickness) and I had occasion to go to Glapwell and Boulsouer to see his godfathers and godmothers, where he was borne. There we were July 8, 9, 10, 1686, and on Feb. 3 John went to Lunden again where he stayed.

“And after him, David went Feb. 24, 1686, where he stayed waiting on King James the 2, to be touched by him for his infirmity called the King's Evil. There was he touched twice by him, but was never the better at his retourne.

[NOTE.—The office used at the healing was first compiled in the reign of Henry VII. The ceremonial used by Queen Anne was shorter than that used by her predecessors. The power of touching was also exercised by the son of James II. as James III. in the hospitals at Paris, and by Prince Charles Edward at Edinburgh.

In January, 1683, a proclamation was issued by the Privy Council and ordered to be published in every Parish in the Kingdom enjoining that the time for presenting persons for the “Public Healings” should be from the feast of All Saints (Nov. 1) till a week before Christmas, and after Christmas till March 1, and then to cease till Passion Week.

The service is printed in Sparrow's Collections of 1685 at p. 165.

Two Gospels were used—the first S. Mark xvi. 14. During the reading of this the King laid his hands on those presented (kneeling) at the words, "They shall lay hands on the sick' and they shall recover."

During the reading of the second Gospel taken from S. John chap. i. 1, at the words "That Light was the true Light," &c., the afflicted were again presented unto the King upon their knees, and the King "put his gold" about their necks.* Then followed the lesser Litany, Pater Noster and certain versicles, followed by "O Almighty God, who art the Giver of all health, and the Aid of them that seek to Thee for succour, we call upon Thee for Thy help and goodness mercifully to be shewed unto these Thy servants, that they being healed of their infirmity may give thanks unto Thee in Thy Holy Church through," &c., &c. "The grace," &c.]

"And when David was com hom, he and I went to see my sister Sarah at Shottle where she dwelt; and by the way a woman tould us how shee was cured of that disease: and after she was cured she was wed, and had 4 children, and never a one of them ever had that distemper. I saw the great scars that was upon her neck and throte. Her receipt was as followeth:—

"That a man might go to a dead woman or a woman to a dead man (as shee did) and with their dead hand touch all their affected or sore places, saying these words "He that send thee, I pray God mend thee." That must be done, and (these words) said 9 times over—which he (David) did Dec. 26, 1687.

* A coin placed in a little pouch and hung round the neck. Dr. Daines Barrington tells us of an old man who was witness in a cause, and averred that when Queen Anne was at Oxford she touched him whilst a child for the Evil. Mr. Barrington when he had finished his evidence asked him whether he was really cured. Upon which he answered, with a significant smile, that he believed himself never to have had a complaint that deserved to be considered as the Evil, but that his parents were poor—and had no objection to the bit of gold.

[Scott in his Discovery of Witchcraft, p. 137, gives the following:—"To heal the King or Queen's Evil, or any other soreness in the throat, first touch the place with the hand of one that died an untimely death: otherwise, let a virgin fasting lay her hand on the sore—repeat certain words—and then spit three times upon it."]

"But he (David) being so far gone by that distemper continued till Oct. 15th, 1688, then dyed. But severall since have been cured by doing and saying as aforesaid.

"Vpon Oct. 9 did my daughter Ester go towards Lunden, and I went with her as far as Nottingham.

"In the mean time my brother John dyed Aug. 1, and his wife not long after.

"Then did another daughter of myne, Anna by name, take a journey into Yorkshire Aug. 15, 1687, where she had not lived above 2 years, but she was married to one John Ingle, a farmer living in the Towne of Barwick near Castellford. In the same yeare 1687 I did bind my son Sollomon to my cuzen John Wheatcroft for 2 years to be a Tayler. In the mean while, my wife Elizabeth dyed, viz. March 3, 1688, whose Elegy you may find and David's also in my Book of Poetry. [See Journal xviii. 75.]

"In the yeare 1690 my brother William's wife Elizabeth dyed in childbed. She was buried Feb. 19, 1690.

"My son Titus begun to work at the Tayler trade in the yeare 1690, and Anna had a child borne July 2, 1695.

"My eldest son Leonardus was wed to one Ellen Pirkin, of London, a widdow Feb. 9, 1690, and upon May 29 I went to his honours Parpoynts where I presented to him verses of his Birthday, who veri well rewarded me. [Samuel Pierpoint of Oulecoates, Journal xviii., 73].

"In the yeare 1691, my daughter Anna and her husband John Ingle came to see me at Ashover Wakes, and I was as glad to see them as they me. And in that yeare I bulded y<sup>e</sup> fabrick upon the top of Ashover Hill upon which I made a song which you may find in my Book of Poetry.

[This song does not appear among the selections in volume xviii. of this Journal, but it is in Leonard's MS. It has no particular merit, but is rather roisterous, and full of contempt for those who had made sport of his romantic undertaking.]

“That yeare also was my second son John wed to a widow in London. Her name was Anne . . . . Dec. 22, 1691. Upon New Years day after, I went to brother Hawleys to the christening of his child Dorathy (the fourteenth child).

“In the yeare 1692, my son Leonardus and Hester came from London to see me, for they had never been since their mother died. So in sorrow they came to the place of their birth. They came Aug. 7, and upon Aug. 26 we went to see my daughter Anna at Barwick in Elmet in Yorkshire, where we found all very well and in good health, blessed be God for His mercies to vs all, but we did not retourne hom till Aug. 31. Then I went with Hester as far as Mansfeild towards London which was Sep. 19, 1692. The same day was brother William wed to one Jane Butler of Chesterfeild.

“After that I receved a leter from London that my son John's wife was brought a Bed of a daughter whose name was Catrina Oct. 19, 1692.

“Sowne after, my owne Mother fell sick. She then had beene blind above 4 yeares. She dyed Mar. 12, 1692. She was of age fourscore and eight. She had 9 children—6 sonns and 3 daughters, and when she dyed she was mother to 6 of them, and Grandmother and Greatgrandmother to fourscore and 3.

“Not lounge after, I had occasion to go from hom, and coming late, lousing my way fell down a rocke of stone, broake my head in 3 places, and broake 3 of my ribs. There I lay all night, very lickly to dey, but it pleased God after a lounge sickness and sore sides, I recovered againe. In the meane time my daughter Anna sent for her sister Betty to be with her when she lay in. She went to her April 4, 1693. And Anna was brought a bed of a daughter May 12, 1693, whose name was called Elizabeth.

“And when it pleased God I did recover of my fall, I was resolved to jorney againe and to vizit ail my brothers and sisters.

First I went to my brother Samuells, then to Solomon Sheldons who married my sister Mary May 6, '93. Then to my sister Sarah Chadwick's, where I had not beene of 5 years before. This was July 4, 1693.

[We must remember that Leonard was now 72, and a widower, and as his accident confining him to his home so long, occurred between October, 1692, and the following May, he must have greatly enjoyed the needed change, and the society of his brothers and sisters.]

"My next travill was to Winster to see brother Robert Hawley. There I stayed one night July 7, 1693.

"Againe, Aug. 21, Brother William, Brother Samuel, and myself and several more of my Relations to the number of 25, met at one of my Relations near Shefeild, whose name was Edw. Gill where we was rarely entertained. The next day to Shefeild, there were we all "sivily" [? civilly or similarly] merry with more of our relations for the space of two dayes. And after our retourne I stayed 'about hom maney dayes traueilling no further than oure next market townes, in which time (which was no less than one whole yeare), both I, and all my Relations 'I praise God,' were in good health. In that year did my doughter Sarah as a seruant go to live with her vnckell William Wheatcroft, and Titus and I kept house togather in 1694 till June 26, 1695, almost 2 yeares. Blessed be God we lived very quietly togather, and he ordered all things very handsomely both within doors and without.

[A very pleasing tribute to the worth and kindness of Titus. He was for some years the clerk and village schoolmaster, and was deeply imbued with religious principles, but whilst possessing his father's talent and ability, had less of his parent's buoyancy of spirit, and love of society and change.]

"And after Sarah came hom, I had more liberty, and Titus too, to walke abroad to se our friends and Relations.

[One for Titus, and two for himself.]

"In the interim, I was desired of sum Jentellmen to cum to Tupton to discours with one Ouldham, who professed himself to be a poet, and was one who had writ severall verses not only against me but in derision of the fabricke which I had bulded upon the top of Ashover Hill. So according to their desires we met, where a great company were gathered together. There did I challenge him to walk with me vnto Parnishus Hill [Parnassus'], but we both missing our way, we chanced to light on an ale-house, and after we had drunk awhile, we fell into discours concerning the 9 Muses, which he could not name, neither could he tell from whence they came, or what they had done, or what they might doe (!)

[Leonard must have "read up" for this meeting, for there are many in these days who claim the acquaintance of the muses who would have been hard set to comply with Leonard's demands.]

"So in the audience of all the company I gave them their right names, and all their right titles. Wherevpon they decked my head round with Lorill branches, to the great vexation of my antagonist, Ouldham. So ever since I am called 'The Black Poet.' [Perhaps from his sombre suit worn as parish clerk.]

[Leonard does not inform us who were present at this contest, but there is such an under-current of humour in the whole transaction, that it would almost seem the work of some scholarly wag at the expense of the Ashover "Laureate" and his "antagonist." Leonard, however, regards the matter in a very serious light, and honestly looks upon his victory as honourably obtained, and himself quite worthy of the Laureate's wreath. It is with no small pride he informs us—"Ever since, I am called the Black Poet."

The Muses had several names according to the several places where they dwelt. Sometimes they were called Pierides, from the forest Pieris in Macedonia, where they were said to be born; sometimes Heliconiades, from M<sup>t</sup> Helicon, which is near to their beloved Parnassus; from whence also they were called Parnassides, and Cytherides, from M<sup>t</sup> Cytheron: Castalides and Aganippides, from two noted fountains that were consecrated to them. Their names and attributes were as follow:—Calliope was the supposed president of heroic poetry; Clio, of history; Erato, of the lute; Thalia, of comedy; Melpomene, of tragedy; Terpsichore, of the harp; Euterpe, over wind music; Polyhymnia, of music; and Urania, of astronomy. (Vide N. Bailey's Dictionary, 1736.)]

"My next journey was to the Earl of Rutlands. The hearing of my poetry there caused them to desire that I would come to Haddon on my Lordes Birthday, and withall give his Honour sum verses upon y<sup>e</sup> same, which I did, it being May 29, 1696, his age being then 58. His Honnour being no little pleased with them (and all the nobility besides), gave us rare entertainment, and sumthing besides.

"Sep. 12, 1696, my son Leonardus came from London to see me and all his Relations, and I at his retourne went agatered* with him as far as Howbrooke [Holbrook, near Horsley], and there we parted Sep. 28.

"Then coming hom, I did little stir abroad, no further than what concerned my clerkes business till June 17, 1697. Then did my daughter Sarah and I take a journey into Yorkshire on foot [he at the age of 70, and "Madam" Sarah at the age of 22], to see my tow daughters Anna and Elizabeth at a towne called Barwicke, above 50 miles from Ashover. We was 3 days in going thither, and 3 dayes in coming home again, but blessed be God, we found them all in good health and prosperity; and for 6 days we weré very merry together, and the Lord make us all thankfull. We found all well on our Retourne, which was June 28, 1697.

"But we had not long rested at hom, but we were both invited a welcoming unto my cuzen, Samuel Billings, who had married my sister Sarah's daughter, by whom he had one child called John. He was borne May 21, 1697. The welkuming was not till July 1. There was we all very merry for 2 dayes, and we did safe retourne.

"After that I went to Matlocke with 12 staves, to get them dyed blacke against my buriall, intending them for those who carried me to my grave: this was July 9, 1697.

[Coffins were not usually provided at that time for common interments, but one was kept at the church, in which the body—secured in its winding-sheet—was laid to be carried to the church. Leonard had provided that his body should be placed in an ancient stone coffin, which probably he had discovered in his grave-digging within the church. This coffin he had caused to be placed in his future grave, so that on the day of the funeral, his body sewn in the winding sheet, would be borne in the parish coffin, carried on these black staves,* to the church and grave, and from thence transferred to the stone receptacle already prepared in the ground; it was, in fact, an exact repetition of an interment of the middle ages].

“Upon July 17, I and my daughter went to Chesterfeild to buy some household goods, when Rich. Stringfelow broke. After that I went to severall places up and downe to se my Relations, but above all, I and my brother William went to Morton to see an vnckell of ours, who married my father’s sister, whom we had not seen of maney years, nor he us, for he had beene blind 7 years, and no little was he coumforted to hear of us at that time, which was May 31, ’99. The next day I did retourne to my family. And againe June 5 in the same yeare, I went to a christning at Cow-hous-lane, to my cuzen, John Benbrig, who had married James Brough’s daughter Mary. There, and at my sister Chadwicks, I stayed tow nights, and from thence I safely returned, but very ill tired.

“My next journey was to Chesterfeild, July 8, with the Church Bible to get it bound. That day I came hom by Alton. There I spent 6d., and so came hom.

“Oct. 9, 1699, I went to brother Sollomons, where I met with brother William. There did we 3 bretheren spend the day very merrily, and blessed be God, hom very well that night.

“Vpon Jan. 31, I went to Winster, to my brother Robard’s, where I taried 5 nights, and with him to Higrouses [? Highhouses], and seeing good store of oare [? lead ore] I bought of him

* Hand-staves. In the Statistical Account of Scotland, vol. xv., p. 372 (1795), concerning Campsie, co. Stirling, we have, “However distant any part of the parish was from the place of interment, it was customary for the attendants to carry the corpse on hand-spokes.”

a 12-part of a new tacker, called by the name of 'Sheldon mere.'

"Then, coming to Wensley and meeting with a company of Miners, I bought another 12-part of one Antoney Pidcocke. Then I rested at home till I went to my Brother William's, at their Wakes, where I was 2 nights.

"And, unexpected, my son Leonardus came from London, Aug. 23, 1700, who stayed with me till Sep. 9, in which time he bought that hous and land which I sould, which was to the vallew of one Hundred and 20 pounds, which was great joy to me and all my neighbours and Relations.

"Then resting myself at hom till Mar. 16, I went to Winster againe, where I bought part of a 'Grove' of Mr. Hand. And how it will prove, you shall know hereafter. There I stayed at my brother's 4 dayes ; and about June 20 my daughter Hester came down from London to se me, who at that time was very lame, but she brought me an ointment which gave me much ease—Blessed be God!

[With these significant words Leonard concludes the history of his life and pilgrimage in the year 1701. He was then in his 74th year. The writing at the end of his MS is very little inferior to that at the commencement ; but, as the writing is fairly uniform throughout, the whole of it must have been compiled towards the end of his days, from his previous notes and collections.

The journal from this point is taken up by Titus.]

"Jan. 1, 1706, my ffather died, and I supplied his place in his absence, 4 years before [this date].

"I began to teach school in that house which is called 'Twitchbank,' and was there a year, 1699 ; and then I tought in Solomon's parlor, 1 yeare and a halfe. Then at Towndrow house, in Ashover, for 2 years and a halfe ; and, in the mean while, a school was built just above, by Mr. Will. Hodgkinson, of Overton, in 1704, and I taught in it a quarter of a year before any other schoolmaster came ; and then came one William Heald, who was borne at Wootton, near Ashbourne, but had taught school at Darley 8 years. He had 20£ a year, and I had 5*£* a year, which money was raised by subscription for the 3 first years.

“In the year 1707, June 29, Mr. Obadiah Bourne began to preach in this Church of Ashover. His text was 1 John v. 3.

“On June 22, being y<sup>e</sup> Wakes Sunday, my sister Hester came from London and staid with me. Likewise Unckle Samuel’s daughter, Ann, and her husband came with Hester, but they went on the 9 of September and took cuz. Samuel’s daughter, Ann, with them.

“March 20, sister Hester made the new surplis for Mr. Bourne. She had 5<sup>s</sup>. for making it, and I had the old one, April the 16th. 1708. My father made this in 1662.

“Hester went up to London, May 31, 1708, and was wed to cousin Matthew Hawley, May 28, two days before she went up.

“June 10, 1708, being the Visitation at Chesterfield, there I light on a young woman who came to the Visitation to be confirmed by the Bishop, called Anne Bowne, at which time I fell in love with her, and courted her till Michælmass, and we were three severall Lord’s days or hollidays published both in Matlock Church and Ashover Church, and nothing was objected against us, but that we might lawfully proceed to marriage, the which wee did, being Oct. 7, 1708.

“It pleased God that my wife conceived by me, and had a very sore labour, and on Wednesday, the 29 June, 1709, she was brought to bed of a daughter, and it was baptized on the 30 July, and I called her name Hannah.

“Nov. 5, 1712, came 2 singing masters to our town of Ashover: one was called Richard Atkins, and the other Joseph Wright. They came from Wigson in Leicestershire. They taught halfe a yeare and had above 50 schollers.

“March 4, 1712, my daughter Martha was borne, and baptized April 6, 1713. Her godfathers were brother Henry Bowne and Richard Atkin [evidently the singing master], and the godmothers, Anne Botham and Mary Yates.

“In the year 1714, April 11, Mrs. Anne Hodgkinson, of Overton, was wed to one Mr. Joseph Banks, of Scofton, in the parish of Worsop. Her son, Joseph, was borne Feb. 27, 17 $\frac{1}{5}$ , about 3 in y<sup>e</sup> morning, and baptized Mai. 27

[Lysons (Derbyshire, p. lxix.) states that Sir Joseph Banks, M.P. for Peterborough, married the heiress of Hodgkinson: that William, his son, assumed the name of Hodgkinson for the Overton estate; and that Joseph Banks, Esq., of Revesby Abbey, Lincoln, son of the said William, who had assumed the name of Banks, was created a Baronet in 1783. In 1792 he became possessed of Overton Hall, where he occasionally resided. This gentleman was the eminent Sir Joseph Banks, K.B. and K.G.C.]

“In 1714 I took Hockley of brother Hawley, and was to pay him 20s. a year, but the mantle and jamb being broken, and other things being amiss, and Matthew not standing to his word or bargain, I would not go to it, but took this house of Richard Bighton for 10 years, and (we) sealed our leases March 20, 1713.

