to the Memory of

George Hattersley, who departed this

Afflictions sore long time I bore,
Physicians were in vain;
Death gave me ease when God did please
And freed me from my pain.

Freed from the broils and cares of life
The worlds temptations, and its strife;
He weighed his thoughts and words in reason's scale,
And in good nature, men was known to smile;
On others foibles he a curtain drew,
In him a Friend the Sons of Misery knew.