“It pleased God, after a long time of sickness, to call my wife to His mercy. She dyed Nov. 15, 1714, about 2 o'clock on Monday morning, and was buried on y<sup>e</sup> 16th, about 2 in y<sup>e</sup> afternoon, aged 35 years 9 months 1 week and 5 days.

“Ann, daughter to William Bowne and Elizab., his wife, was borne Feb. 23, 1680, and was bapitized Mar 6, 1680.

“On Candlemas Day, 1714-5, I went to pay respects to Mary Walker, of Matlock [his late wife had only been dead two months and sixteen days], in a good design to make her my wife, and March 25 she told me she had changed her mind, when I had been at her 10 times, which was a great trouble to mee.

“On the 15th of March, 1716, I went to Frances Lovit, and on the 19th of October wee were wed (1716), and I hope we shall live very happily together.

“At Christmas, 1717, my daughter in Law, Anne Lovet, came to Elton, and I went for her to come see her mother. She staid with me about a month, and then went with her Aunt Jane to Arnah [? Arnold] again, where she staid till July 9, and then they sent her to me on Horseback, with all her close.

“My wife was brought to bed of a brave lusty son on the 5th of July, 1718, about 1 o'clock afternoon, and on the 3rd of August he was baptized, and called Titus.

“On the 11 August, my daughter Anne, went to live with Anthony Alsop, of Tansley, 1718.

“August 2, 1718, brother Leonard's wife died, and was buried Aug. 5. He made a great funeral, and had a sermon. They was wed Feb. 9, 1690.

“June 26, 1720, Mr. Obadiah Bourn came to Ashover, and brought his wife. (Rebecca, dau. of John Lynch, of Groves, co. Kent; she died 1754).

“June 17, 1721, Ann went to Chesterfield, to live with one Mr. Yebb, and staid till Oct. 21.

“Oct. 23, 1721, I and my wife went with Will to Lenton, to be w<sup>t</sup> his unckle, Ralph Lovet, and that time twelve months after I went to see my son W<sup>m</sup> at Lenton, and when I came there, I found his unckle dead, and staid the Burial, which was no little trouble to us all.

“This last year, I had a very sore fit of sickness, which began at Candlemas, Feb. 2, and continued shaking for 14 weeks, but I was not well until Michalmas next following.

“Sept. 20, 1723, my wife and I went to Arnal, to W<sup>m</sup>, intending to bind him prentice, it being the wakes, and Frances staid a week.

“Jan. 29, 1723-4, my unckle Robert Hawley was buried, and that day sennight (Feb. 7), my aunt Margaret was buried, Frances went to Tuxforth in y<sup>e</sup> claye, to see her sister Mary. June 3, 1725, where she staid about 2 weeks.

“By Mr. Bourne's persuasions, my unckle Samuel delivered up his Church-Door-Key to me, y<sup>t</sup> I might tent y<sup>e</sup> Clock, and ring y<sup>e</sup> Bell; it was Aug. 30, 1725.

“Ap. 8, 1726, my son Titus began to turne in his frame in the shop. I pray God send him a good beginning.

"Martha was married to George Bassit, June 26, 1749."

Enclosure Riots at Chinley.

A. D. 1569.

AMONG the numerous ancient deeds of the Bradshaw Family belonging to Chas. E. Bradshaw Bowles, Esq., of Wirksworth, is an interesting document relating to the enclosure of certain common lands at Chinley.

This transaction was greatly resented by many of the inhabitants, who endeavoured by force to retain their ancient privileges, and their "Ryotous" proceedings on the occasion was the cause of an official enquiry, embodied in the following "Interrogatories."

The disturbance took place on the 10th of April, 11 Eliz. (1596), and appears to have been carried to serious lengths, sufficient to warrant the interposition of State authority.

From an indenture made 15 Nov., 10 Eliz. (1568), it appears that a lease of a parcel of herbage called Mayston Field, alias Chynley, was granted for thirty-one years by the Duchy of Lancaster to one Lawrence Mynter, at a yearly rent of £14 13s. 4d., to begin as soon as the lease of the same to Geo. Grymesdich expired. The very day Mynter obtained his lease, he sold it again to Richard Celey, who sold it on the 2nd October following to Godfrey Bradshaw, "who has now sold to Anthony Bradshaw his brother, and to Leonard and Francis (sons of the s<sup>d</sup>. Godfrey), for a certain sum of money, a certain portion of the said ground called 'Oxstyeferne' alias 'Okyn fearn syde' and 'Hynd Thorn,' Buttyng and boundyng upon Chyndley Brock of the east part, or syde; upon the Ashen Cleugh on the north part or syde, then up so on forth of the old Dych or mear which leadeth through the Stowpes beyond on the west part or syde, and upon the Boars Cleugh on the south parte or syde, being in the said parcell of herbage called Maystonfyeld, alias Chynley, which piece of ground aforesaid is by estymacion one Neighbourshipp and a half neighbourshipp.”*

Signed by Godfrey Bradshaw.

This abstract shews the connection of the Bradshaws with the land in question. We will now proceed to the “Interrogatories,” from the nature of which many very interesting particulars may be gleaned of the disturbance.

Nothing can be conceived more interesting to a person of ordinary intelligence, and especially to those who reside in the locality illustrated, than details of the character afforded by this document. The disturbance has long ago subsided, and the spirits, then so much moved and swayed by passion and contending interests have passed away; the heart-burnings have ceased, and the present villagers may not even know that their little hamlet, now so quiet, was once the scene of so much contention. It is one of the privileges of an Archæological Society to draw aside the curtain occasionally, and afford a retrospect.

From these original and authentic sources, we can see our ancestors in their struggles, and their yearnings for justice and for right; we mark their crude ideas, and note our own advancement; and if it were only for this—to afford us the feeling of contentment that our lot is cast in better times—these various publications of the Society will have contributed to some good end. We are very much indebted to Mr. Bowles for his permission to publish this valuable document.

“Interrogatories to be furnished upon the behaulf of Godfrey Bradshaw (? plaintiff, against) Edward Kyrke, Thos. Bawden, —Kyrke, Otwell Kyrke, Edward Shower, Ranulphe Mellour, Roger—,—Whyte, Will Rydge, John Hatfield, Robert Burnes, John Bawdon, Richard Kyrke, and others.

THE Society is indebted to the courtesy of Mrs. F. J. Robinson for allowing the publication of this interesting addition to the knowledge of the part Derbyshire has taken in national affairs.

We may infer from the Roll that Derbyshire, in common with other counties, strongly objected to the illegality of the course taken by Charles I. in raising a levy (under the less offensive name of "loan") without the consent of Parliament. The cause for this inference will be found in the appended notes.

The Roll consists of five strips of parchment bound together at the bottom—the width is  $7\frac{1}{4}$  in. and the length of the strips respectively  $24\frac{1}{4}$  in.,  $23\frac{1}{4}$  in.,  $23\frac{1}{4}$  in.,  $26\frac{1}{2}$  in., and  $18\frac{1}{2}$  in. On the back of the first strip are the words:—

[The roll is signed, without methodical arrangement, by the following—]

W. Deuonshyre	Henry Shirley	Ri Harpur
He. Wilughby	Henr Agard	Fra : Coke
He. Legh	John Manners	John Curzon

The seals are small, and are of dull red wax. Originally there were seven, but the last one is now missing. The remaining six have evidently been crushed when warm, and are consequently most indistinct.

Such parts of them as can be deciphered are as follows:—

- (1) In the dexter chief—a hart's head caboshed.
(? Arms of Cavendish, for the Duke of Devonshire.)
- (2) ? Quarterly. 1. ? A chevron between three hounds' heads. 2, 3, and 4, obliterated.
- (3) ? Two bars.
(? Brereton of Hurdlow in Hartington. Argt., two bars Sab. [Lysons]).

- (4) Unicorn's head erased.
 (This is apparently a crest, and not a coat of arms.)
- (5) A chevron between three crosses paté.
- (6) ? Quarterly. 1. ——— 2. ? Three hounds' heads erased. 3. ——— 4. ? A chevron between three hounds' heads.
- (7) Missing.

The words in italics are additions to the Roll—in the hand, probably, of the collector. There are illegible side notes and marks, in addition to the side notes given above:

After John Pryme of Hilton—portion of which seems to be vi<sup>s</sup>

Before Willm Bowyre of Marston Montgomery is a note totally illegible.

There is also a curious mark before John Hollingworth of Spondon.

The first three strips relate to the Hundred of Appletree and the last two to the Wapentake of Wirksworth.

The mode of marking off payment was by a cross on the line between the name and the amount in the Hundred of Appletree, while in the Wapentake of Wirksworth it was, with few exceptions, by a cross before the name. The following names were not marked as paid—those described as “in Ward,” assessed in other counties, etc. (except W<sup>m</sup> Bruerton of Hartington):—

Robert Willymott of Chaddesden; Raphe Bunnington, under Etwall and Burnaston; Robert ffearne, under Sinfin and Arleston; George Crichelowe, under Hartington; and Thomas Hurte, under Knyveton Ofcoat and Underwood.

In the Hundred of Appletree where the word “halfe” appears, the cross is made in two distinct parts—a V above the line, and an inverted V below, except in the cases of Raphe Sheldon, of Marston Montgomery, who is not marked off, and Anthony Colwidge, of Edlaston, who is marked off with a V only. The cross was made in two halves for John Pryme, of Hilton,

Mrs. Dorothe Okover and Ellen Archer, of Snelston, and all the names except Thomas Gilbert, under Spondon. Thomas Woodwarde and Edwarde Ffrost, under Knyveton Ofcoat and Underwood, were marked off with only the upper part of the cross. Unless the assessment in some cases seemed to the Commissioners unjust, it would appear that some refused to pay, and risked the consequences, while others, willing to pay half the sum demanded, were compelled into paying the remainder (of which the lower part of the cross is the mark of payment) under the threat, and possibly the actual experience, of imprisonment. Persuasions, threats, and force were used throughout the country to extort the loan; and it may be that these men of Derbyshire joined with the great number of men, of whom John Hampden is most conspicuous, in offering resistance to the illegal oppressions of King Charles.

Letters from Tanner MSS.

No. 131. Bodleian Library.

Contributed by Rev. W. HARRY ARKWRIGHT.

THO. BROWNE, Archdeacon of Derby, was Vicar of Wirksworth from 1662 to 1689, when he was deprived for refusing the Oath of Allegiance to William III. He was also Vicar of Ashbourne from 1660 to 1669. He was probably appointed to the Archdeaconry of Derby in the latter year.

Archbishop Sheldon was a Derbyshire man.

Page 13.—[Part of letter from John Hackett, Bishop of Lichfield, to Thomas Browne, enclosed by Browne in his letter to the Archbishop.]

“Our Church worke is neither at a stand, nor insues fast, but what is finisht is verie sightly. And within y<sup>e</sup> walls nothing more pleasing to God & man, then the singing of a coñon psalm after Sermon, w<sup>ch</sup> hath charmed the whole auditory to take all y<sup>e</sup> praiers & the blessing with them: A reformation that my hart reioyceth in. This is no innovation, it was so in this Church ab antiquo, & but of late omitted. It is so in S<sup>t</sup> Pauls London to this hower, it was so in Westm: Abby from B<sup>p</sup>. Andrewes to B<sup>p</sup>. Williams time. But if you goe higher to the primitiue Church for the first 500 years the coñon people did partake at all times in singing the psalm :

it was not omitted anie where, till the midle age, when Latin seruice came in. J dare stake an hundred of the gentry to one, & most learned Clerkes against yours in this case. J partly guess who hath complained to you, by excepting at rithme. Why? are there not twentie anthemns in our Church in rithm? Js that antique hymn of Gregory the great the worse for the rithm, Hora mortis meus flatus intret Jesu tuū latus? O M<sup>r</sup>. Brown knock at your own conscience, & feed lambs as wel as sheep: let babes haue milke, as wel as men strong meat, gain souls to X<sup>t</sup> by all meanes that are lawfull. Too much rigidness brought our late confusions upon us. Both psalm & anthem may dō wel in seuerall kinds: & let mee inform you, a psalm in meter is more anchient then an antheme in y<sup>e</sup> Church of England. The meter-psalms were allowed under K. Ed: the 6 his priuie seale (proued in Parlament); no antheme was set till y<sup>e</sup> 10 of 2 Eliz: by D<sup>r</sup>. Tye, & then by Tallis. Custom took them up, but no antheme was spoken of in Coñon praier booke or Canon, till within these three yeares, & now it giues no coñand, but permission. Jn your conclusion you say the Deane should haue helpt the departing of the people before the Blessing by discipline. He can not. For if the people of the cittie will neither come to praiers or sermon to the Cathedral, they can not be prevented. Thus I have giuen you large satisfaction. And if J an old Veteranus do not know how to gouern a Church better then one or two malecontents, who are dissatisfied, & quarel at euery thing, God help mee. So J impart my blessing unto you & rest

Your louing brother & assured Friend

Page 14.—[Letter from Thomas Browne to Archbishop Sheldon enclosing the last.]

May it please Your Grace

My hearty thanks to God & reioycing for Your Grace's Preservation in the midst of Contagion are inexpressible: Especially considering, how much the Welfare of this Church depends upon Your Grace's. Very unwilling I am to trouble Your Grace with impertinent Letters; but when the Affaires of the Church require it. And now J think it my duty to let Your Grace know, as followeth.

Our B<sup>p</sup> in the Absence of the Deane* hath appointed a Coñon Psalme to be sung in the Cathedrall after Sermon instead of y<sup>e</sup> Accustomed Anthem. This (J can assure Your Grace) gives great Offence; not onely to the Church's best friends at Lichfield, but also to many both of y<sup>e</sup> Gentry & Clergy in this Diocese, especially in this County. Whereupon J presumed (holding a Place in that Church, w<sup>ch</sup> gives me an Intereste in y<sup>e</sup> Ordering of God's Service there) to write to His Lo<sup>p</sup> † in these very words.

“Jt is some trouble to me that J cannot in pson tender my Duty to your Lo<sup>p</sup> as J hoped to have done: as for other ends, so especially to have discoursed with your Lo<sup>p</sup> about that Jnnovation (J hear of) in our Cathedral Service at Lichfield, of singing a Psalme in Rithm instead of the Anthem after Sermon. J can say it gives much offence in these parts to many both of the Gentry & Clergy, who have been informed of it. J make no Question, if it be done by your Lo<sup>p</sup>'s Order, you had some Prudential motive thervnto: But if that be it, wherof I am told, That the Townes-people might thereby be allowed to Stay vntill the conclusion of the Service; The exercise of Ecclesiastical Discipline would be (methinks) a more Regular way, & perhaps more effectuall too, if Our Deane would, as his Duty is, take care of it. J hope your Lo<sup>p</sup> will not be offended that I have revealed my thoughts in y<sup>s</sup> matter.”

* Of Lichfield.

† The Bp. of Lichfield.

“J shal make what speed J can to Lichfield, after J have pformed what your Lo<sup>p</sup> may iustly expect from mee in this County; And then I shall begg Your Lo<sup>p</sup>'s Patience & Leave, that I may say somewhat to the last part of your Lo<sup>p</sup>'s Letter, for my Satisfaction, though not for my Conviction. For though J may not in every thing judge or opine with my superiors; yet have J learned to Acquiesce, in submitting (to) their better Judgments, & obeying all their Lawfull Co<sup>m</sup>mands. This Lesson, if the Schismatically-disposed at Lichfeild, would have learned: there would have been little need (in my poore judgm<sup>t</sup>) of gratifying them with the Late Alteration in our Cathedral Service. But I will say no more till I see yo<sup>r</sup> Lo<sup>pp</sup> nor would I have said any thing at all: but that J have been told, the Ordering of Divine Service in our Cathedral doth somewhat concern me, by the Place I hold in that Church. And now, my good Lord, I beseech you, for Christ his sake, not to bee offended at mee for what I have (it may be) too boldly scribled to your Lo<sup>p</sup>.”

This is y<sup>e</sup> whole concerning this matter, which I submit, my most Honoured Lord, to Your Grace's Censure; And J humbly Begg Your Grace's Counsell & direction. This Innovation in God's service in a Cathedrall (especially considering the nature of the Thing, & temper of y<sup>e</sup> psons, for whose sake it is done, & the time & place) in my iudgment, ought not to bee. And yet my Reverence to a B<sup>p</sup> is such, that I dread to oppose; not for want of Courage, but out of a True sense of Duty. But it is not difficult to fore-see How nauseous Church-musick and Co<sup>m</sup>on prayer will again become, if Hopkins & Sternhold's Rithms may justle out our Anthem, & a long Pulpit-prayer seduce the Devotions of the coñon people.

J am very sensible my good Lord, what a great Trouble J give you<sup>r</sup> Grace by this tedious Scrible: But with hope J humbly begg pardon, &, praying for your Grace's good Health, subscribe, as J really am,

Most Rev<sup>d</sup>. ffather, your Grace's
most humble & most dutifull
Serv<sup>t</sup> & Creature

Most reuerend Father, and my verie good Lord,

J haue been a truant for a fortnight in Bedfordshire, to see my lately married daughter at her own house, w<sup>ch</sup> was a kindness, though a troublesome one to my old age, due to a child that allwaies deserued wel.

Upon my return to Lichfield, J betoke mee to examin what monies my instruments had gathered in my absence, from the Clergy, for the loan to set out his Ma<sup>ties</sup> roial nauie (w<sup>ch</sup> the Lord prosper). And this is the account w<sup>ch</sup> J can giue to your Grace. The Diuines of Staffordshire haue subscribed about 320<sup>l</sup>, but they keep not touch for dayes of payment. They are poore & dull. They of Derbyshire are wel put on by M<sup>r</sup>. Brown, my co<sup>m</sup>issioner, their subscription is 340<sup>l</sup>, præter, propter. None of them richer then Dr. Boilston, and none more vnwilling to let goe anie thing. He is vnsound. The Clergy of my part of Warwickshire haue subscribed 214<sup>l</sup>. J am compelled to send out apparitors to bring it in. But for my share in Shropshire J know not what to say. The Archdeacon on the 4th of May sent mee word he would lend an 100<sup>l</sup> (w<sup>ch</sup> he may wel do) since that time J haue sent letters, and messengers after them vnto him, & can obtain no answere from him. He hath a rich Clergy to deal with: J know not how he will speed: but certainly the worse, because he is so tardy. J expect a thousand pounds will be advanced: if it bee more, the more will be my comfort. This information is due unto your Grace, with my thrice euery day deuoted praiers for your health, safetie, and long continuance, the fruition whereof will bee a larger comfort to

The Bells of St. Peter, Derby.

By GEORGE BAILEY.

THESE bells were removed from the old tower when it was taken down for the purpose of re-building it, and also extending the church westward. This afforded an opportunity for taking out the bells and sending them to Messrs. Taylor & Co., of Loughborough, for needed repairs and tuning.

It seemed desirable that a record of this event in the history of the bells should be recorded in this Journal. The copies of the inscriptions and dates here given, have been made from rubbings, taken as the bells were being placed on the Midland Co.'s dray for their journey to the foundry, on Nov. 30th, 1897. One of them appeared to have a hole in it near the mouth, and all were more or less weathered on the haunches, so rendering the legends and ornaments somewhat indistinct.

The inscriptions were as follows:—

No. 1.

✻ JESVS BE OVR SPEED ✻ IOHN DAYE ✻

No. 5.

I TO THE CHURCH THE LIVING CALL AND TO
THE GRAVE DO SUMMON ALL  1769

It will have been noticed that the inscriptions show none of the quaintness of spelling usual in the period in which they came into existence, except that the arrangement, or reading, of the angels' anthem, is not usual; and that the i is placed before the r in "Gloria." All the letterings, except those on the last bell, have the old form of v, and the u in that is a medieval one. The fleur-de-lis is freely used for dividing sentences, initials, and names. There are long ornamental scrolls in the unoccupied spaces; but no elaborately ornamented capital letters, such as are found on the bells of All Saints' and others in the county. There is only one, No. 3, that has a founder's mark, the bell of Abraham Rudhall, and No. 5 has no founder's name or mark, but the letters used upon it are of an excellent type for clearness and sharpness. The inscription on this bell being long, allows no space for ornamental scrolls, in which it is altogether lacking. We are inclined to think that No. 3 must have been recast, as it bears the date 1738, and comes between the 2nd and the 4th, which are dated 1636. By this we conclude there were originally four bells of the latter date.

It would be interesting to ascertain who was intended by the letters "T. H.," found on Nos. 1 and 4 of the 1636 bells. We venture to suggest that they indicate a member of the family of Hedderly, especially as that name is found on so many bells in this County. The earliest mention of that name found in connection with Derbyshire bells is on one at Findern, which is dated 1704, and bears the name of Daniel Hedderly, who was of Bawtry, Yorks., and there is another of his bells at Breadsall, dated 1728. There is only a difference of sixty-eight years between 1704 and 1636, so that these bells might easily have been the work of Daniel's father, or uncle, whose name we may assume to have been Thomas. There was a John Hedderly, of Derby, who recast the great bell at Melbourne in 1732* ; also Thomas Hedderly, of Nottingham, whose name occurs frequently on bells in the County, e.g., at Mickleover, 1742 ; West Hallam, 1743 ; Weston-on-Trent, 1760 ; Heanor, 1781, and of the same date at Allestree. After him came George Hedderly, whose name is found at Rosliston, 1778-1788-9 ; again at Breadsall, 1786, and at Allestree, 1790 ; also at Risley, of same year. Messrs. Taylor, of Loughborough, have informed me that there is a bell at St. John Baptist's, Stowe, Staffs., dated 1632, which has the same letters, "T. H.," upon it.† Though I have made numerous inquiries from gentlemen learned in bells, I have, so far, been unable to obtain any information leading to the identification of "T. H.;" but the Rev. Canon Raven, D.D., has written me that R. C. Hope, Esq., F.S.A., in an article in the Archæological Journal, No. 198, Vol. L., names a Thomas Handcock, of Walsall, who was a Bellfounder in 1636, and he may be the founder of this bell.

S. Peter's, Derby.

From observations made by Mr. George Bailey during the recent demolition of the tower of S. Peter's, Derby, in 1898, it would conclusively appear that the original tower was of Norman construction, and that it was brought into its latest form some time about the year 1470. The Rev. J. C. Cox, LL.D., in his Churches of Derbyshire, considers that the tower arch was reconstructed during the fourteenth century. This will be reinstated. The responds of the nave arcades on both sides of the old tower arch still retain their mutilated Norman capitals. The tower once opened into the south aisle, but the archway was subsequently blocked. The finely moulded base of its western respond was found in the south-west corner. Here, too, at the back of it, was observed the curvature of the newell stairway once leading into the belfry chamber. Above this blocked tower archway were seen remains of a window much like the windows of the south clerestory.

On digging for the new foundations it was found that on the north side, the old wall had rested on six iron-shod piles covered with oak slabs fastened together with "dog-irons" secured by long nails. Three of the piles taken out were three feet in length, and appeared to have been driven into the place of an old interment. They were in good preservation. The tower pinnacles and gargoyles were much decayed. One of the best of the pinnacles has been erected in the centre of the churchyard. The parapet was repaired in 1825 under the care of "W. T." and "R. S.," the then churchwardens. "I. H. O. GIPSON" had immortalized himself on one of the belfry windows in "APRIL, 1829"—perhaps one of the ringers. The old capstone of the newell was found decorated with roughly cut leaves. Among the débris of the tower walls were the bases of two small Norman shafts. Besides these were found a piece of an incised alabaster slab, with remains of some ornament, and three or four letters undecipherable; a fragment of a black glazed mug of three handles, one only of which remained; a gimlet; a pair of small iron compasses; a currier's knife; and two bits of painted glass. The most curious thing, however, was turned up in getting out the soil for the extension of the north aisle. This was a circular leaden talisman, about four inches in diameter.

The round edges were closed over like lids, so as to form a central square. On opening these a circle was found on two opposite flaps: one of these contained a compass, and within its extended points four crescents, with other astronomical signs. The inner square was divided into nine smaller squares by cross lines, each of these containing a number. A jetton by Hans Kravwinckle (of Nuremburg), with the legend "Gotis reich blibt ewick," interpreted as "The kingdom of God remaineth for ever," completes the list.

I.—NAME.

The Society shall be called the “DERBYSHIRE ARCHÆOLOGICAL AND NATURAL HISTORY SOCIETY.”

II.—OBJECT.

III.—OPERATION.

The means which the Society shall employ for effecting its objects are:—

- 1.—Meetings for the purpose of Reading Papers, the Exhibition of Antiquities, etc., and the discussion of subjects connected therewith.
- 2.—General Meetings each year at given places rendered interesting by their antiquities or by their natural development.
- 3.—The publication of original papers and ancient documents, etc.

IV.—OFFICERS.

The Officers of the Society shall consist of a President and Vice-Presidents, whose elections shall be for life; and an Honorary Treasurer and Honorary Secretary, who shall be elected annually.

V.—COUNCIL.

The General Management of the affairs and property of the Society shall be vested in a Council, consisting of the President, Vice-Presidents, Honorary Treasurer, Honorary Secretary, and twenty-four Members, elected from the general body of the Subscribers; eight of such twenty-four Members to retire annually in rotation, but to be eligible for re-election. All vacancies occurring during the year to be provisionally filled up by the Council.

VI.—ADMISSION OF MEMBERS.

The election of Members, who must be proposed and seconded in writing by two Members of the Society, shall take place at any meeting of the Council, or at any General Meetings of the Society.

VII.—SUBSCRIPTION.

Each Member on election after March 31st, 1878, shall pay an Entrance Fee of Five Shillings, and an Annual Subscription of Ten Shillings and Sixpence. All subscriptions to become due, in advance, on the 1st January each year, and to be paid to the Treasurer. A composition of Five Guineas to constitute Life Membership. The composition of Life Members and the Admission Fee of Ordinary Members to be funded, and the interest arising from them to be applied to the general objects of the Society. Ladies to be eligible as Members on the same terms. No one shall be entitled to his privileges as a Member of the Society whose subscription is six months in arrear.

VIII.—HONORARY MEMBERS.

The Council shall have the power of electing distinguished Antiquaries as Honorary Members. Honorary Members shall not be resident in the County, and shall not exceed twelve in number. Their privileges shall be the same as those of Ordinary Members.

IX.—MEETINGS OF COUNCIL.

The Council shall meet not less than six times in each year, at such place or places as may be determined upon. Special meetings may also be held at the request of the President, or

Five Members of the Society. Five members of Council to form a quorum.

X.—SUB-COMMITTEES.

The Council shall have the power of appointing from time to time such sectional or Sub-Committees as may seem desirable for the carrying out of special objects. Such Sectional or Sub-Committees to report their proceedings to the Council for confirmation.

XI.—GENERAL MEETINGS.

The Annual Meeting of the Society shall be held in January each year, when the Accounts, properly audited, and a Report shall be presented, the Officers elected, and vacancies in the Council filled for the ensuing year. The Council may at any time call a General Meeting, specifying the object for which that Meeting is to be held. A clear seven days' notice of all General Meetings to be sent to each Member.

XII.—ALTERATION OF RULES.

No alteration in the Rules of the Society shall be made except by a majority of two-thirds of the Members present at an Annual or other General Meeting of the Society. Full notice of any intended alteration to be sent to each Member at least seven days before the date of such Meeting.

REPORT OF HON. SECRETARY.

THE Twenty-first Anniversary of the Society was held, by kind permission of the Committee, in the Technical College, on Wednesday, March 8th, 1899. Godfrey Meynell, Esq., Vice-President of the Society, presided. The Report of the past year was read and adopted. The meeting confirmed the provisional appointment by the Council of the Rev. W. H. Arkwright and the Rev. F. Broadhurst to the seats on the Council vacant by the death of the Rev. J. Jourdain, and the removal of Mr. Geo. Fletcher. All the retiring members of Council (under Rule V.), viz., Messrs. Naylor, Arnold-Bemrose, Sir A. Haslam, Rev. R. H. C. FitzHerbert, Carrington, Keene, Bottomley, and Milnes, were re-elected, as were also the Hon. Sec., Hon. Sec. of Finance, the Hon Treasurer, and the auditors. Miss Burton, Mrs. W. Slater, Messrs. Gregory, Peck, Lunn, Goodwin, Platt, W. Slater, and F. Adcock were elected members of the Society. The Rev. F. C. Hipkins read a valuable paper upon the most recent discoveries at Repton Church, and expressed a hope that the Society would visit Repton at an early date. The twenty-first volume of the Society's "Proceedings" was distributed.

The first expedition of the Society for the past year was held on Saturday, June 3rd, to Repton. The party left Derby in special saloons attached to the 2.25 p.m. train for Willington. At the bridge over the Trent, the Rev. F. C. Hipkins met the visitors and led them to the site of the Antient Camp in the adjacent meadows, pointing out the encampment and the position occupiéd. The party walked on to the School Chapel, after inspecting which they passed on to the Church of St. Winstan, where Mr. Hipkins pointed out and described the various interesting features of architecture. Special attention was devoted to the crypt, where recent discoveries have been made, and upon which the party had the advantage of hearing valuable comments made by Rev. J. T. Irvine, who was present, and keenly interested in all details. The visitors were also shewn over the site of the old Priory Church, together with many details of great interest in the Old Hall, and the Priory. Tea, by the kind hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Hipkins, was taken at the Priory, and the party returned to Willington in time for the 6.9 train to Derby.

A second expedition was held on Thursday, August 31st, to Haddon Hall and Bakewell.

The party left Derby in special saloons attached to the 1.45 p.m. train for Bakewell, whence brakes conveyed them to Haddon Hall. By special permission of the Duke of Rutland, K.G., President of the Society, Haddon was inspected without any of the usual restrictions. Mr. Alex. Carrington acted as guide, and conducted the party over the Hall, calling attention to all the important features of interest. Mr. Carrington also read a valuable paper upon Haddon, tracing the history of the Manor from the time of the Peverels, and noting the deed, circa 1170, probably the earliest in existence concerning Haddon, and in the possession of the Duke of Rutland, by which the Haddon property was equally divided, and given by Wm. Avenel to his two sons-in-law, Vernon and Basset.

After a full and careful inspection of Haddon, the visitors drove back to Bakewell, and took tea at the Rutland Arms. After tea a visit was paid to Bakewell Church, where the Vicar, the Rev. C. J. Abraham, received the party, and described the work recently carried out at the Church, pointing out the newly-opened west door, and the Norman mouldings, shewing also the old carved stones which have recently, and mainly thanks to Mr. Abraham's efforts, been brought back from Sheffield after years of absence from Bakewell. Mr. Carrington also gave a sketch of the history of the church, and its monuments. The party returned to Derby by the 5.56 train.

Several matters of archæological interest have been before the notice of your Council during the past year; help and advice have been given, we hope with good results. Our attention was called to the strengthening of the old Swarkestone Bridge, by means of blue brick arches, and your Council used every endeavour within its power to effect the necessary strengthening of the bridge by some means less glaringly out of keeping with the antient structure. Your Council's suggestions were considered with perfect courtesy by the "powers that are" in this matter, and, we hope, not altogether without result.

The proposed excavation at Melandra, mentioned in our last report, has been commenced. Lord Howard of Glossop gave his consent, under conditions, and members of the Lancashire and Cheshire Society expressed their willingness to help. In the circumstances, your Council thought it right to issue a circular to our members, asking for help towards the necessary expenses of excavation. Some response was received, but there is ample room for more. Meanwhile, the work was begun. At the request of your Council, Mr. St. John Hope went down to Melandra, and inspected the excavations, reporting upon them as desirable, and requiring care.

The local workers have now formed a "Glossop and Neighbourhood Antiquarian Society," which they ask may be affiliated to the Derbyshire Archæological and Natural History Society. The concensus of opinion in your Council is in favour of some arrangement of this kind, sub-committees of the two societies have been formed to confer as to details, and the matter is under consideration.

It is hoped that an expedition to Melandra may be arranged for a long day in the summer.

The Rev. F. C. R. Jourdain sends me a few interesting notes on birds: I mentioned last year an instance of the quail nesting in Derbyshire, which I believed to be the first on record.

Mr. Jourdain sends me two other authentic instances which have come under his notice, one a nest of fourteen eggs in a field of mowing grass close to Ashbourne Hall, in 1870, another in the same year at Brassington; unfortunately, in both cases the eggs were not hatched out, and the prospective colony was untimely obliterated.

Mr. Jourdain also gives me another instance of the Rotche, or little auk, in Derbyshire, a specimen which was picked up on the Sheffield Moors in November, 1898; the same month and year in which a Slavonian grebe was killed at Allestree.

Mr. Jourdain also tells me that the tufted duck is breeding in the Ashbourne district, and seems inclined to settle. We must hope that every possible protection will be accorded to this interesting visitor in order to encourage him to remain with us. On the 10th May last, a dotterel, in adult spring plumage, was picked up on the Nottingham Road, just outside Derby. This bird had probably struck the telegraph wires in its nocturnal migration.

Three specimens of the bittern are also recorded by Mr. Jourdain, one at Morley, last November, and two more recently, at Egginton and Smalley respectively. All shot!! Will the man with a gun ever consent to reserve his murderous instinct for those feathered friends of whom we have enough and to spare, and to give our rarer visitors some chance of staying and multiplying in our land?

Those members who recollect the history of the kingfisher in my garden may like to hear that though the bird has disappeared now, for some years, in October last another specimen appeared one Sunday and made his plunge. The pond was low, and very full of weed, and the kingfisher got entangled and well-nigh drowned. He was extricated in a landing-net, and put in a cage to dry, being supplied with several small gold-fish in a flower-pot saucer full of water: by the next morning he was nearly dry, and had assimilated all his fish: more fish were supplied, and in the afternoon I went to release him: he had eaten two fish, but himself was dead!

He had injured his neck, apparently, when entangled in the pond.

Our obituary this past year is small, but includes one member of our original Council, whose loss we all sincerely deplore. Mr. Edward Greenhough was a hard worker and a most genial companion: he was always intensely interested in all we were doing, and on one occasion said to me, "This Society has done so much for me, by its work and teaching, that I feel I can never do enough for it in return." We could well do with a large supply of that stamp of member added to our present lists.

Numerically we are slightly in excess of last year, but we have still plenty of room; let us each and all try to more than fill up every vacancy, and we may be satisfied with the result of the twenty-second year of our proceedings.

HON. SEC.

Haddon :
The Hall, The Manor, and its Lords.

---

By W. A. CARRINGTON.*

---

THE Manor of Haddon is situated in the parish of Bakewell, and it was anciently within that lordship, as appears from the following extract from the Domesday Survey:—"King Edward had in the Manor of Bakewell 18 carucates, with 8 villis or hamlets. The King (William) has now in demesne 7 carucates, with 33 villains,

---

* We are very greatly indebted to Mr. Carrington for this original and most valuable history of Haddon derived immediately from the archives of His Grace the Duke of Rutland, at Belvoir, and never before printed. There is but one small paragraph relating to the history of the Manor in Lyson's, and not quite two pages more devoted to the architectural features of the fabric; but here we have an almost exhaustive account which none but the archivist of the family could have produced, and it is our great privilege, as the County Archæological Society, to publish the History of Haddon and its distinguished lords in a form more worthy of the famous house and its illustrious owners.

The author writes:—"I had all the various and conflicting accounts of the descent of Haddon to deal with, and it would have been a hopeless undertaking had I not accumulated a large amount of documentary evidence, extending over a number of years, to aid me."—EDITOR.

and 9 bordars. Henry de Ferrers is assessed at 1 carucate in Hadune."

The Manor of Bakewell, with many other extensive domains, was bestowed by the Conqueror upon his natural son William Peverel, by Maud, daughter of Ingelric, who afterwards married Ranulph, son of Payne Peverel (standard-bearer to Robert, Duke of Normandy, father to the Conqueror), after whom not only this William, but other issue he had by her, assumed the name of Peverel.

William Peverel possessed sixteen manors in Derbyshire, besides Peak and Nottingham Castles. He is said to have founded the Priory of St. James, near Northampton, and the Priory of Lenton, near Nottingham, in 1102, and to have died in 1113; but it seems more probable that it was not the son of the Conqueror, but his grandson, a second William, who founded these Priors.

William Peverel the fourth, grandson of the last-named William, was deprived of his great possessions by Henry II. for poisoning Ranulph, Earl of Chester, in 1153. Most of these lands and honours, including the manor and church of Bakewell, reverted to the Crown, and were given by Henry to his son John, Earl of Moreton, afterwards King.

Several Peverels are met with in this neighbourhood in the Belvoir Charters at a considerably later date. A Henry Peverel is a witness to a lease of Alport Mill, in the reign of John, or early Henry III., and they were evidently located at, and held lands in, Hassop in the reigns of Henry III. and Edward I., where they occur as Cecilia, the widow of Nicholas Peverel, Nicholas, son and heir of Peter, and Roger, son of Nicholas. It is not improbable that these were descendants of the Peverels of Haddon. While, doubtless, the whole of the estates of William Peverel which he possessed at the time of his outlawry were confiscated to the Crown, it may be presumed that those lands and manors which either he, or his predecessors, had bestowed upon their dependants by tenure of knight's service, escaped the general confiscation.

It appears that some of these possessions came to the family of Ferrers, Earls of Derby, by the marriage of Robert de Ferrers with Margaret Peverel, eldest daughter and co-heiress of William Peverel the third, and on the forfeiture of William Peverel, these lands were held direct from the Crown. Haddon and other possessions in Derbyshire had been granted by one of the Peverels—apparently the second William—to one Avenellus, one of his knights, who was one of the witnesses to the foundation charter of Lenton Priory, in 1102. The records of the Avenels of Haddon are somewhat scanty, but they appear in local charters until the reign of Edward I., more particularly in the records of Middleton and Youghreave, in which they occur as residents and owners of lands in those places.

In the reign of Henry III. William Avenel granted Meadow Place and Conkesbury, with land in Over Haddon, to the Abbey of Leicester. The Avenels were one of the great Norman families and hereditary seneschals of the Counts of Mortaine. William the Seneschal was one of the Conqueror's companions, and fought at Hastings, but he does not appear to have been very amply rewarded for his services, though afterwards this family became possessors of considerable property in various parts of the kingdom. They are found at an early date in the counties of Bedford, Gloucester, Cambridge, Devon, Leicester, etc. . . . . The earliest record in the possession of the Duke of Rutland, and very probably the earliest existing at the present time, relating to Haddon, is a charter in the form of an agreement, or fine, between William Avenel of Haddon, and his two sons-in-law, Richard de Vernon and Simon Basset, who had married his two daughters and co-heirs, Avice and Elizabeth; this deed measures  $6\frac{3}{4}$  in. by 5 in., but it has unfortunately suffered from time and exposure, in consequence of which it is somewhat difficult to decipher. As this is a most interesting and important record, a translation of it is given as follows:—

“Be it known to all, as well present as to come, that I, William Avenel. have entered into an agreement with Richard de Vernon and Simon Basset, who have my two daughters and heirs, of all my land and inheritance, and to them as my heirs, I have granted and enfeoffed all my land and inheritance after my decease, which they shall divide, sharing equally everywhere, and in all things, as my heirs, and so that Simon Basset and his heirs shall do to Richard de Vernon and his heirs what the younger shall owe to the elder. Moreover, in my manor, namely, Haddon, I have granted to the aforesaid Richard my capital mansion, which is at the east, where my father William Avenel dwelt, and where the chapel of S. Nicholas is founded, with the orchard on the same side, and to Simon Basset my other mansion, which is at the west, with the orchard on that west side. In Adestoca* I have granted to the said Richard de Vernon my capital mansion with two orchards, one on each side of the mansion. Also to Simon Basset in the same vill, a certain mansion equal in size to the capital mansion, with the orchard of Roger (sic). In Irtliburc† also I have granted to the said Simon Basset a capital mansion, and to the said Richard de Vernon in the same vill, a certain mansion equal in size to the capital mansion. This covenant and agreement the said Richard de Vernon and Simon Basset, my order having been faithfully preserved, have affirmed by oath of this covenant and agreement. These are the witnesses, William, son of Hugh de Fuletibi, William, son of Hugh the falconer, Gerold, son of Richard. . . ." (The names of the two last witnesses are quite illegible.)

This concord, or agreement, would be executed in duplicate, and as two labels, with guards of linen, are attached, it is evident that this is the counterpart to which the seals of Richard de Vernon and Simon Basset were appended. This deed has been conjecturally dated about 1170.

The family of Basset continued to possess a moiety of Nether Haddon in the reign of Edward III. (Inq. p. m. 3 Edw. III.).

but in or before the reign of Henry VI. it became vested by purchase in the Vernons.

In consequence of this agreement, or settlement, a portion of Haddon and other property became vested, after the death of William Avenel, in the family of Vernon. . . . This family derived its name from the castle of Vernon, now a Commune in the Department of Evreux. A Roger was Baron of Vernon about 1030, whose grandson, William, recovered Vernon (which had been granted to Count Guy of Burgundy), and from him descended the Barons of Vernon. Two of his sons, Richard and Walter, appear in Domesday, both holding lands in Cheshire. Richard was one of the Barons of Hugh Lupus, Earl of Chester, and had a castle at Shipbrook. He is said by Ormerod to have been succeeded, in the fourth or fifth generation, by a second Richard, from whose son William [Chief Justice of Chester (1230-32),] all the legitimate lines of this family derive their descent; and on the assumption of this connection, this attempt to trace the succession of the Vernons of Haddon in the male line will commence with

Walter de Vernon, already referred to, who held, in 1086, four manors of the Earl of Chester, and three manors of the King in capite in Bucks. (Domesday.) This Walter was succeeded by another

Walter, probably a grandson of the last-mentioned, who was living 11 Henry II. (Pipe Roll, Oxfordshire.) A deed in Shaw shows that Walter de Vernon, a grandson of a former Walter, was enfeoffed at Harlaston, by Matilda, Countess of Chester, during her widowhood. Eyton says this took place between 1154 and 1157. (Salt Collections.) The next in descent is

Richard de Vernon, who married Avice, daughter and co-heiress of William Avenel, of Haddon, to whom John, Earl of Moreton, during his brother Richard's absence—probably in the Holy Land—issued a license to strengthen, but not to fortify, his house or mansion at Haddon. with a wall twelve feet high, of which the following is a translation:—

“ John, Earl of Moreton, to his Justices, Sheriffs, Bailiffs, Ministers, and all his faithful people, sends greeting. Know you that I have granted and given licence to Richard de Vernon to strengthen (firmandi) his House of Haddon, with a wall raised twelve feet high, without battlements. And I forbid lest anyone of ours hereafter disturb him. Witness, Robert de Mara, at Clipston.”

This document was exhibited by the Duke of Rutland to the British Archæological Association when they visited Haddon in 1851, and it is now preserved in a glass case in the library at Belvoir, with a selection of other early and interesting charters. This Richard de Vernon forfeited his estates in 6 and 7 Ric. I. (Staffordshire Pipe Roll), but they were afterwards restored to him. He was living in 16 John (Derbyshire Pipe Roll), but was apparently dead before 3 Henry III., when William de Vernon occurs. The Quo Warranto Pleas of the Channel Islands show that a Richard de Vernon held the Island of Sark, which was resumed by the Crown because Richard had selected a Norman domicile on the separation of Normandy from England. This Richard was succeeded, as already mentioned, by his son

William de Vernon, by Avice, his wife. He occurs in 3 Henry III., in Derbyshire Pipe Rolls, and was living 20 Henry III. (Testa de Nevill.) He was probably identical with William de Vernon, Justiciary of Chester, 1229 and 1232. That Richard Vernon was succeeded by William, his son, is placed beyond doubt from the evidence on record amongst the Belvoir charters. One of these is a confirmation by Richard de Vernon and Avice, his wife, and William de Vernon, their son and heir, to Azer, son of Nigel, of a virgate of land in Adstock (co. Bucks.). The date of this deed appears to be temp. Ric. I. or John. Richard de Vernon and Avice, his wife, occur in a Fine made at Westminster, 27 Henry II. (1181), between Walkelin Harenc and Richard de Vernon, and Avice, his wife, of the third part of the Fee of Swinfen (co. Staff.), on a plea of covenant, viz., that Richard and Avice, his wife, claim to quit claim the third part of Swinfen to Walkelin Harenc, for which the said Walkelin gives to Richard de Vernon and Avice, his wife, four virgates of land, in exchange for the third part of Swinfen. (Belvoir Chart.) William Vernon of Haddon and Harlaston married Margaret, daughter of Sir Robert de Stokeport, Lord of Stockport. The grant of the manor of Baslow and Bubnell by Sir Robert de Stokeport to William de Vernon is still preserved at Belvoir, and is as fresh and clean as when written. The following is a translation :—

“ Know all both present and to come that I, Robert de Stocheport, have given and granted, and by this my present charter have confirmed to William, son and heir of Richard de Vernon, the land of Baselawe and Bunbunhul, with all its appurtenances. With Margarit, my daughter, in free marriage. But truly if the aforesaid William shall not have an heir of the said Margarit, the aforesaid William and the heirs of the said Richard de Vernon shall hold half of the said land of Baselawe, they and their heirs of me and my heirs, rendering to me and my heirs the service of half a knight's fee. These being witnesses, Ric., son of Roger Will. de Bray, Rob. de Meinewarin, Tomas de Nortbury, Walter de Stocheport, Mat. de Bromhale, Will., his brother, Simon de Stocheport, John de Bredburi, Jordan de Bredburi, Rob., son of Bernard, Rob. son of Rahenald, Mat., clerk de Stocheport, Ric., his son, Gilebert de Louthian, Walter de Parles, Hug, his brother, Roger de Estun, John, his brother, Henry, clerk de Tideswelle, and many others.”

It appears from an Inquisition taken after the death of Sir Robert de Stokeport, who died in 1249, that Sir Richard de Vernon, Knt., held Merpul and Wibberslegh from him in demesne, and in service, except a certain liberty which Sir Randle, Earl of Chester, conceded to William de Vernon, his father. (Chesh. Inq. p. m.)

Robert de Stokeport, son of the last-named Sir Robert, released and confirmed to William de Vernon and Margery, his wife, sister of the said Robert, for their homage and service, as the right and heritage of the aforesaid Margery, all the land of Merpul and Wiberslee, with all its appurtenances, by the service of finding one Forester in the Forest of the Earl of Chester, that is to say, in that of Macclesfield, saving to the said Earl the hunting and the aeries of hawks, falcons, and sparrow-hawks. Witnesses: Philip de Orreby, then Justiciary of Chester, Hugo Despencer, Roger de Meinewaring, William de Venables, Richard Phitun, Jordan de Bredburie, Benedict de Wurth, Roger de Dounes, and many others. (Chesh. Grants.)

Philip de Orreby was Justiciary of Chester from 1209 to 1229.

The following additional information relating to William Vernon is from the Belvoir and other collections:—

Deed dated 1237, recites that “William de Vernon, for the welfare of his soul, and the souls of his wife Alice and of all his ancestors and successors, had given all the land which he had in Stanton (near Haddon) to the Prior and Convent of Lenton, together with his body, there to be buried beside his father.” (Belvoir Chart.)

From another deed, dated 1242, it appears that the Abbot of Dieulacresse, and the Priors of Lenton, Chester and Derby, were the executors of the will of the said William Vernon, Knt., and that his debts were to be proved at Derby. It seems, therefore, that William Vernon died about this time.

It will be observed that Alice is given as the wife of William de Vernon in this deed, and in a portion of a Vernon pedigree amongst the Woolley MSS., Alice is also described as the wife of William Vernon. She must, therefore, have been a second wife.

The following is an abstract of a transcript, in Latin, of a charter in a vol. of the Towneley MSS.:—

“To all about to see or hear this writing, &c., know you that I have given, &c., for my soul, and the souls of Margaret, my wife, and my successors, to God and S. Mary and S. Editha of Polesworth (near Tamworth), 5s. of my rent of Harlaston, to be paid annually at the feast of S. John the Baptist, for the maintenance of a lamp with oil, to burn every night in the Chapter of the said House. Witnesses: Rob. de Grendon, Nich. Nuers, Sir Rob. de Thoke, Adam de Herthull, Robert de Vernon, and Robert de Dunes."

Sir William de Vernon was succeeded by his son,

Sir Richard de Vernon, Knt. He was alive in 4 Edward I., but dying without issue was succeeded by his brother,

Robert, who it is supposed died shortly after. Robert held Adstock under his brother Richard. (Testa de Nevill.) The descent of Haddon and other possessions terminated in the male line of the Vernons with this Robert, who appears to have died without male issue, leaving an only daughter, Hawise, who married

Gilbert le Fraunceys, who was afterwards knighted, but about whom but little seems to be known, but he was probably a member of a Yorkshire family of that name. He held Harlaston in right of his wife. He was dead 6 Edward I. (Inq. p. m.), and was succeeded by his son and heir,

Richard, born in 1261. Assumed the name of Vernon. He was presented to the Advowson of Pichcote in 1310, and in 8 Edward II. he conveyed Harlaston and Appleby to his son Richard, who re-conveyed them to his father. He married Isabel, daughter of Sir William Gernon, Lord of Bakewell (by Isabel, his wife), son of Sir Ralph Gernon, Lord of Bakewell, by Elizabeth, his wife, daughter of Robert de Vere, Earl of Oxford. He was apparently alive in 16 Edward II., when his son died (Inq. p. m. 16 Edward II.), who had married Matilda or Maud, daughter and co-heir of William de Camville, Lord of Clifton, co. Staff. In 1337 William de Camville granted to his daughters, Matilda de Vernon and Eleanor, wife of Richard de Penres, his manor of Clifton Camville, with the advowson of the church of Clifton. (Belvoir Chart.) On the Patent Roll 2 Edward III. is a grant and confirmation for the manor of Lanstephen, in Carmarthenshire, to Matilda, formerly the wife of Ric. de Vernon, and Eleanor, her sister, daughters and heiresses of William de Camville.

Richard Vernon, who died in the lifetime of his father, left a son and heir, William de Vernon, born 1314 (Inq. p. m. taken at Bakewell 16 Edward II.), who succeeded his grandfather, Richard.

William de Vernon was succeeded by his son and heir,

Sir Richard de Vernon, Knt., who seems to have been a warrior from the records preserved at Belvoir, and other evidence. One of these records is an indenture in Norman-French, dated 1357, by which he assigns to his trustees, Ric. de Leycester, John de Alrewas, John de Osmonderlowe, Nic. St. Piere, chaplain, Rauf de Parys, chaplain, and John Wolf, chaplain, his manor of Haddon, prior to proceeding to the Holy Land, reserving to himself a right of re-entry if he returned to England, otherwise he directs that his trustees shall enfeoff the said manor to his heir, failing which, to Sir Alverey de Sulney, and his heirs for ever.

Sir Richard Vernon evidently returned to England from the Holy Land, as appears from another deed of later date, also in Norman-French, reciting "That Sir Richard de Vernon is to go across the sea into Gascony in the service of our Lord the King (Edward III.), and of his return the certain time cannot be known, but at the will of God," and by which he settles his manor of Pichecote (Bucks.), together with the advowson of the church there, upon trustees, on condition that if he die without an heir before his return to England, that then the said trustees shall found a chantry of two chaplains of the said manor, perpetually chanting in the said church of Pichecote, and the chapel of Herlaston (Staff.), for the soul of the said Richard, and for the souls of his ancestors and of all Christian people, in the first two years next after the death of the said Sir Richard.

The deed charges the manor with the maintenance of the chaplains in question, and contains the usual clause of reservation of re-entry.

An inventory, in Latin, of the goods of Sir Richard de Vernon at the Manor of Harlaston, mentions iron furnaces in the hall for burning sea coal, and refers to beds ornamented with oak leaves and fleur-de-lis.

A note is appended that after the inventory had been made, Sir Richard took some of the articles included in it away with him to Gascony.

He married Juliana, sister and heiress of Sir Fulke de Pembrugge, Lord of Tong, in Shropshire, by whom he acquired the manor of Tong. She married to her second husband Thomas Wennesley. In 1380 the King granted to Juliana, formerly wife of Richard de Vernon, of Harlaston, Knt., and to Thomas de Wennesley, a lease of two-thirds of Marple and Wibbersley, to hold during the minority of the heir of Richard de Vernon. (Chesh. Records.) Sir Richard de Vernon died in September, 1376 (Inq.), Richard, his son and next heir being nine years of age, and his widow in 1410 aged sixty years and upwards.

Richard de Vernon came of age about 1389, and had livery of two-thirds of Marple and Wibbersley in the following year. He married Johanna, daughter of Rees ap Griffith, Knt., cozen and heir of Sir Richard de Stackpole (Mar. Sett. 1380), and died in 1400 (Inq. p. m. 2 Henry IV.), Richard, his son and heir, being aged ten years. The original will, in Latin, of his widow, Juliana, who long survived him, remains amongst the Belvoir Muniments. It is dated 1437, and it was proved at the Deanery of Pembroke, 12th May, 1439. She gives her body to be buried in the church of S. Michael, of Stackpool, to which she bequeaths 40s. for providing bells. The residue of her goods she gives and bequeaths to Richard de Vernon, her son, Knt., who succeeded, and who proved his age in 1411. He was Treasurer of Calais, Captain of Rouen, and Speaker in the Parliament at Leicester. He married Benedicta, daughter of Sir John Ludlow, of Hodnet and Stokesay, co. Salop, by whom he had a large family. There is a rich alabaster altar tomb in Tong Church, with the recumbent effigies of a Vernon and lady, which are supposed to be this Sir Richard and Benedicta,* his wife. He was succeeded by his eldest son and heir,

Sir William de Vernon, who was found thirty years and upwards in 1450. (Inq. p. m. 30 Henry VI.) Sir William Vernon represented the County of Derby in the Parliament summoned to meet in 1442, and was again elected in 1449 and 1450. He had a grant of the office of Knight Constable of England for life. He married Margaret, daughter and heiress of Sir Robert Pipe and Spernore. Sir William and Margaret were married in 1435, when they had grants of her grandfather's lands. Sir William died 30th June, 1467, and was buried in Tong Church, where there is a fine altar-tomb, with slab inlaid with brasses, having the following inscription (translated):—

“Here lie Sir William Vernun, Knight, sometime Knight Constable of England, son and heir of Sir Richard Vernun, Knight, who sometime was Treasurer of Calais, which Sir William indeed died the last day of the month of June, in the year of our Lord 1467; and Margaret, wife of the said William, daughter and heiress of Sir Robert Pipe and Spernore, Knight, which Margaret indeed died ..... day of the month ..... in the year of our Lord 146..., on whose souls may God be merciful. Amen.”

Margaret Vernon was living in 1470. (Had. Chart.)

Sir William Vernon had seven sons and five daughters. By his will, dated June, 1467, and proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, 27th June, 1468, he bequeaths his body to be buried in the church of S. Bartholomew, in Tong, and directs that a priest be found to sing for his soul at Tong for three years, and that his tomb be made according to his degree. He was succeeded by his son and heir, * Sir Richard and Benedicta erected the east window of Haddon Chapel. Both their names occur on the painted glass.

Sir Henry Vernon, who, by an Inquisition, was found to be twenty-six years of age in 1467. (Inq. p. m. 6 Edw. IV.) He was appointed Governor and Treasurer to Prince Arthur (born 1486), who lived at Ludlow Castle; and when that Prince was created Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester and Flint in 1489, Sir Henry was made a Knight of the Bath; and, according to tradition, Prince Arthur spent much of his time at Haddon with Sir Henry Vernon. One of the apartments at Haddon was called the 'Prince's Chamber.' Sir Henry witnessed the marriage contract between Prince Arthur and the Princess of Arragon. This marriage took place in 1501, when the Prince was only sixteen years of age. Sir Henry represented the County of Derby in Parliament in 1478, and was High Sheriff for Derby 1504. He was one of the nobles, knights, and gentlemen who gathered round the Royal Standard, June, 1487. He married Anne, daughter of John Talbot, Earl of Shrewsbury (Mar. Sett. 6th October, 1466), by whom he had a numerous family, of which three sons are commemorated at Tong, viz., a monument to Arthur, priest, fifth and youngest son; Richard Vernon, Esq., of Haddon, who succeeded his father; and a monument to Humphrey, third son. Sir John, the fourth son, was the ancestor of the Lords Vernon of Sudbury. Sir Henry died 13th April, 1515, and Anne, his wife, 17th May, 1494, and were buried in the Vernon Chapel, in Tong Church, where there is a fine altar-tomb, with stone effigies, commemorating them, which has the following inscription (translated):—

“Here lie the bodies of Sir Henry Vernon, Knight, the founder of this Chantry Chapel, and Dame Anne Talbot, his wife, daughter of John, Earl of Shrewsbury, which said Henry died the 13th day of the month of April in the year of our Lord 1515, and the said Lady Anne died the 17th day of May in the year of our Lord 1494, on whose souls may God be merciful.”

The following extracts are from the will of Sir Henry Vernon, dated 18th January, 1515:—

“Item.—I bequeath my body to be buried at Tong, where I have assigned my selfe to lye. And for as mucche as wt good prayers and almes deeds the soule ys delivered from everlastyng dethe and payne therfor ytt ys that I wyll and bequethe that a Covenable (fitting) preste shall syng for my Sowle my wyffe Sowle, my ffathur and mother and all my chyldern and all Crysten Sowlys and say dayly wt ffull offes of dethe in the sayde Church of Tonge or in the Chappell when ytt ys made," &c. "Item.— I bequeth and gyff for makyng of the sadye tombe and Chappell cth." "Item. I wyell that my sayd tombe and Chappell be made wt in ij yeres next after my deceasse or erst (sooner) and the better and the more hona<sup>ble</sup> for the blode that my wyffe ys comyn of."

John Vernon, eldest son and heir of Sir Henry, died in 1477 in his father's lifetime, and was buried in Bakewell Church. The next in succession was,

Richard Vernon, second son of Sir Henry. From an Inquisition taken in 1515, after the death of his father, he was found to be thirty years of age and upwards. He married Margaret, daughter of Sir Robert Dimock, Knt. (Mar. Sett. 7th Nov., 1507), and died August 14th, 1517, surviving his father only a little over two years, and leaving an only son and heir, George Vernon (Inq. p. m. 16 Hen. VIII.), aged ten years and upwards in 1524.

There is an alabaster altar-tomb in the Vernon Chapel in Tong Church, with recumbent effigies of Richard Vernon and Margaret, his wife, with an inscription in Latin (translated):—

"Here lie the bodies of Richard Vernon of Haddon, Esquire, and Margaret his wife, daughter of Sir Robert Dymmok, Knight, who had issue, George Vernon. Richard indeed died on the Vigil of the Assumption of Saint Mary the Virgin, in the year of our Lord, 1517, and the said Margaret died ..... day of the month ....., in the year of our Lord 15..., on whose souls God Almighty be merciful. Amen."

It is very probable that Margaret, the widow of Richard Vernon, was not buried at Tong, hence the blanks in the dates, as she married secondly Sir William Coffin, Knt., a member of a very ancient family of that name in Devonshire, by whom she appears to have had no issue, as this Sir William Coffyn, by his will, dated 1538, and proved in the following year, devised all his manors and lands in Devon to his nephews. William Coffyn and Margaret, his wife, are described in various deeds in the possession of the Duke of Rutland, as of Haddon, where they probably resided during the minority of George Vernon, who was only three years of age at the time of his father's death in 1517.

Margaret, the widow of the said Sir William Coffyn, and formerly the wife of Richard Vernon, married thirdly, in 1539, Richard Manners, Esq., son of Sir George, and brother of Sir Thomas Manners, first Earl of Rutland. She died in 1550.

Sir George Vernon was the last male of the Vernons who dwelt at Haddon. Camden, alluding to him, says: "Insomuch that Sir George Vernon, Knt., who lived in our time, for his magnificence, for his kind reception of all good men, and his great hospitality, gained the name of King of Peak among the vulgar."

He was twice married; firstly to Margaret, daughter and co-heiress of Sir Gilbert Talboys. Shortly after her death, and on or about the 25th of March, 1558, he married secondly Matilda, daughter of Sir Ralph Longford, of Longford, co. Derby, Knt., by whom he had no issue.

Sir George Vernon died 31st Aug., 1565, when Margaret, then the wife of Sir Thomas Stanley, and Dorothy, the wife of John Manners, Esq., were found, from an Inquisition, to be his heirs, Margaret being aged twenty-five, and Dorothy twenty years of age at the time of his death. (Inq. p. m. 8 Eliz.)

Sir George was buried in Bakewell Church, under a large altar-tomb, upon which are the recumbent effigies of Sir George and his two wives, with an inscription, which has not been completed, the dates of the deaths being left blank.

When the Vernon Chapel and other portions of Bakewell Church were re-constructed in 1841, it was found necessary to disturb the remains in the chapel, and in the report of these proceedings, it is stated that three skeletons of adults were discovered under this tomb, supposed to be the remains of Sir George Vernon and his two wives, but it may be questioned whether Matilda, the second wife of Sir George, was interred in the Vernon Chapel, as she married, secondly, Sir Francis Hastings, of North Cadbury, in Somersetshire, of the family of the Earls of Huntingdon. This marriage took place before April, 1569. (Belvoir Sett.)

A few remarks may be offered in connection with the Vernon monuments in the Chapel. Regarding the small alabaster altar-tomb commemorating John Vernon, son and heir of Sir Henry Vernon, of Haddon, who died in 1477, it has been conjectured that this John was the father of Richard, who succeeded Sir Henry, but this cannot have been the case, on reference to an Inquisition taken in 1515, after the death of Sir Henry, in which Richard is described as the son and heir of Sir Henry, and of the age of thirty years and upwards; accordingly he would be born about 1484, some seven years after the death of John, who would be the elder brother of Richard, and not his father, and could not have been more than ten years of age, as his father's Mar. Sett. is dated 6th October, 1466.

On the division of Sir George Vernon's estates, Tong, Harlaston, and other lands in Staffordshire, passed to Sir Thomas Stanley, of Winwick, co. Lanc., while Haddon, and other large possessions in Derbyshire, and elsewhere, became the property of the family of Manners. In 1565 Margaret, the widow of Sir George Vernon, surrendered her interest under the will of the said Sir George in all his possessions to Thomas Stanley and Margaret, his wife, and to John Manners and Dorothy, his wife.

In a deed dated 12th Dec., 1567, John and Dorothy Manners are described as of Wiverton, co. Notts., a few miles from Belvoir Castle, and in the same deed occur Francis Hastings, and Maud, his wife, late wife of Sir George Vernon, which shows that the widow of Sir George Vernon re-married shortly after his death. In two deeds dated 1569. John Manners and his wife are described respectively as of Uffington, co. Linc., and of Wiverton.

Sir Thomas Stanley and Margaret were buried at Tong. He died 21st Dec., 1576. Margaret was living at Tong in 1594.

That the betrothal and marriage of Margaret, the elder daughter of Sir George Vernon, with Sir Thomas, had none of the elements of romance which surround the alliance of her younger sister is abundantly evident from the numerous references in an early volume of Haddon Household Accounts, from which the following selections have been taken:—

The marriage of Sir Thomas Stanley with Margaret Vernon appears to have taken place between Jan. and May, 1558, when she was about eighteen years of age.

It appears from an Inquisition taken in 1600 (Chesh. Inq.), that Sir Thomas Stanley, Knt., died at Clerkenwell on the 17th November, 1577, and that Margaret, his widow, married secondly, on the 1st Nov., 1579, at Harlaston, William Mather, Esq., and that the said Margaret died at Coventry the 9th Sep., 1596, and that Sir Edward Stanley, Knt., was son and next heir, aged thirty-five and upwards.

There is a remarkably fine monument in Tong Church in commemoration of Sir Thomas Stanley and Margaret, his wife, and Sir Edward, their son, who died in 1632.

Unfortunately, or perhaps fortunately, for the romantic story of the elopement of Dorothy Vernon with John Manners, the volume of accounts from which the foregoing extracts relating to the courtship and marriage of Margaret Vernon, terminate with the year of her marriage in 1558, and the accounts are not resumed until 1564, within which period doubtless the marriage of John Manners with Dorothy Vernon took place. Whether the popular legend of the elopement in question has any foundation or not, will probably remain an unsolved problem. It is a tradition in the family that the marriage was celebrated at Aylestone, near Leicester. If it was a clandestine marriage, it seems rather singular it should have been celebrated at Aylestone, as it was one of the Rutland manors, where John Manners would surely be known, as the family had a residence there long before that time.

No trace of the handwriting of Dorothy has been discovered, beyond her initials across the labels of one or two deeds at Belvoir.

It is needless to pursue the history of the lords of Haddon after it passed to the family of Manners, by the marriage of Dorothy Vernon with John Manners, but the early history of its possessors is somewhat involved, and although many attempts have been made from time to time to elucidate the family history, yet, with the result of these investigations, it will be found that still at the present no two authorities are agreed. One of the principal difficulties in regard to the Vernon genealogy arises from the prevalence of Richards, which renders it difficult to distinguish one from another, as seven Richards occur from the first, who married Avice Avenel, in the latter half of the twelfth century, until the year 1450. The marriages of these Richards have been a source of much perplexity, sometimes the father and son being assigned to the same wife.

It is not probable that there were ever any interments in the chapel at Haddon, but that such were contemplated appears from the following note amongst the Woolley MSS. (Add. Ms. 6669, p. 308, Brit. Mus.):—"A Burying Vault ordered to be made in Haddon Chappell. Lady Rutland's 3 children buried in the Quire at Bakewell, between Sir Geo. Vernon's Tombe and Sir Jno. Manners. She wanted their bones to be removed. Query if done."

The three children were George, Edward, and Roger Manners, infant sons of John, eighth Earl of Rutland, and Frances, his wife.

When Bakewell Church was restored in 1841, three small lead coffins were discovered between the tomb of John and Dorothy Manners and that of Sir George Vernon, which no doubt contained the remains of the three children alluded to.

Haddon Hall was surrounded by a park, enclosed with wooden pales, which must have been of considerable extent from a view of the deer taken in 1637, when it contained 597 bucks and does.

SHOVELBOARD.—The game of Shovelboard was formerly in great repute among the nobility and gentry, and few of their mansions were without a shovelboard, which was a fashionable piece of furniture, generally stationed in the great hall. The length of these tables varied from ten to thirteen yards in length to three feet or more in width, and the game was played with flat pieces of metal pushed from one end of the board, over a mark drawn parallel with the other edge, and about three or four inches from it. (This pastime has been superseded by billiards.)

The names of the rooms occur in the following order:—The wainscotted parlour. The wainscotted hall. The buttery. The strong beer cellar. The bread house. The wine cellar. The bake-house. The bolting-house. The brew-house. The dairy-house, milk-house, and inner-house. The kitchen. The pastry. The inner pastry. The wet-larder. The wash-house or nether dairy. The cellar in the nether court. The chapel. The outward chamber to the best lodging next the chapel leads. The best lodging. The drawing chamber to the great chamber. The great chamber. Amongst the Bakewell charters is a grant by King John, in the first year of his reign, of the manor, or fee, of Bakewell to Ralph Gernon (ancestor of Isabella Gernon, who married Ric. Vernon), and a confirmation of the same by Hen. III., with seals appended. These two charters are in excellent preservation, and are amongst the charters exhibited at Belvoir.

The Gernons remained Lords of Bakewell until 1383, when Sir John Gernon dying without male issue, the manor passed in moieties to his two daughters. It was purchased by Sir Henry Vernon from the representatives of the Gernons in 1502. Moor Hall, the ancient seat of the Gernons, stood about a mile westward of Bakewell, near the edge of the moor, and there were vestiges of it remaining at the beginning of this century.

One of the most interesting deeds relating to Bakewell is a Charter of Liberties, granted by William Gernon, Lord of Bakewell, in 1286, to his Burgesses and free tenants of Bakewell. This charter is in good preservation, and has a seal of dark-green wax appended.

Another beautifully-written charter amongst the Haddon series, is a grant by Edmund Plantagenet, Earl of Lancaster, second son of Hen. III., to the Abbot and Convent of Darley, of a bovate of land near Wirksworth, with a seal bearing a tri-corporate lion, and inscribed :—“Sigillum Edmundi filii Regis Anglie.”

Hereafter are translations of the grant of Bakewell by King John, and the confirmation of the same by Hen. III., already referred to :—

“John, by the Grace of God, King of England, Lord of Ireland, Duke of Normandy and Aquitaine, Count of Anjou, to the Archbishops, Abbots, Earls, Barons, Justices, Sheriffs, Provosts, and all his Bailiffs and faithful men, greeting. Know you that we have granted, and by this our Charter have confirmed to Ralph Gernon, for his homage and service the land of Bakewell, with all its appurtenances, which we have assigned to him for sixteen pounds, land (1. libratis terræ).* To have and to hold to him and his heirs, of us and our heirs, by the service of one Knight's fee, for all service. Wherefore we will and strictly command, that the said Ralph, and his heirs after him, may have and hold the aforesaid land of Bakewell, with all its appurtenances, well and in peace, freely and quietly, wholly and honourably, in all places and things, with all liberties and free customs pertaining to it, for the said service. Witnesses: William de St. Mariæ Ecclesia, Bishop of London, Philip de Poitiers, Bishop of Durham, Herbert Poore, Bishop of Salisbury, Geoffrey Fitz-Piers, Earl of Essex, Will. Marshal, Earl of Pembroke, Robert fil. Roger, Hugh Bardolph, Will. Brewere, Robert de Turnham. Given by the hands of Simon, Archdeacon of Wells, and John de Gray, Archdeacon of Gloucester, at Porchester, xxvi. day of April, in the first year of our reign (1200)."

Mutilated seal of brown wax, suspended by a silk cord. On the obverse, an equestrian figure of the King. Reverse, King John enthroned.

"Henry, by the Grace of God, King of England, Lord of Ireland, Duke of Normandy and Aquitaine, Count of Anjou. To the Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, Priors, Earls, Barons, Sheriffs, Provosts, Ministers, and to all his Bailiffs and faithful men, greeting. Know you that we have granted, and by this our Charter, have confirmed to our welbeloved Ralph Gernun the land of Bakewell, with all its appurtenances, which the Lord King John, our father, gave and granted to the said Ralph, and by his Charter confirmed. Wherefore we will and strictly command that the said Ralph, and his heirs, may have and hold the said land, with all its appurtenances, well and in peace, freely, quietly, and wholly, with all liberties and free customs pertaining to the same, as the Charter of him our father, which the said Ralph has thereof, reasonably testifies. Witnesses: Eustace de Fauconberg, Bishop of London, Joceline, Bishop of Bath, Walter Maclerk, Bishop of Carlisle, Hugh de Burgh, Earl of Kent, Justice of England, William Marshal, Earl of Pembroke, Gilbert, Earl of Gloucester and Hereford, Hugh de Nevill, Philip de Albinaco, Ralph fil. Nich., Hugh Dispensar, Henry de Capella, and others. Given by the hand of the Venerable Father, Ralph de Nevill, Bishop of Chichester, our Chancellor at Westminster, VI<sup>o</sup> May, in the twelfth year of our reign (1228)."

The Painted Windows in the Chapel of S. Nicholas, Haddon Hall.

By the REV. CHAS. KERRY.

F all the ancient painted glass remaining in Derbyshire, there is hardly any so perfect as in the north window of the chapel at Haddon. As it is obviously of the same period as the large east window, executed at the period of the highest development of the glass painter's art in England, it possesses some of its most charming features. Its admirable preservation is, without doubt, owing to its sheltered position in the south-west corner of the courtyard. The other windows in the outer walls of the building have suffered in proportion to their exposure. Some of the finest portions of the glass were stolen in the year 1828, and, it is believed, conveyed to the Continent. Certain it is, that the south window of the chancel is all but denuded, save a few fragments in the tracery, whilst the large east window has lost its two side lights, together with the heads of S. Mary and S. John the Baptist in the second and fourth. The two latter figures can hardly have suffered from iconoclastic insanity, because the head of our Lord in the centre still remains.

The north window consists of three lower and larger lights, with six smaller ones or "batements" in the tracery above. The ground of the main lights is composed of figured quarries, within a narrow border of plain glass. The three principal figures form a central belt of charming, but subdued, gem-like colouring, running across the whole. A shield of arms decorates the centre of each basement panel. The batements above are all occupied with small figures of saints on white glass, with brown shading, and relieved with touches of stain.

The first of the larger lights has the figure of S. Michael, with a seven-headed dragon beneath his feet, pierced with his sword. The left foot of the archangel crushes the wing of the reptile, while the right on the neck depresses the raised and threatening heads of the dragon.

TREATMENT.—The face, hands, and feet on the exposed portions of the angel are in white glass.* The body is clothed in a feathery covering in yellow stain. The feathers are arranged like laminæ, or plates of mail, gradually increasing in length towards the knees, which they protect—dependent. This ærial mail terminates at the ankles. The plumage of the wings—also stained—is beautifully arranged; the inner feathers diverge horizontally from the shoulders, while the returning outer margin of the wings are arranged vertically, lipping the extremities of the inner feathers. Each wing feather is adorned with a peacock eye within and without.

A cincture of ruby is folded loosely round the loins. The right hand of the angel rests on the dexter corner of a tilting shield, bearing a floriated stained cross, on a white ground, from the centre of which projects a barbed boss, while the left hand grasps the hilt of a plain cross-guarded sword.

A white mantle, lined with ermine, covers both shoulders, and falls behind the figure to the ground.

The dragon is a weird-looking creature of a bluish tinge, with green tufts of hair here and there on his body.

This, and the two other principal figures, stand on the chequered floor of a slightly-raised square pediment, with smaller square projections placed diagonally at its angles, after the plan of an angular buttress.

In the bottom panel of this light is a shield ar. fretty, gules, with eight plates, evidently for Vernon. The space above this coat, resembling a chief, is vacant, and filled with plain, modern glass, but which, as appears from the shield in the adjoining light, once contained the family or bearer's name. The Vernons of Sudbury bear argt, a fret sable, with a canton gules. Henry Vernon, Esq., of Farnham, Surrey, has on his brass (1656) a canton, and a frette with a plain quatrefoil in the uppermost opening, as if for difference.

The centre light has a fine representation of S. Anne teaching the youthful Virgin. The design is much like the treatment of the same subject in the east window of All Saints', North Street, York, and may have been executed by the same artist, for the two are apparently coæval.

S. Anne is attired in a white mantle, with an embroidered lower border, relieved with stain. She wears a widow's hood and wimple. The outer head-dress is of ermine, lined with blue, and is doubled over backwards from the forehead. The nimbus is white, with a yellow cusped trefoiled border. The principal dress, or kirtle, of the mother, is of ruby; a little of which is visible below the mantle on the dexter side.

The Virgin child has a wreath of small white-clustered pearls round the head, with a large amber or golden ornament in the centre. Her jacket, or jupon, is green, with a lower border of ermine. The skirt of her frock is blue, of a very fine, chaste quality, gracefully folded at the feet, which it conceals.

A narrow apron, or fall, of ermine depends from the neck, while attached to the waist is a jewelled pendant of crowned roses formed of pearls, each with a golden centre: the crowns are also yellow. The right hand of the mother is placed by the upper arm of the child, whilst the left hand on the other side touches the margin of the book held by the little maiden. The eyes of the child are slightly raised, as if in contemplation. The device on the shield beneath is destroyed, but above is the name Ricard Vernon.

EAST LIGHT, NORTH WINDOW, HADDON CHAPEL.

The third light depicts S. George contending with the dragon, a symbolical representation of the contest between the principles of good and evil, or the combat between the Christian and his spiritual enemy. The saint is portrayed in white armour, delicately shaded with brown. On his head is a vizored bascinet with a neckguard behind, whilst his throat is protected by a gorget of mail. The visor is raised, showing a handsome, manly face within. Two roundels protect the armpits. The rest of the body is covered with armour of plate. Over the shoulder is thrown a short mantle, with leafy fimbriations of pounced work. The right hand above the shoulder grasps the end of a lance thrust down the throat of the red dragon on the left, whilst the warrior in sollerets tramples his adversary under foot. The sword is suspended behind the figure, the hilt being visible beneath the left elbow.

The third and last shield has only what looks like a first quarter remaining, viz., a fesse dancette argt, charged with three martlets sable.

The second figure holds a knife in his left hand, and may be designed for S. Bartholomew.

The next, holding a sword (stained yellow), is, perhaps, intended for S. James the Great.

The sixth, and last, has a fetter lock at the end of a chain in his left hand, undoubtedly designed for S. Leonard, the patron of prisoners and captives. All these have their skirt, or lower robe, powdered or decorated with small, conventional roses, in yellow stain, with invected borders, and an annulet in the centre.

The background of the principal figures is composed of quarries, with decorated centres. The lowest panels have been re-glazed with plain glass, and the coats of arms re-set. Round the central shield are five quarries from some other and later window, each bearing a talbot, stained. A quarry above the shield has the Staffordshire knot. It is probable that, for the sake of uniformity, the glazier has removed the name of Richard Vernon from the first shield, to which it seems to belong, and placed it above the obliterated arms in the centre light.

THE EAST WINDOW of the chapel, which is very large, has five lofty lights below the tracery line, and thirteen openings above. The tracery in the centre light differs from the rest, owing to the overlapping of the two side designs, the centre light being common to both. The lowest tracery opening over this central light is a trefoil; higher still, two triangles, and at the top, two "batements." On either side of the central tracery are three "batements," each of the series being backed by an "angell."*

The original scheme of the glass seems to have consisted of a Crucifixion in the centre, with SS. Mary and John on either side, each of these being backed by other saints in the outer lights. The figure of S. John Baptist seems to have been placed in the room of S. John the disciple, because the figure of the Virgin on the other side occupies her normal position. We may hence safely conclude that the figure of the Evangelist formerly occupied the corresponding position under the cross opposite the Virgin Mother, and that therefore the figure of the beloved disciple was one of the stolen portions. It was probably of singular merit and beauty, for the mediæval artists seemed always to put forth their best efforts on their delineations of this favourite character. From the pose of the Baptist, turning towards the central figure, it is probable that he was originally placed in the outer light on the same side, and that the fragment of the episcopal figure in the bottom of that outer light was brought here from some other window—perhaps the empty south one. There has obviously been an attempt to balance the window after the robbery, by glass brought from some other place in the chapel, and this is abundantly proved by the corresponding piece on the opposite side having a small kneeling figure at a prayer desk, utterly at variance with the scheme and proportions of the whole window.

The larger lights of the tracery all retain (save one) their original single figures. The two "batement" above the second light show the Annunciation: the kneeling angel occupying one, and the B.V.M. the other. The central trefoil, the two triangles, and the "angells" have been filled with foliations shaded and stippled in brown, on a stained or golden ground. The royal shield intrudes itself in the uppermost leaf of the trefoil. In any restoration of this window this should be removed: it is a showy blemish, quite out of tone and keeping with the rest. These arms are, however, of considerable antiquity, apparently of the Plantagenet period.

Just above the inscription which runs across the whole window, near the base, are three shields, in the three centre lights, each supported by a demi-angel, with wings slightly displayed, and holding a scroll with the assignation of the arms, but the names are almost concealed by the crossbars. The first shield has a lion rampant gules, for Ludlow, the arms of Sir John Ludlow, of Hodnet, Shropshire, the father of Benedicta, wife of Sir Richard Vernon, who erected this window. The second, or central coat, is that of Vernon, argt. fretty, sable, with a canton. The third shield is blank. No doubt this heraldic display once occupied the whole breadth of the window. The commemorative inscription, happily perfect, is as follows:—

The principal figure is wanting in this first light, and the quarries are all plain. At the bottom, resting on the inscription band, is a small, mutilated figure in plate armour, with sollerets, kneeling at a draped prayer desk, on which lies an open book. His sword-belt is decorated with square jewelled bosses. The scabbard has a central line of annulets, perhaps meant for jewels, down its side, and is guarded at the end with a pointed metallic casing. On the right arm is a shield bearing the Vernon arms, fretty, sable, having a spiked boss in the centre. This fragment is set in quarries, after the style of the lowest ones in the central light, and foreign to this window. The whole of this piece is executed in white glass. The second light has two plain “baterments” at the top, depicting the Annunciation, with a kneeling angel holding the salutation (“Ave Maria,” etc.) on a scroll in one light, with the B.V.M. in the other. The latter, with a slight inclination of the head towards the messenger, is a graceful figure. In her right hand is an open book, slightly lowered; her left hand is raised, as if surprised, and wondering at the visitation. A vase of lilies is in the foreground. The central figure of the light beneath is the B.V. Mary, keeping her station by the Cross. The head is lost. The whole of the nimbus is in yellow stain, with an inner trefoiled border, left white, imparting a fine effect. The left hand, with a kerchief or portion of her mantle, is raised as if to dry her tears. Her right hand, holding a book, depends on the right side. The mantle, or uppermost robe, is white, with a delicately embroidered border consisting of a band of white roundels, with centres and ground of gold. The under-kirtle is of blue.

One of the uppermost of the quarries has a sun in its glory, with white and yellow rays. Above the Virgin, and inserted in the quarried ground, is a roundel about the width of two quarries, containing the symbol of S. Matthew the Evangelist.

Beneath the figure of the Virgin is the first shield of the three remaining of the heraldic series, which must at one time have been carried through every light. Each of them shows an angel supporting a shield, suspended by a thong passing round the neck, whilst a scroll, designating the arms, is held above the shield, though now much hidden by the cross bars. The wings of the angels, slightly displayed, are stained, and the plumage is relieved with the "eye," as in the north window before described: indeed, the whole treatment is very similar. The head of the angel is lost, but the nimbus (nebulée) remains, the cloudy members being arranged cross-wise with singular effect.

The shield bears "argt. a lion rampant, gules," the arms of Sir John Ludlow, the father of Benedicta (the wife of Sir Richard Vernon), who, with himself, is commemorated by the inscription. The lower part of the shield is supported by two angels couchant on either side, each with a sustaining hand near the base point. In every case the heads of these smaller angels are missing.

The third, or centre light, has a singularly beautiful representation of the Crucifixion, at a higher elevation than the side figures. The stem of the cross is missing below the feet, but no doubt the original cross was planted in a grassy mound, on the same level as the base line of the rest. The glazing has been made good by quarries from some other part of the window.

The flesh treatment is all on white glass, and shaded with brown. The waist cloth is ruby, and the cross is tinted with yellow stain. Four angels—two on each side—attend the suffering Redeemer. The two uppermost with elevated wings, and each with a chalice, are catching the sacred blood issuing from the wounds in the hands: another is similarly engaged at the pierced side, whilst the fourth, on the opposite side, with its wings crossed over the head, is gazing downwards in deepest sorrow.

The arms of the Crucified are in an almost vertical position, the crowned head is slightly bowed to His right, and the legs are arranged downwards in a line with the stem of the cross; the extremities of the feet are lost.

Just below the intersection of the cross is a gracefully curved scroll, bearing in Lombardic characters the initials "I·D·R·I." The treatment of the hair is similar to that described in the north window.

The shield supported by the angels at the base is that of the Vernons—argt. fretty, sable, with a canton (which should be gules, but has been filled in with white). The head of the principal supporting angel here is the only one left of the series.

The "batement" at the top of the fourth light have each a suitable figure, but the annealing of the "colour" could not have been perfect, because all the surface painting has perished, and the contour is preserved only by the lead lines.

The third principal figure below represents the Baptist with an Agnus Dei lying on a book, resting on the left arm, while the Harbinger is pointing to the Lamb with his right. S. John is clothed with a camel's skin, to which the animal's feet and tail are attached, the latter very large and hairy. All details are executed on white glass, duly shaded with brown and tinted with stain. The Agnus Dei holds a cross, with a streamer attached to the stem. The whole figure and its treatment is very similar to that in All Saints', North Street, York. The earth is of a brownish tint, with the grass and herbage finely relieved with stain.

The shield in the base is blank. The head and left side of the supporting angel are missing, but the hands and scroll remain.

The fifth, and last, light is capped by a small "batement" and an "angell." The outline of a figure only, exists in the former, and one fragment of the leafy filling remains in the latter. This light, like the first, has lost its principal figure—unless the fragment at the bottom once formed a part of it. It represents the lower part of the figure of a bishop, in full canonicals, with a pastoral staff.

The chasuble is white, powdered with quasi roses stained, with a richly-embroidered orfray, also heightened with gold. The dalmatic is fringed with blue. The alb is white, with a rich orfray at the feet. The grass is boldly delineated on a brownish-matted ground, and brightened with stain. Altogether this is a well-wrought and beautiful fragment.

“  ND whilst these things were doing, Devonshire arose and said unto the King, ‘O King, live for ever; let thine enemies fall down before the face of thy mighty men. Behold now, if I have found favour in thy sight, grant unto thy servant thy Royal Commission, that I may raise a regiment in the province where I dwell: for why should thy servant be idle when the enemies of the King are conspiring against him?’

“ And the saying pleased the King, and he answered him, ‘Do as thou hast said: and, of the regiment to be raised, be thou Colonel.’

“ Now this Devonshire was a mighty man, honoured of his King, and beloved of his country. He had been twice Viceroy of the kingdom of Ireland, and, moreover, he was Lieutenant of the county of Derby.

“And he drew near unto Derby and said unto the rulers thereof and to the mighty men of the neighbouring villages, ‘Draw near unto me all ye that are loyal and true of heart, and hearken to my voice. For Issachar, the Pretender, is approaching: he hath taken the capital of Caledonia, he threateneth to bring us to bondage, to put a yoke upon our necks, and make us bow down to idols. Now, therefore, be ye steadfast and unmovable: gird every man his sword upon his thigh, and let us behave ourselves valiantly, that George, the King, may know that the men of Derby are good and true.’ Moreover, he said unto them, ‘Unstring all your purses that we may raise us a regiment, and I will contribute largely thereto: my son also shall lay on an helping hand.’

“And he began to collect, albeit many who had large possessions were poor in spirit: and the sum collected amounted to six thousand talents.

“And he began to appoint Captains over Tens, and Captains over Fifties, Lieutenants and Standard Bearer appointed He.

“Moreover, at the request of Nathan, were men appointed, not men of valour, serving only for pay: and this grieved Devonshire sorely, for he said, ‘Surely we shall become a scorn and derision to our enemies.’

“And the number of the Regiment was six hundred men.

“And they were arrayed in blue according to the tradition of Samuel the scribe, albeit it was a colour of no repute, for the men of that garb had fled before their enemies in Germany.

“Now there was among the Captains a man named Lowe, of the tribe of H—l—d;* he was a mighty hunter, and he said to his company, ‘Verily, Issachar and his men are rebels, therefore will we pursue them unto the uttermost corners of the land until we have destroyed them’; for he said in his heart They will flee before us even as the timorous hare fleeth.

“And he made a great boasting among his kinsfolk and acquaintance saying, ‘My men will follow me wherever I go.’

“And Devonshire sent letters unto the several officers saying, ‘Gather yourselves together, both you and your men, that I may review you.’

* Hazlewood.

“ So they assembled and came to Derby even as he had said unto them. And they drew out into a plain called the Holmes (the same is encompassed by the River Derwent), and were reviewed there.

“ And Devonshire looked, and behold many of them were striplings, and not able to wield the sword.

“ And he shook his head and said, ‘Are those thy mighty men, O Derby? The Lord protect thee, for vain is the help of these men.’

“ And whilst they were yet in the field, tidings were brought, saying, ‘Issachar is at Ashbourne, and he will be with you on the morrow.’

“ And when Devonshire heard these words his wrath was kindled, and he said, ‘Surely their advance guard cannot exceed six hundred men? Why then should we be afraid? So let every man be of good cheer, and prepare himself for battle. Let us meet them on the Plains of Shirley, for I trust in the Lord we shall discomfit them.’

“ Albeit fear came upon them and sorrow, so that they hearkened not unto the voice of Devonshire, for they said: ‘Should we be slain, our wives would weep and our daughters would make lamentations.’ So every man took up his weapon and prepared to flee.

“ And when Devonshire saw that he prevailed not, he reasoned with them, saying, ‘If you are determined to go, let us join ourselves to William, the King’s son, who lieth in Staffordshire, or unto Wade, the General, who is in the province of York; peradventure we may serve our country.’

“ And they communed among themselves, saying, ‘If we join ourselves to William we shall be in great danger, but if we join ourselves to Wade, then shall we be safe, for behold he is a peaceable man.’

“ So they went forward to Nottingham under covert of the night. And Devonshire said: ‘Go, refresh yourselves, lest you faint by the way, and lest you be slain on empty stomachs.’

“ And there was given to each man a portion of bread and cheese; moreover, they had strong drink in abundance.

“And about the tenth hour they departed, some shouting as for a victory, others with weeping and swearing and gnashing of teeth, and the cry of them was great.

“And they journied and came to Burrows Ash, a village in the way as thou goest to Nottingham. There they made war upon the poultry, moreover they did eat, and drank much strong drink, and departed forgetting to pay.

“And it came to pass as they drew nigh unto Nottingham that the noise and fame of them was heard, and it was told, saying, ‘Issachar is at hand, verily he is on this side Stapleford,’ and the men of Nottingham were right sore afraid, and their hearts failed them. And they sent messengers to spy out the road and to bring them intelligence.

“And the messengers returned, saying, ‘It is even so as you have heard: moreover his army consists of ten thousand men.’

“And the Rulers thereof arose, and laid their heads together, saying, ‘Lo, the young man cometh for money, let every man prepare his mite, and it shall be well with the town, and he will be merciful unto our wives and to our daughters.’

“Albeit he came not, so the money was otherwise disposed.

“And it came to pass that Devonshire arrived at Nottingham, and when the men of the town, even the men of Nottingham, saw that they had been afraid where there was no danger, they threw up their hats, saying, ‘God bless King George, and may all the machinations of Issachar come to naught.’

“Albeit, Issachar was at Derby, and heard them not. And when they had refreshed themselves they looked upon one another, and said, ‘This is no abiding place for us, neither is there any safety in Nottingham.’ And they journied northward, towards Mansfield, by the way of Sherwood. The same is the King’s forest.

“Now there was among them a standard-bearer named Mills, of the tribe of St. Giles: he was a man of war from his youth, but a great boaster; moreover, he was a publican and a sinner.

“And he, vaunting himself, said, ‘In the days of my youth I was accounted a man of valour, and when a drunken blacksmith offended me I smote him with the edge of my sword, that he died. So will I also do to Issachar, for what is he that defyeth the armies of George our King.'

"And whilst they journied there came a lying messenger unto them, saying, 'Issachar cometh with speed: he will be with you in half an hour.' And Mills cried out with a loud voice, saying, 'Halt, ye men in the front, for our rear is sorely pressed, and we shall inevitably be cut off.'

"And they laughed him to scorn, saying, 'How is the mighty fallen, and his honour laid in the dust.' Nevertheless they slacked not their pace, and happy was the man that was swiftest of foot. And they sent out messengers to spy out the road, lest they should be surprised unawares. And they arrived safe at Mansfield, and there abode that day.

"And the messengers returned, having heard in the night much talking and a noise like unto the tramping of an army. And they made their report unto Devonshire, saying, 'Now of truth the young man approacheth, we have seen them with our eyes, and their vanguard is about two thousand.'

"And when the men of Captain Lowe heard this they cried, saying, 'Captain, what shall we do to be saved?' And he answered them, saying, 'Run, lads, run,' and he turned his back and fled, and they followed him. This was done that it might be fulfilled which was spoke unto Cope, the Squire, saying, 'My men will follow me wherever I go.' And they fled in great confusion, and many being assaulted with the fumes of liquor were sick with fear.

"Albeit it was a false alarm, for it was only an herd of cattle which their owners were driving to a place of security.

"And one of these men lost in his flight a warlike instrument called a drum, yet he turned not back to look after it.

"And Gr—H—n, the Lieutenant, came riding furiously, and he whipt his horse cruelly, saying, 'Flee swiftly, for on thy speed dependeth my life.'

"And he saw not the drum, but rode upon it and burst it, and the noise thereof was like unto the report of a great gun, and the beast was in a fright, and threw his rider to the ground, and he roared terribly, crying, 'Oh, I am slain': and the stench of that man was grievous to be borne.

"And when they came to Retford they abode until word was brought that the young man was returned from Derby by the way which he came. And they returned back, and when they came nigh unto Derby they gave great shouts, saying, 'Hail, Derby, happy are we to behold thee, for we greatly feared never to have seen thee again.'

"And they came unto Derby with joy and gladness. Albeit they were soon discharged, for Issachar had taken the money which should have maintained them.

"So they were discharged. Each man went his way, some to their labours, some against their wills, but others said, 'We are gentlemen, neither will we any more do servile work,' and those adhered to Granby the Marquess.

"Now the rest of the acts of the Blues, are they not well known? And the money that was expended by them, is it not written in the book of Samuel the Scribe? And these men are called Drivers of Cattle unto this very day."

Notes on a Measure of Brass, or Standard Bushel, dated A.D. 1677, and formerly in public use at Ashborne in the County of Derby.

By W. R. HOLLAND.

---

THE accompanying illustration represents a Brass or Bronze Measure, now in my possession, the capacity of which is equal to a Winchester Bushel, and which was anciently chained at the covered Market Cross which formerly stood near the bottom of the Market Place at Ashborne.

The Winchester Bushel was first established as a fixed standard by King Edgar, who reigned from A.D. 950 to 975.

The Ashborne Measure was doubtless used principally as a gauge for testing and authenticating wooden measures of like capacity, pursuant to an Act of Parliament of the 22nd year of King Charles II. (A.D. 1670), entitled "An Act for ascertaining the Measures of Corn and Salt throughout the Realm." The following are extracts from that statute :—

"If any Person or Persons after the Nine and twentieth day of September One thousand six hundred and seventy, shall sell any Sort of Corn or Grain, ground or unground, or any Kind of Salt, usually sold by the Bushel, either in open Market, or any other Place, by any other Bushel or Measure than that which is agreeable to the Standard marked in his Majesty's Exchequer, commonly called 'The Winchester Measure,' containing Eight Gallons to the Bushel, and no more or less, and the said Bushel stricken even by the Wood or Brim of the same by the Seller, and sealed as this Act directs, he or they shall forfeit for every such offence the sum of Forty Shillings," &c., &c. (Sect. 2.)

Section 4 relates to the gauging and sealing of various measures, which are described as a Bushel, Half-Bushel, Peck, Gallon, Pottle, Quart, Pint, and Half-Pint (a pottle is half a gallon).

"And to the End that there may be a just and certain Measure (to determine all Controversies) gaged as this Act directs, be it further enacted, That at the Charge of such Person or Persons respectively, who shall have the Toll or Profit of the Market, &c., there shall be before the said Nine and twentieth Day of September, One Measure of Brass provided, and chained in the publick Market Place; upon pain to forfeit and lose for every Person so neglecting respectively the sum of Five Pounds," &c., &c. (Ibid., Sect. 5.)

In Derbyshire and the neighbouring counties a bushel is commonly called a "strike," from the immemorial practice, after filling the measure with corn, of striking off all that is higher than the rim with a flat and straight piece of wood. This usage is alluded to by the words, "and the said Bushel stricken even by the Wood or Brim of the same by the Seller." The practice of striking off the superfluous corn is alluded to in a subsequent Act, 22 & 23 of Charles II., which forbade the "shaking of the said Bushel or Measure by the Buyer before it be struck," upon pain of a fine of £5, and the forfeiture "of all Corn, Grain, or Salt," bought or sold contrary to the Act. According to this enactment "good measure" could evidently be given, although not "pressed down and shaken together" (St. Luke vi. 38).—Corn of all kinds is now generally sold by weight.

The dimensions, &c., of the Ashborne Bushel are as follows:—Height from ground, 1 foot; depth inside, 9 in.; circumference 5 ft. 2 $\frac{3}{4}$  in.; width across, 1 ft. 8 in.; colour, a rich dark green

It stands on three feet. On the outer circumference are the following words and figures in bold raised characters:—

ASHBORNE : IN : THE : COVNTY : DERBYS : 1677.

THE ASHBOURNE BRASS STANDARD BUSHEL.

Between the words there is a good representation of the Royal Arms of Great Britain and Ireland as borne by the Stuart line, viz. :—Quarterly; 1 and 4 Grand Quarters, France modern and England quarterly; 2nd Grand Quarter, Scotland; 3rd Grand Quarter, Ireland. The supporters, crown, motto, and garter ribbon are the same as at present.

Adam del Shawe for j mess. & vj acres of land in ffroggecote ij<sup>s</sup> iiij<sup>d</sup>, & suit of the mill. He holds by charter of lord Richard de Vernon Knight, & by foreign service.

The Inquest said that Gattescroft is outside the bounds of Grisecloufeld, and that thirteen acres of land and one rood are in Bromley, of which two acres & j rood of land Richard de Ruley claimed to hold by charter: and one acre of ground lies . . . and that one acre of land is in Pippe grenis and the Buttes at the Boles. They said also that four acres of land are outside the wood of Corshurst which Philip le Leche claimed to hold by charter. They said also that one acre of land is at the entrance to Torhurst lying near the meadow. They said also that Richard de Ruley holds at will two acres of land in Depedale clif (see first entry). Mem<sup>d</sup> that iij acres are upon the mulnehull &  $\frac{1}{2}$  acre beyond j acre near Oskelmedewe side. The above-mentioned acre Philip le Leche claimed by a charter which makes no mention of them. If he claims to hold v acres of land in Bromlei no mention is made of Overby . . . nor of Nether Bromley, of which in Bromley-overe & Offechere are xij acres & j rood, of which the same Philip claims v acres by charter as his, & Richard de Ruyle claims to hold ij acres & j rood. And Philip & William his father claim to hold the whole of the remainder.

(The particulars of this inquest are written in another and a larger hand. The following is by the former scribe):—

Richard de Vernon who last died gave to William le Leche & his heirs all my portion of a certain wood which is called Tozeshurst, and all my land and my meadow, four measures of the same wood with j acre of land which Ralph Brun once held in Bobenhull, lying between the Stone cross (“cruce[m] lapideam”) upon Astly fege in length on one part, and the tenement of John de Calvore on the other.

And in breadth between Rymeles on one part and the land of the said John de Calvore. I have given and granted to the same William five acres of land upon Brumleie together with part of a certain place of land called the "Grene" in Basselowe, lying between Olveston & the vill of Basselowe. Holding to him & to his heirs of the same & his heirs for ever by the service of vij<sup>s</sup> & iij<sup>d</sup> for all things save foreign service, suits of court and multure.

Richard de Vernon son of William de Vernon gave to William son of Hugo de Stokis, this Hugo was father of Richard de Ruyle, for homage and his service the whole of Mutland with toft and croft in the vill and territory of Bobenhull,—that viz. which Jordan son of Matthew de Stanedon once held with the appurts. and w<sup>t</sup> the assart which Roger de Griseclif once held in divers places in the two Bromeleies and in Pipegrenes holding of me & my heirs to himself & his heirs by the accustomed services, paying iij<sup>d</sup> for all things, foreign service excepted.

It is agreed by Matilda de Vernon that none of her tenants shall leave her manor without any intimation of the same under penalty of half a mark for each desertion.

Hasselow Court, Wednesday in the Vigil of S. Simon and Jude. Anno R.R. 30 Edw. III. (1356).

Excused:—Will. de Ruyle, Rob. Pye.

John Fox, plaintiff, against Will. Leche on the plea of trespass.

He said that W. Leche had depastured his beasts in his growing corn, who was ordered to recuperate Fox with 10 sheaves of corn. Richard Wastel complained that Henry de Coupland had committed the like offence. Coupland was ordered to compensate Wastel by giving him xxiiij sheaves.

Henry de Hostelar had trespassed with his pigs in the corn of Walter de Leche, doing injury to the am<sup>t</sup> of vj<sup>s</sup> viij<sup>d</sup>.

Inquisition taken on the oaths of Rog. North, Will. fil Rob., Giles de Leche, John de Endessore, Ralph le Leche, John le Wright, Geoffry le Leche, Ric. fil Rob., Ric. Swan, John fil Robert, Rob. Taylour, Will. Elliott, who said that Rob.

son of Rog. le Leche who held of the lord half a mess. & another tenement did not come to do fealty. That Rob. de Hethcote made default of court. In mercy.

✠ That John de Couston who held an open field called 'Dylfeld' by military service, and a bovate in 'Grystlyffeld,' is dead,* and is dau. Emma is under age, whereupon the land is assumed by the lord in the name of guardian.

✠ William de Calvour who held of the lord a mess. & a bovate of land called Stonhall by military service is dead, and his dau. Cecily is under age, wherefore the land is now in the hands of the lord as guardian.

Presented that a place of land called 'Pengersleye' contains ij acres, parcel of the manor. It is arranged that Alan Foliaumb shall have it at the rent of iij<sup>d</sup> per ann.

✠ Geoffrey atte Wode who held of the lord one mess. & a bovate & a half of land, and a cottage, is dead, by whose death the lord had a moiety of a vessel—"vase" value ij<sup>s</sup>. Whereupon Alice wife of the said Geoffrey sought one third part of the said tenement, according to the custom of the manor, & the said cottage and a moiety of a bovate (i.e.,  $\frac{1}{3}$  of the whole) was assigned to her.

Ralph le Leche came and took up the mess. and the bovate which Geoffrey at Wode formerly held, by the service due & accustomed, and gave xx<sup>s</sup> for his admission, and did fealty, and pledged himself to keep the same in good repair, by Richard son of Robert and William son of Robert. Alice, wife of Geoffrey atte Wode paid a fine of iij<sup>d</sup> for brewing the following year.

(This license seems to have been allowed to widows to form further provision for their support.)

Roger de Wynfeld & John de Crech (probably old neighbours and quarrymen from S. Wingfield and Crich) came and took the quarry this year paying lxxv<sup>s</sup> viij<sup>d</sup> at the feasts of S. James and S. Mark by equal portions.

* In a subsequent entry this tenant is termed Nicholas de Songston, and his daughter 'Emma' as here.

On a strip attached to the margin of this roll is the following:—

“Memorand. That Richard de Vernon Kt. lord of Basselowe, granted to Robert de Hethcote the custody of the lands and the heir of William de Calvour, viz: of Cecily daughter of the said William, and one bovate of land w<sup>t</sup> the appurts. in Basselowe, having & holding the same until the lawful age of the said heir, save the services due unto the lord. In testimony of which the aforesaid lord has placed his seal to this letter. Given at Haddon on Wednesday next before the feast of Palm Sunday, Anno xxx Edward III.

John le Skynner came & took up a cottage called 'Holweyrede' in Baslow which Will. le Boller formerly held, & did fealty.

Presented that William le Leche unjustly detained his rent of ix<sup>d</sup> for a field called 'Horseleye'—also he unjustly kept back vj<sup>d</sup> of the rent for dame Susanna Feld, and distrained for the rent of two back years. His arrearage amounts to xij<sup>d</sup>. It is ordered to be paid.

Presented that Giles son of John, and Roger North cut down the lord's wood without licence.

It. Stephen de Ruyler fished the lord's waters with a "Law-sper."*

It. William son of Robert le Leche injured five houses at the Ford to the damage of xx<sup>s</sup>. Ordered to be distrained until he pay for the waste.

* (Law spear. Law = lake. Law-sper = Lake spear.)

Margaret de Ruyle came and made satisfaction to the lord for the custody of Joan her daughter who is within age for j messuage held of the lord, and iij acres lying in Bubnell : and she gave to the lord vj<sup>s</sup> viij<sup>d</sup> for the wardship of the said Joan. Pledge Richard le Leche. To be paid at Pentecost.

It was granted by the lord that a cottage upon Baslow Green which Geoffry Boler formerly held should be held by the Brethren of Saint Mary's Guild of Saint Mary of Basselowe celebrated in the church, holding the same at will to the lord at the yearly rent of xij<sup>d</sup>, and she did fealty according to custom, and it was accustomed to pay x<sup>d</sup> p ann.

Robert de Hethcote gave to the lord for the marriage and wardship of Cecily daughter & heir of William de Calvour until the full age of the said Cecily, xiijs iiiij<sup>d</sup> by pledge of Roger North paying the same at Pentecost next.

In dorso. (Apparently a draft deed.)

Know ye all that we Thomas Symonde of Tamworth, Burgess, and John Symonds of the same are chiefly held and by this present writing are firmly bound to Richard Vernon of Harlston Knight, in the sum of twenty pounds of good & lawful money—Paying to the same Richard or to his true attorney on the feast of ——— without any delay, in regard to that we are bound to pay, doing faithfully and well as we are engaged by these presents, we, our heirs, and our executors. In testimony of which, to this present writing we have affixed our seals.

[The rolls of the next two courts are of paper, about 12 ribs or waves to the inch. The water-mark consists of two circles arranged one above the other and a little apart, with the single stem of a cross passing through the centre of each but terminating at the base of the lower circle. Both sheets are in an almost disintegrated condition; and no wonder, for they have existed 541 years. The cross is quite plain]

* S. Wistan does not occur in Butler's Lives of the Saints. His festival was held on June 1st according to the old English Calendar:—"Nor shall my history be wanting in thy praise, Wistan, blessed youth, son of Wimund, son of Withlaf, king of the Mercians, and of Elfreda daughter of Ceolwulf who was the uncle of Kenelm; I will not pass over thee in silence whom Berfert thy relation so atrociously murdered.—A pillar of light sent down from Heaven piercing the sable robe of night revealed the wickedness of the deep cavern and brought to view the crime of the murderer." His body was interred at Repton (Malmsbury). Ingulf says Berfert slew S. Wistan on the vigil of Pentecost with the sanction of K. Bertulph his father. I mention this because I am much inclined to believe that Wessington, anciently "Wistan-ton" or Wistan's-town, was either the birthplace or property of this S. Wistan.—

Agnes dau. of Roger surrendered i mess. & a moiety of bovate and j acre of the other part of the same bovate, upon which John of Crynne servant of Rog. North came & took it up at the will of the lord paying vj<sup>s</sup> iiij<sup>d</sup> yearly, and a penny called Bonepenny as ancient rent. Ingress fine ij<sup>s</sup>, Roger North being pledge.

Nicholas Hervy gave xx pullets that he might not be elected provost. Richard Rush was removed from that office and William Spakeman was elected in his place, and took the oath.

Robert Taillour, Richard de Derleie, and Will Eliot were elected to the office of Woodward, & took their oath.

Great Court. Baslow, Wednesday, morrow of S. Andrew.

John Taillour surrendered a cottage &c. in Corburgh formerly Roger Hunt's. John Chapman took up the same. Fine of admission xvij<sup>d</sup>.

John son of Ric. le Russher took up a cottage formerly Will. de Bentley's.

John de Ruyle, John and Richard Mulner of Midelton, Walter Bosan of Midelton, & Walter Wareyn fished in the preserved waters, and Rob. Taillour had withdrawn his suit to the mill.

John Chapman took up 'Hoggefild' in the hands of the lord by the grant of Will de Heleye tenant at will; and did fealty.

John Spateman surrendered a cottage & lands adjacent, & William Spateman took them up, paying 3<sup>s</sup> 4<sup>d</sup> for ingress. A heriot will fall when he dies.

John Webster gave xvij<sup>d</sup> that he might not be provost this year.

Great Court of Baslow, Thursday next before S. Nicholas Day, Anno 38 Ed. III. (1364).

William de Burgh to be distrained for the water course to the Fulling Mill.

Ralph le Leche surrendered iiij acres & j rood of native-land of a bovate formerly Will. Boterhale's, whereupon Henry Ostyler took up the said native holding at the lord's will, with the remainder of the bovate by the services first due and accustomed, and gave v<sup>s</sup> for his ingress, & did fealty.

Ralph le Leche surrendered into the hands of the lord part of a moiety of a bovate of native-land formerly William Gekyn's; whereupon John of Hervynne took up of the lord the aforesaid part of the moiety of the bovate of land, holding the 'native-land' at the will of the lord, with the rest of the said bovate. He paid iiij<sup>s</sup> for his fine. Roger North and Stephen Cuydy being his pledges.

The open field called 'Dilfeld' ought to pay i<sup>d</sup> per ann. and this payment is in arrears for 15 years past, and the bone-penny for 'Gristlyffeld' has not been paid for the last 15 years.

Alan Ffuliambe holds a waste piece of land of the lord's called 'Pewgereslye' without rent, and without the lord's licence.

John de Sheladon surrendered a messuage & a bovate of native-land formerly held by John Note senior, whereupon Robert Note took up the said mess. & bovate holding of the lord as a native, at the lord's will, by the accustomed services. Fine of ingress x<sup>s</sup>. Will. Note and Stephen Cuydy pledges.

Great Court at Baslow, held Thursday next after Corpus Christi, 39 Ed. III. (1365).

Will. Eliot came & paid a fine to dwell where he pleased in Corburg for x years next future. To sustain the houses upon the holding formerly Will de Bele's in as good condition or better than when he first took it, & to the satisfaction of the lord & to pay a heriot if he should die within the term of x years. And for the observance of these terms he found Stephen Cuydy, Will. Leche, Roger North, & William Spakeman, to be his pledges. Ingress v<sup>s</sup>.

Baslow Court (Thursday, Feast of S. Edward King. same year).

Presented that a certain Grange at Basselowe called Tythebern is parcel of the holding which Rich<sup>d</sup> Leche alienated by Robert Leche his father, of free land. Wherefore it is commanded to distrain the tenement of the Grange for more defaults of court, & for fealty and for his service acknowledged. (See next court.)

Three Lydyates at Baslow are not repaired.

Great Court of Baslow, Wednesday next before the Feast of S. Dunstan, Anno. 40 Edw. III. (1366).

It is commanded to distrain the tenement of a certain Grange called Tythebern of Baslow for default of suit of court & for fealty and service, and to ascertain what the nature of the ingress is in the said grange. The said Grange is parcel of the holding of Robert le Leche of free land, and was alienated to John de Melburn Canon of the Cathedral Church of Lichfield, his heirs & assigns,—as is said.

The servants of Godfrey Foliaumb made trespass in Hakewode throwing down the trees there without licence.

Alice formerly wife of William le Boler held of the lord a moiety of a bovate at the will of the lord formerly Richard Bond's. She is now married to Rich<sup>d</sup> Russher a tenant at will of another bovate of land. Wherefore the moiety of the aforesaid bovate of land was seised into the hands of the lord according to the custom, because she ought not to hold of the lord any tenement without his licence.

Upon this came John Cuydy and took up the aforesaid moiety of a bovate, holding the same at the will of the lord by the services, &c. Ingress xi<sup>s</sup>. And he paid the whole rent for this year & did fealty.

Baslow Court. Thursday next after S. Andrew's Day.
40 Ed. III. (1366).

✠ John le Wright who held a mess. and a bovate & a half of land & a cottage died since last court, and an ox was due for a heriot, but there was no cattle. Alice dau. of the said John took up the said holding and gave x<sup>s</sup>, and afterwards her father's cottage formerly John Machams was granted to her until another tenant should come to take the said cottage to dwell therein.

The twelve jurymen presented that Thomas de Womwell, Godfrey ffoliambe, Cecilia dau. of Will de Calvour, John son of Giles le Leche, the heirs of William Wyn were defaulters at the court.

That Lord Thomas de Metham* held a place called Halle-place near the Bridge of Bobenhull of Lord Richard de Vernon, but by what service they knew not. Wherefore it was commanded to distrain the said Thomas to do fealty, and to acknowledge his service.

* NOTE.—This Thomas de Metham succeeded his father Thomas in his estates on his death, anno 29 Ed. III., when Walter de Montgomery was ordered to accept security for the payment of his 'relief,' and to deliver to him the whole land of the Hay (i.e., the enclosed or fenced land) of Wallay in Sherwood Forest, which he held in capite by the service of £10 a year. The Metham estates lay, however, chiefly in Yorks. See Inquis. P. Mort. II. 192<sup>b</sup>.

Anno 36 Ed. III., the K. permitted Thom de Metham to give the "Haye of Walleye" in Sherwood to the Carthusian Priory of Beauvale which was founded by Nicholas de Cantelupe, the said land being held at a yearly rent of £10; but the convent was to hold the same at the increased rent of £13. In another entry dated 47 Ed. III., we are informed that Elizab., wife of Sir Thom. Metham, was one of the sisters and heirs of Thomas de Stapleton.—[EDITOR.]

Baslow Great Court. Tuesday next before SS. Simon & Jude's Day. 41 Ed. III. (1367).

Margery formerly wife of John Pete held a house—ruinous—in Corborough. To be amended by S. James' day.
 "Depedale clyf" occurs.

Baslow Court. Wednesday before S. John Baptist. 42 Ed. III. (1368).

Sir William Wyn Kt. held an estate and was succeeded by Thomas Wenteneslew in Corbourg.

Will. Spakeman for not repairing a tenement xl<sup>d</sup>; & unless repaired by S. Martin's Day vj<sup>s</sup> viij<sup>d</sup>.

Amongst the fifteen fined for pasturing their cattle on the moor without licence is one "Ralph Jakkeknave"—(probably a nickname descriptive of character).

Roger North, Thom. de Womwell, Philip Chaplain, Will. Leche, Steph. Cuydy, broke the attachment of the bailiff at Tythebern. (See 40, Ed. III., ante.)

David de Dereham, Henry Sotheron and John Mitchell, butchers, sold meat contrary to the assize. They were all presented for blocking up the lord's ground against his will with a table called a "fflesbord"—(clearly a meat stall).

Hugh son of Richard Wastell alias Hewet took up a cot. an acre & a rood formerly John Machon's & previously held by Alice wife of John Wright. Ingress xv<sup>d</sup>. House to be rebuilt this year. He gave now a "Hersive" (a hair seive) for the lord's use. Pledges R. Wastell, Hen. Hostiler.

Here follows a rather suspicious entry.

Stephen Cuydy gave to the lord four horseshoes for his best horse to obtain consideration of the court concerning a certain way stopped up by John del Stones between the s<sup>d</sup> Stephen & the s<sup>d</sup> John, to determine whether the said John could legally do this or not, and a day was assigned.

✠ Will Eliot who held land under two lords—the lord of Baslow, and Thomas de Metham, died this year. A heriot was incident to each holding, and there were two beasts, one, an ox of burden, and the other a cow. The respective bailiffs settled the assignments of the two heriots by lot.

In the accounts of John Cuydy, provost of Baslow from Mich., anno 41 & 42 Ed. III., 1368-9, we have—

For a hoop round a millstone, and for the repairs of a spindle, & for the carpenter ij<sup>s</sup>.

Robert Ogle (or Cole) bailiff of Haddon.

For a "shroud" for the same mill ij<sup>s</sup> (probably the wooden cover for the millstones).

Baslow Great Court, Wednesday next before S. S. Simon and Jude's Day, 42 Ed. III. (A. D. 1368).

The tenants of Middleton & Eyam ordered to be distrained for pasturing their cattle on the moor.

"Medowefurlong."

The tenants of Pillesley distrained for cutting & carrying the heath on the moor.

- ✠ Richard de Derleie who held 1 mess and half a bovate is dead. Heriot a cow.
- ✠ Robert Webster who held a cottage & 3 acres at will is dead. Heriot a cow.
- ✠ William le Leche who held a cottage & iiij acres freely, & a toft & j bovate of land at will, died, by which a calf fell to the lord for a heriot. The free land was given to his wife as in ancient time.
- ✠ Margery wife of John Perkin who held a mess. & a bovate at will is dead, by whose death the moiety of a calf valued at xx<sup>d</sup> fell to the lord, and the other moiety belongs to the church.
- ✠ Thomas son of Rob. le Leche who held a mess. & a bovate and half a bovate is dead. He resides outside the lordship. His widow was ordered to be distrained to account for the heriot & for the custody of the heir, or for relief.
- ✠ John son of Giles who held half a bovate has no chattels for a heriot. His heir to be distrained to do homage, & fealty, & to pay his Relief.
- ✠ John son of Ric. Russher who held a cottage is dead. He has no chattels for a heriot.

Bondage Tenure of Harleston.—Staffs.

Except the details of the Bondage Tenure of the serfs of the Manor of Shillington, related in the Chartulary of Ramsey Abbey, Vol. III., I have seen but few similar accounts: they are somewhat rare. Although it is not our custom to illustrate the records of other counties, the editor feels justified in publishing this account of the Bondage Tenure of Harleston, because it was part of the estate of the Vernons of Haddon, and because the original paper document is in the last stage of tenacity.

“John Ywar came and acknowledged that he held of Sir Richard Vernon Knight son of Gilbert Fraunceys one mess. & one virgate of ‘Native’ land in Bondage and paid ij<sup>s</sup> vij<sup>d</sup> per annum for it; viz: viij<sup>d</sup> at the feast of S. Martin, vij<sup>d</sup> at the Purific. of B. V. Mary & viij<sup>d</sup> at the Nativ. of S. John Baptist, and ij loaves at Xmas.—price i<sup>d</sup>, and ij hens, price . . . at the same time. He will plough with the lord with one plough at the winter seeding when his lord desires, for one day, without food and drink. And the work of the same plough is worth vi<sup>d</sup>. And he will harrow half an acre of land when the lord wills at the said season to the value of i<sup>d</sup>. He will also plough with the lord at the Lent or spring sowing with one plough for one day without food & drink (i.e., he must provide food, &c., for himself) the value of his ploughing to be vi<sup>d</sup>. He will harrow half an acre of land at the said season when the lord wills, and shall receive i<sup>d</sup>. And he will plough (“Et arrabit War’tabit & rebinabit.” “Warectare” = to plough up land designed for wheat in the spring, in order to let it lie fallow for better improvement. “Rebinare,”—to give a second stirring or ploughing to arable land that lay fallow, to prepare it for sowing wheat, or to plough the ground a third time for that purpose.” Jacob, Law Dic.) warectate or rebinate with the lord upon the lord’s lands with his plough when the lord wills, just as often as may be necessary at the will of the lord or his bailiffs, having one meal every day at his lord’s expense. He will hoe (or weed) the lord’s corn with one man for ii days without meat or drink in the summer, one day with the hand and another day with the hoe, at the rate of i<sup>d</sup> for each day: and if there be no need to plough with his plough, to harrow the seed winter & spring as above said: and to weed with the hand & with the hoe; then he shall give to the lord the price for the work (not done) as above. And he shall mow (falcabit) the Brode-madowe and Sondhul until all is cut with the assistance of other natives, and the value of the mowing of the said John reckoned by itself shall be vj<sup>d</sup>. And (sparget h’bas) spread herbs (? making hay) in the said meadow, and turn & cock & load hay in the aforesaid meadows until all shall be carried with the aid of the cattle of the natives, and the work shall be valued at ij<sup>d</sup> each. And the lord shall give to the aforesaid natives xvij<sup>d</sup> for the aforesaid mowing called 'Mathale' ('Math' = mowing, & 'ale') "excurialitate." And he shall carry the whole hay of the said meadow unto the grange of the manor until all shall be carried with the help of the aforesaid natives, the carts of the lord assisting. And he shall 'pick' the whole of the said hay on to the stack at the grange or elsewhere at the will of the bailiffs, the other natives assisting. And he shall mow the lord's meadow in Goseholm, and a piece of Bolandesmedewe with the aid of the other natives: and the lord shall give the mowers iij<sup>s</sup> for their mowing, because the said meadow of Goseholm is outside the manor of Horlaston. And he shall carry the whole of the aforesaid hay of Goseholm unto the manor of Horlaston with the aid of the other natives, with the help of the lord's carts. And he shall with the other natives mow all the meadows which the lord will have for store at the manor of Herlaston, as well within the demesne as without, for a satisfactory and reasonable reward. And he shall measure (meter) the whole growing corn of the lord of the manor of Herlaston with the assistance of the other natives without meat or drink at one price, called the Metebene (? meat-boon). Assigned to each dish shall be ij loaves price i<sup>d</sup> and 3 white herrings price one halfpenny and sisezam to drink: and the work of each shall be estimated at ij<sup>s</sup> vj. And he shall bind together the whole of the straw or corn blade with the aid of the natives into sheaves, and shall stack the said sheaves in the field—and he will carry with the help of the natives until all is gathered in during summer, the lord's carts assisting. And he shall fork the blade* upon the stack while at the grange or elsewhere, and place it at the will of the lord or his bailiff. And he shall carry with other natives of the neighbourhood the whole of the timber, stones, trusses, hearths, for all edifices rebuilt, & for all old ones repaired, and make fences to the said manor. With his other neighbours he shall make the pond and the dam head of the water mill of Herlaston of earth-work as often as it shall be necessary. And he shall grind to the xvijth grain, and do 'averagium' (an ancient service done by natives of carrying the corn crops of the lord for one day) from Lilleborn, Shyrleye, & Appleby unto Herlaston, and to carry to Lylleborn Appulby & Schyrleye unthreshed corn (bladum) and malt for the advantage or profit of the lord as for themselves, & the assistance of the families at the aforesaid manors . . . . And he finds loaves for (the use) of strangers coming & lodging for the night at the manor; and it is worth vj<sup>d</sup> per annum. And the same John and other of his neighbours of the same tenure and condition shall give to the lord from the feast of S. Michael vj to xiiij<sup>s</sup> iiij<sup>d</sup>, which is called Le Stouth,* viz. it is at will (I suppose at the will of the lord) whether the serf shall give to the lord 'manus' or 'munus'† And he shall give marchetum for the marriage of his daughter or for the crowning (sic.) of his son. And if his daughter commit fornication he shall give leyrwyte; viz. v<sup>s</sup> & a half penny "p j alb<sup>n</sup> emend' p dcis denar' imponend'" (may this be interpreted "for the repairs of an alb for the imposition of the said penny" as though the church should be entitled to some portion of the fine for the moral offence?).

* "Le Stouth." I cannot discover any solution of this term. Du Cange has the following:—

"Stouth-eres: Among the East-Angles they were so called who were distinguished for courage. These they marked from childhood: They were accustomed to place their youths upon the straw roofs of their houses, and he who sat there timidly, or cried out lest he should fall, they pronounced to be of timid disposition; but he who laid hold of the straw quickly, so as to sustain himself bravely, was taken with great applause and acclaimed a future 'Stouther.' Our modern word 'stout' for 'brave' or 'strong' is obviously allied to this early form."

A Literal Transcript of the Earliest Register of Dale Abbey, Derbyshire.

Curate of Dale Abbey.

SACTION for the transcript of the Register has been very kindly given by the Rev. W. Fox, Rector of Stanton-by-Dale, and Chaplain of Dale Abbey.

This Register is of greater value than those of most villages, owing to the excessive number of marriage entries it contains. The yearly average of marriages for the past sixty years is about three; but in 1685 there were thirty-eight, and in 1686 there were forty-six. The first suggestion of the numerous entries is, that the people were not inhabitants of Dale; and this suggestion is made a certainty by such remarkable entries as "One married Decb ye 4 there names not knowne." Why, we may wonder, did strangers come to this remote village to be married? Was there some superstition as to a special blessing on a marriage contracted in the quaint church beside the ruins of an abbey, and under the same roof as an inn? Or was it a local Gretna Green? Whatever it may have been, Burn in his "History of Parish Registers" (p. 127) makes the following remarkable statement:—"The marriages in the parish of Dale Abbey were, until a few years previous to the Marriage Act (i.e., Lord Hardwick's Act, 1754), solemnized by the clerk of the parish, at one shilling each, there being no minister." If this be correct, it would seem that the people of Dale took a worldly-wise view of the marriage fees. High fees might deter people from marriage at Dale, and, in consequence, the poor of the parish would be deprived of a certain amount of relief, as, at the close of the seventeenth century, the shilling fees were distributed by the overseers of the poor. This is shown by entries in the Register. On the other hand, when the question of the place of burial left little choice, the fee was a higher one—three shillings and fourpence. It may be noted that, though there are several different styles of writing, some extremely bad, almost all the entries of any period are in one hand, be they weddings, christenings, or burials.

The state of the document makes it desirable that a copy should be made, and the information safely recorded. It is in a state of sad dilapidation. It is a coverless paper book, with a large hole through the first two leaves. It has, moreover, been kept in time past in a damp place, and the paper is consequently in a poorly preserved condition—the edges are worn away and turned; and as time goes on, words at present decipherable will become unrecognisable, or will disappear altogether.

A study of the entries will show that they are not contemporary ones. Omissions, cramped entries, and the want of chronological order and sequence will show that the entries were made some time after the ceremonies. Some of the words and figures have been corrected by contemporary, and some by apparently later, hands.

The book has been re-bound at some time, and it is plainly evident that at that time there were more leaves than at present. In the process of re-binding there was a considerable displacement of the leaves. The notes on the text, it is hoped, will explain this. To make this transcript as chronologically correct as possible, the following order of the pages of the Register has been made:—1 to 12 (13 blank), 45 to 48, 42 to 37, 43, 44, 36 to 26 (25 and 24 blank), 23 to 16 (15 blank), 14.
